Roy C. 'Joe' Hayes

Former U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Michigan, Roy C. "Joe" Hayes passed away in Charlevoix, Thursday, Oct. 10, 2013, surrounded by family and close friends. Joe was a very special Irishman, who lit up the room with his kind-heartedness, his sense of humor, his stories, and his jolly laugh. That laugh is echoing throughout the halls of heaven today. His Irish eyes are smiling again.

Joe was born in Detroit to Roy Charles Hayes Sr., the owner of an advertising and public relations company, and Gertrude Sullivan Hayes, a doting Irish mother. He graduated from University of Detroit Jesuit High School in 1958, and attended the University of Notre Dame, where he received a bachelor's degree in 1962. He then went to law school at the University of Detroit Mercy School of Law, graduating in 1965.

After passing the state bar, Joe was selected in 1966 to be the editor of the Detroit Lawyer, the primary publication of the Detroit Bar Association. During the same time, he served as public relations counsel to the State Bar of Michigan and of the Detroit Bar Association. In 1967, Joe was selected as Assistant Prosecuting Attorney in the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office, where he specialized in trying major felony cases. He quickly developed an expertise in prosecuting murder, arson and fraud cases.

From 1970 to 1975, Joe headed the Wayne County Organized Crime Task Force in Detroit, supervising a task force of prosecutors and law enforcement officers who investigated major corruption. During this time Joe was the chief trial lawyer for the 10th Precinct Police Corruption trial which lasted nine months. The case resulted in the conviction of 14 police officers and six drug traffickers.

With wife, Jacqueline ("Jackie"), and two young children in tow, Joe moved to Charlevoix, Michigan in January 1976 to become the Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney. In 1978, he went into the private practice of law in Charlevoix. He handled a very diverse statewide legal practice from his firm in Charlevoix for the next seven years.

In 1985, at the age of 44, Joe was appointed United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Michigan by President Ronald Reagan. He was confirmed by the United States Senate and sworn into office by U.S. District Judge Robert E. Demascio. As U.S. Attorney, Joe prosecuted many high profile cases, including the cases against the Chambers Brothers Gang, which utilized strict business practices to operate approximately 300 crack cocaine houses during the period of 1983-1988. At the height of its operation, the group was making a profit of $1 million a week. Under Joe's leadership, 22 of the gang members were indicted in February of 1988, resulting in convictions and long sentences for all defendants.

As U.S. Attorney, Joe spent time developing policies and procedures for the Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Force. As the Core City U.S. Attorney, he had oversight responsibility for investigations and prosecutions in the Great Lakes Region, which consisted of U.S. Districts in Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. He was also chosen by U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese to serve on the Economic Crime Council, and the White Collar Crime and Public Corruption Subcommittees. He was also a member of the National Drug Policy Board's Prosecution Subcommittee.

Joe retired as U.S. Attorney in 1989, and went back into private practice in Charlevoix until he retired in May of 2000.

Friends of Joe know all too well how passionate Joe was about his Irish heritage. His St. Patrick's Day parties in Charlevoix were legendary throughout the state of Michigan, with oftentimes more than 500 people in attendance. In particular, Irish (and not so Irish) lawyers and judges from across the state would converge on Charlevoix for the jubilant "Wearin' of the Green." Joe was the lone member of the Charlevoix Chapter of The Incorporated Society of Irish American Lawyers.

The most important thing in Joe's life was family. He is survived by his beloved wife of 46 years, Jackie. Joe and Jackie were married at Saints Peter and Paul Jesuit Church in Detroit on Aug. 19, 1967. Jackie selflessly and lovingly cared for Joe for the last 13 years in their home after he was diagnosed with early onset of dementia.

Joe and Jackie have two children, both of whom also graduated from Notre Dame. Their son is Charlevoix attorney Roy "Joe" Hayes III, who is married to Kendall. Joe and Kendall gave Joe two granddaughters, Catherine (7) and Sloane (5). Catherine and Sloane loved their "Papa Joe" dearly, and were able to be with him almost every day in their home or in his.

Joe and Jackie's daughter is Amy McNamara, who is also an attorney. Amy is married to John McNamara, who practices law in Austin, Texas. Amy gave Joe four grandsons, Michael (22), Christopher (22), Jack (16), and Joe (1), who is named after his granddad. "Papa Joe" was very special to all of his grandsons. He raised Michael and Christopher as a father for three years. When Joe became ill several years ago, he would spend extended time visiting Texas, where he became a best friend and playmate to Jack. Baby Joe, in addition to being named for his grandfather, has a striking resemblance to him, and has inherited his jolly laugh.

A Funeral Mass was held for Joe at 11 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 15, at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix, followed by a reception at St. Mary's School. In addition, visitation began at 4 p.m. Monday, Oct. 14, at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix, followed by a Rosary being recited at 6:30 p.m. and an Irish wake.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to St. Mary's School — Angel Tuition (to provide scholarships) at 1005 Bridge Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

have another tool in its rescue arsenal after the city council accepted the donation of a boat for the department.

The 1985 22-foot Mako center console boat with 185-horsepower Johnson outboard motor was donated by David Joseph of Hayes Township. An appraisal by Bergmann Marine puts the combined value of the boat and motor at about $6,000 and the condition of the two at "average" and that the vessel appeared to be in good working condition.

City fire chief Paul Ivan said the boat would be a valuable asset to the fire department because it can assist in dive team training and responses, and responses to marine incidents such as boat fires, fuel leaks and other situations.

Ivan pointed to several recent incidents, including a fuel leak in Round Lake and a boat fire in Ironton in which city emergency crews had to rely on the assistance of Bergmann Marine.

Ivan noted that the U.S Coast Guard no longer trains or equips its crews for marine firefighting and that sheriff's department and conservation officer marine patrols have a vast area to cover and may not always be available.

He also noted that maintenance and repair costs for the boat are expected to be low because the department has two current and one former marine mechanics on its roster.

Ivan said the plan is to have the boat stationed in the water during the boating season near the Keweenaw Star which would make responses much faster than when the department had a boat in the past that was stored in the fire station on a trailer.

The council also decided to hold off on giving final approval to a memorial brick program for East Park's Plaza B. The proposal is to allow individuals and businesses to purchase engraved paver bricks to be placed in the plaza's center section at a cost of $100 each. The city would realize about $75 in profits per brick sold, with the proceeds proposed to be used for recreational activities in the city.

The council held off on giving the final go-ahead after downtown business owner Jodi Bingham spoke up saying she wishes the council would consider not doing the program and leave the plaza the way it is. The plaza's center was recently covered with non-etched paver bricks.

Council members Jeff Porter and Shirley Gibson said they agreed with Bingham and suggested the council hold off on its decision to allow more time for community input on the matter.

Hospital's school nurse program a finalist

The Charlevoix Area Hospital School Nurse Program is a finalist in the Jackson Healthcare Hospital Charitable Services Award Program. This competition evaluates and awards programs that demonstrate "Programs of Excellence" and "Programs of Promise."

Finalists will on Feb. 4, have the opportunity to attend the national Hospital Charitable Services Conference in Atlanta, Ga. The winners will be announced during the conference and will obtain a share of more than $100,000 and receive national recognition.

To participate in this program, candidates must demonstrate a clear vision of the future impacts on the community, have a well-defined, measurable community need, have a track record of measured accomplishments and demonstrate the uniqueness of the program.

Lyn Jenks, hospital president and chief executive officer, said she is delighted that the school nurse program is a finalist for the Jackson Healthcare's Hospital Charitable Services Award Program.

"It is a great honor and privilege to have been selected," Jenks said, adding that she is "extremely proud of our school nurse program and the accomplishments of our school nurses."

The hospital's school nurse program places registered nurses in local schools, allowing students the opportunity to learn about healthy lifestyle habits that will last a lifetime.

More information about the hospital and its services can be found at www.cah.org online.

Submariners to honor boats lost at sea

MEGAN WILSON
Courier contributor

The quarterly meeting of the Michigan Submarine Veterans group will be this weekend to honor those boats that were lost at sea during World War II, as well as post-World War II.

"We probably have 50 or 60 members, 10 of which are World War II submarine veterans," said John Hess, of the Charlevoix County Veterans Affairs Office.

He explained how there's a memorial ritual the group will perform.

"We will be tolling the ship's bell 52 times for World War II boats, and another four for those boats lost after World War II."

The bell tolling starts at 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 19, at East Park in downtown Charlevoix.

Charlevoix, a well known maritime community along the shores of Lake Michigan and with its protective Round Lake harbor, has the distinction of being home to the Escolar Memorial, which honors the Escolar, a submarine lost during its first patrol in World War II.

"The memorial is here in Charlevoix because a submariner named Ben Gill, who was captured in a POW camp, convinced the State of Michigan that Charlevoix was the best place to have a submarine memorial," Hess said.

The event is an important one, both for local and out-of-town veterans, he said.

"These are the nicest guys, they are dedicated to what they are doing, I've never met a person that I didn't like here," Hess said.

what kinds of city capital improvement projects should be reviewed by the planning commission.

Generally, the policy would exempt from further review projects that have already been reviewed through the annual budget or capital improvement plan process, projects that must be completed to protect public health, safety and welfare, replacing, repairing or expanding utilities, replacing or repairing of existing buildings, structures of features; and replacing or repairing existing roads, curbs, and sidewalks and minor changes to existing uses related to government operations.

Items that would be subject to review under the policy include:

— Any new structure, feature, or expansion of an existing building.

— Any new use or recreational activity proposed on public properties.

– Purchase of any additional properties to be owned by the city. Sale of any city owned lands.

— Construction of new roads, alleys, and new parks.

The review process contemplated would have the planning commission look at all documentation for the project, take public comment on the project and forward a recommendation to the city council for its consideration.

A draft of the proposed policy is now available on the city's website, www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

The policy is one of several matters the council will consider at its next regular semi-monthly meeting set for 7 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 21.

Other items expected on the agenda include considering approving a measure that would allow consultants to move forward to the final design phase and rate studies for an upcoming major overhaul for the city's wastewater treatment plant; renewing an insurance policy, and considering bids for rubbish collection and road salt purchases.

MEDIATION

Mediation places children in permanent homes or back with their parents based on a plan mediated between the child's parents and the Department of Human Services much more quickly than if the case worked its way through the court system.

"So the cost, over a year, for 63 children for foster care is $853,344.45. Your funding for Northern Community Mediation helps keep that cost down, because we get children into permanent homes 14-17 months sooner than if they go through the full-court process," Millar said. "So that's a perfect example of the cost-savings and what your money is doing. It's saving the citizens of Charlevoix County a lot of money."

Commissioner Chris Christensen questioned the efficiency of the court system, and contributing money to an organization that operates alongside the court system.

"So back to my comment that this is a system we created and now you're shortcutting the same system you created," said Christensen.

James Raber with Charlevoix County's Friend of the Court, reminded Christensen that having access to defense in a court case is a constitutional right.

"You have to understand that this system was created because the state has a constitution which guarantees somebody has a right to be defended on any charges that are in the county. So that system was developed to protect a constitutional right that is in the U.S. Constitution," said Raber.

Christensen also questioned how the nonprofit was using its money.

"It's simply the bare-bones operation of Northern Community Mediation," said Millar. "We have a $175,000 budget. We have three paid staff members that basically have no benefits of any kind. They have a minimal salary, no benefits. We have rent to pay, general expenses, et cetera. It's a bare bones operation. We're keeping kids out of foster care."

One third of the nonprofit's funding comes from the state. Another third comes from Charlevoix and Emmet counties, and the final third comes from fundraising and grant-writing done by the nonprofit.

"Chris, I know what you're saying we have a system — a lot of things are broke in our system but I commend your organization," said commission chair Joel Evans, to Millar.

During public comment, Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider reminded those present that it was the commissioners' jobs to question how tax dollars are spent

"I want to remind commissioners and audience that your job, you six gentlemen were elected to be the stewards of my tax dollars and to do that you need to ask those questions about not only me and my department, but every other department head sitting here, or anyone else that comes to the table to ask for money," said Schneider

BULLYING HURTS

October is National Bullying Prevention Month

The end of bullying starts with me

"Everyone should be treated like they matter. Many people have so many insecurities that the only way they know how to feel good is to bring others down. If only the parents knew the things their children were saying to others, imagine how different things would be." These are the words of "C", a young person who has experienced bullying and who is ready to make change happen.

October is National Bullying Prevention Month, a campaign founded by PACER, a Minnesota-based parents' organization. "The culture of bullying won't end until people across the country take action and show children and teens that they care," says Julie Hertzog, director of PACER's National Bullying Prevention Center. "This is a very real and painful issue that kids are facing, but they don't have to face it alone. Bullying can be prevented if we all work together to change the culture."

What if bullying is a part of your or your child's life? Bullying can destroy a child's self-esteem and make school and social activities anxiety-filled daily events, no matter what age they are. Although children and teens with disabilities or who of a visible minority are common targets, bullies choose their victims with little rhyme or reason. PACER recommends responding to the bullying of your child by working with him or her to protect themselves and record incidents, working with the child's teacher to recruit support and to get the problem in hand, and, if need be, working with the school district administration to bring the gravity of the problem to light.

Cyberbullying can have serious consequences

These days, bullying isn't only happening in the schoolyard. The Internet has changed things to such an extent that students are now vulnerable to bullying attacks at [illegible]. Cyberbullying can have serious consequences and should be taken seriously.

What is cyberbullying? It is the harassment of an individual that comes in the form of insulting, degrading or threatening acts through e-mail, instant messaging, private or public posts and comments on social networks and discussion groups. Even if the messages are not spoken out loud, the consequences can be disastrous: [illegible] self-confidence, social isolation and even suicide.

LODGE A COMPLAINT

It is imperative to do something about this type of situation [illegible] first arises. Students should inform their parents or a member of the school's personnel. Threats should be reported to the police. People must be aware that slander, extortion, criminal harassment, fabricated messages, and the uttering of threats are considered to be violations of the criminal code. Civil courts are a recourse for that type of case. Before lodging a complaint or attempting to sue a cyberbully, it is important not to delete the messages in question, as they will be required as proof.

PREVENTION

It is possible to prevent cyberbullying. Some actions to take: never respond to a bully; protect personal information; inform the Internet or cell phone service provider about incidents; and immediately close the Web environment where the intimidation is taking place. Lastly, parents should monitor what their children are using the Internet for and be vigilant for any signs of distress, such as an unusual reluctance to go to school, fear or anxiety.

garage, and two in the driveway), which he said should be plenty under most instances.

The lot on which the development is proposed is zone R-4, high-density residential. The property was just recently rezoned to that designation when the city approved a major overhaul to its overall zoning ordinance earlier this year. Previously the property had been zoned commercial, which would not have allowed for this type of development, Spencer said. He said the Charlevoix Pointe development is the largest that has been proposed in the six years he's served as the city's planning director.

Following its initial introduction at Monday's meeting the following public hearings on the project are tentatively scheduled:

The planning commission will conduct a public hearing at 6 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 28.

The city council is tentatively slated to conduct a public hearing on the project at 7 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 4.

The planning commission also heard, and were supportive of, a plan by the Charlevoix Historical Society to bring in a railroad car to have on display at its Depot building adjacent to Depot Beach.

use fees.

"A drill rig is used to remove a rock sample for geological analysis. St. Marys wants these rock samples so they can be analyzed to determine if there is any risk of large amounts of Lake Michigan water coming through the underlying rock," said Dirk Cox, operations manager for the company. "Given the close proximity of our current and future limestone mining to Lake Michigan, the potential for any large water leaks in the rock are a good thing to know about ahead of time."

Contrary to initial area resident concerns, there is no oil exploration or fracking happening at the shoreline state park, Cox said.

"There is absolutely no oil exploration or gas exploration or fracking going on at all," he said.

Furthermore, state officials confirmed the workers in the park this week are testing geology, not drilling for oil or natural gas. However, it remains unknown what may unfold if a new limestone deposit is discovered.

"We don't know what will happen next. It depends on what they find," said Tom Copenhaver, park supervisor for both Young and Fisherman's Island state parks in Charlevoix County.

Cox said a potential land swap proposal may develop if the mining company finds stone for which it's worth digging.

"We've conceptualized a land swap with the state, but have not approached the state yet," he said. "The idea would be to swap some of our southern property with the state for less of their property."

But that may never happen, he explained, particularly if the test holes don't turn up significant limestone.

State records show the test drilling is expected to take about three days, weather permitting. Afterward, Cox said they hired Charlevoix-based Landscape Logic to replace some trees removed for the work, each several inches in diameter.

Test results must be completed within 60 days of the work, according to the permit restrictions. Cox said he will provide anyone who requests one a copy of the state-issued permit.

YOUR INSURANCE SPECIALISTS

THERE when you NEED US MOST

Having good insurance coverage is a basic necessity

Everyone runs the risk of experiencing some kind of misfortune. Whether it's an accident, a fire, theft, a serious illness or a natural disaster, this type of misfortune can happen to anyone, anytime. If prevention or carefulness can help to reduce the risks, they can never completely prevent such events from occurring. And this is why it is so important to have good insurance coverage.

Even if we can't always avoid catastrophes, good insurance will help to minimize the consequences or, at the very least, the financial costs. For example, a good home insurance policy can prevent someone finding themselves on the street after a fire. The policy should not only cover the costs of repair work or rebuilding, but should also pay for any lodging and living costs during the work. Civil responsibility, which covers third party damages, should also be included.

But home insurance is only one ingredient in a complete insurance package. Apart from car insurance, there are also different types of personal insurance such as health insurance, which can cover certain care not covered by the public system. What's more, some policies include salary insurance in case of disability. Life insurance shouldn't be forgotten either, which, even though it doesn't directly benefit the holder of the policy, allows an individual to provide for family members in the event of death.

They say it never rains but it pours. But one thing's for sure: good insurance coverage helps to reduce the veracity of this old saying.

Everyone runs the risk of experiencing some kind of misfortune and that's why it's so important to have good insurance.

Charlevoix boys run to Lake Michigan Conference title at Antrim Dells

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Ravlew

ATWOOD — The Charlevoix boys and Harbor Springs girls chose the perfect time to turn in strong overall team performances.

The Rayder boys had five runners place within the top 10 en route to capturing the Lake Michigan Conference boys title Tuesday at a wet course at Antrim Dells Golf Course, while the Harbor girls had three runners place within the top 10 as they won the girls crown.

The Charlevoix boys finished first with 28 points, while Harbor Springs was second with 67 and Boyne City was third, 78. East Jordan placed fourth with 104 points, followed by Traverse City St. Francis, 124; and Kalkaska, 128.

In the girls race, Harbor Springs and T.C. St. Francis each finished with 44 points, but the Rams took the title based upon the tie-breaking sixth runner. Charlevoix was third with 57 points, while Boyne City was fourth, 121; followed by Elk Rapids, 128; and Kalkaska, 174.

Charlevoix's Amber Way continued her dominating season as she won the girls' race in 18 minutes, 23 seconds, while East Jordan's Josh Wojan won the boys race in 16:50.3

The top seven runners in both races earned All-Lake Michigan Conference honors, while runners 8-15 were named honorable mention.

For the Charlevoix boys -- who had three runners earn first-team All-Lake Michigan Conference honors and three other earn honorable mention. Tristen Rudolph was a team-best third in 17:15; while Jackson Buday was fourth, 17:28; and Nick Plude took seventh, 17:56. Also for Charlevoix, Loke Buday was eighth, 18:05; while Noah Jeakle was ninth, 18:07; Lucas VonLau was 13th, 18:28; and CJ Rice placed 18th, 18:48.

The Harbor girls had one runner earn All-Lake Michigan Conference first-team honors as Claire Fleming was sixth, 20:54; while five others earned honorable mention including Betsey Simons, eighth, 21:05; Kyra LaRue, 10th, 22:10; Salix Sampson, 12th, 22:17; Charlotte Cullip, 14th, 22:25; and Jessica Worm, 15th, 22:30.

Harbor Springs coach Emily Kloss was pleased with her girls' team, as 10 runners brought in personal bests on the day. The Rams have now captured six of the last seven conference meets, with the lone exception coming in the 2011 season.

"We were pretty happy," Kloss said. "Everyone gave it their all right at the finish, which is where it counts the most. Every runner counts, especially today."

Also for Harbor, Autumn Kihnke was 17th, 22:48.

For the Harbor boys, Marcus Garrow was a team-best second as he finished in 17:01 to earn All-Lake Michigan Conference first team honors, while Michael Gorman also was named to the first-team as he placed fifth in 17:31.

Also for the Harbor boys, Kurtis Alessi was 20th, 19:12; Vlad Robinson, 24th, 19:37; Zach Hunt, 25th, 19:38; Ethan Tippett, 26th, 19:49; and Jacob Nethercott, 32nd, 20:53.

While the girls raced through a dry course, the boys runners weren't as lucky on the day. Still, Kloss felt the downpour didn't seem to affect the runners' times.

"For the girls, it was pretty dry and the course was nice aside from a few puddles," said Kloss. "For the boys, it rained nonstop but I don't know that it really affected them."

Way led the Charlevoix girls with her win, while Caroline Boss was fifth in 20:40 to earn all-league first team honors. Also for the Rayder girls, Elle Way was 16th, 22:33; followed by Allie Hodge, 20th, 23:07; Katie Mousseau, 24th, 23:20; Isabelle Buday, 25th; 23:33; and Ali Schwein, 28th, 24:14.

Charlevoix falls to playoff-bound Boyne City

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

The Ramblers are heading back to the postseason.

Boyne City moved to 6-1 overall on the year, becoming the first area team to qualify for the playoffs with a 45-14 Lake Michigan Conference win over Charlevoix on Friday at Kipke Field.

"It's fantastic. You set out prior to the season, everyone has a list of goals they hope to accomplish and on everybody's list is getting qualified for the playoffs," Boyne City coach Dave Hills said. "We're real happy that we're able to do that."

"I think it's a product of a number of different things. The kids have worked very hard and they continue to improve and as a coach that's always exciting to be around," Hills added.

On Friday, Boyne, 4-0 in conference play, would score first on a 25 yard ron by quarterback Corey Redman, but after a blocked extra point, Charlevoix, 1-6, 0-4, would take the lead to end the first quarter on 90 yard touchdown connection from quarterback Luke Klinger to Will Telgenhof.

The Ramblers would add 27 points in the second quarter however, as halfback Maceo Vroman brought in three receiving scores from Redman on plays of 69, 10 and six yards. Luke Sage would add a score on the ground for the Ramblers as well, as they built a 33-7 halftime lead.

In the third, Charlevoix would score on a one yard run by Sam Hovie and the Ramblers would bring in a 42 yard pass and catch by end Cole Butler from Redman.

Sage would add a five yard ron in the fourth to give the game its final score.

With the playoffs in their future, the focus of the Ramblers now turns to a Lake Michigan Conference Championship.

"We're in playoff mode from here on out," Hills added. "We've got two big games coming up that have big implications for our conference championship."

Redman finished 6-of-11 passing with 152 yards, four touchdowns and one interception. Vroman had three catches -- all for scores -- with 85 yards, while Butler added 42 yards receiving.

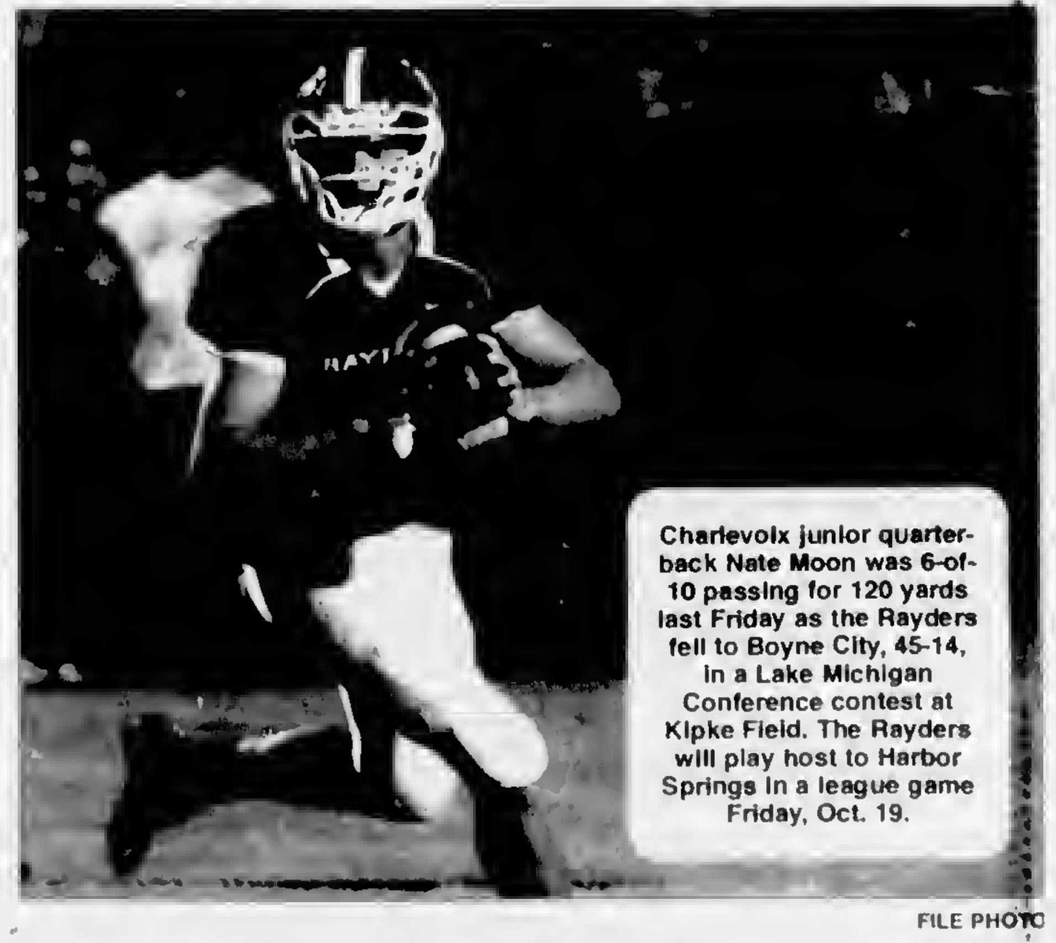
Luke Sage had 119 yards on 25 carries and Brad Fouchia added 70 yards on six carries.

Defensively, Max Cuper led the Ramblers with 11 tackles, Sage brought in 10 stops and Vroman six tackles. Fouchia added an interception, while Cuper and Vroman each had fumble recoveries.

For Charlevoix, Klinger passed for 115 yards on 4-of-7 passing, while Nate Moon brought in 120 yards on 6-of-10 passing. Telgenhof had 176 yards through the air on five catches.

Defensively, Shane Sutherland had 11 tackles, while Klinger had an interception.

Charlevoix plays host to Harbor Springs in a Lake Michigan Conference contest on Friday, Oct. 19.



Charlevoix junior quarterback Nate Moon was 6-of-10 passing for 120 yards last Friday as the Rayders fell to Boyne City, 45-14, in a Lake Michigan Conference contest at Kipke Field. The Rayders will play host to Harbor Springs in a league game Friday, Oct. 19.

Rayders close out season with a win

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

ELK RAPIDS — A strong second half fueled the Charlevoix High School boys' soccer team to a strong second half finish in the regular season.

The Rayders scored three second half goals Thursday in their Lake Michigan Conference and regular season finale as they topped league-leading Elk Rapids to close a 15-3 overall, 8-2 league regular season.

"We're happy to finish in second place in the league, but we'd like to be in first place," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "We've been playing the best soccer we've been playing all year and we're on an eight game winning streak. For our two seniors, Justin Pearl and Nick Snabes, it was a huge experience for them."

Walker Drost opened the scoring on an assist from Snabes on what Boss called the Rayders' best goal of the season.

"Walker took a shot from about 10 yards outside the 18 into the upper 90," Boss said.

After Elk Rapids tied the game at 1-all, the Rayders made it 2-1 as Pearl scored off a feed from Davis LaBelle. Elk Rapids again tied the game at 2-all before the end of the first half.

In the second half, Drost drew a penalty in the penalty area before Snabes scored on a penalty kick to give the Rayders a 3-2 lead.

Wes Crandall then scored off a corner kick sent in from Drost to make it 4-2. After the Elks made it 4-3, LaBelle scored the final goal of the game on a free kick from 15 yards outside the 18.

"We played a great game," Boss said. "We put Christian Matye back in goal and he had a really good game back there."

Boss also lauded the play of LaBelle, a junior, on the outside, along with his two seniors in Pearl and Snabes.

"Our seniors played their hearts out and it was a good way for them to finish the regular season, especially being on the road and at Elk Rapids," Boss said.

Charlevoix will play Harbor Light Christian in a Division IV district match at 3 p.m. today, Thursday, at Reynolds Field in Harbor Springs.

Rayders top Blazers in home finale

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix High School varsity volleyball team topped Kalkaska, 25-14, 25-14, 25-13, in their regular season, league and home finale Tuesday.

With the win, the Rayders improve to 29-14-1 overall, 5-2 league and will play in the Lake Michigan Conference championships on Saturday, Oct. 19, in Boyne City.

"It was nice to finally play on our home court again," Charlevoix coach Andra Randall said. "We have been building up for this weekend for awhile."

Madeline Boss finished with 24 kills, three aces and was 100 percent serving, while Olivia Storm had 24 assists and was 15-of-16 serving while Jennaca Holecheck had five aces and four kills.

Also for Charlevoix, Gloria Greene had 11 assists and was 100 percent serving, while Kelsey Pischner and Emily Zabowa had four kills apiece.

Yogi Hang added four digs, while Madi Carey added three kills and two blocks.

Also, the Rayders finished runner-up at the 16-team Suttons Bay Invitational on Saturday.

The Rayders advanced to the championship match before falling to tournament champion Leland, 25-20, 25-18.

Charlevoix finished with a 4-2 record at the tournament, losing both matches to Leland.

The Rayders advanced to the championship match as they opened pool play with a 25-18, 25-21 loss to Leland, then defeated Traverse City Christian, 25-13, 25-13; and defeated Rogers City, 24-26, 25-18, 16-14.

In the Gold Pool, the Rayders defeated Kingsley, 25-13, 26-24; and then topped Cheboygan, 25-16, 26-24, to advance to the finals.

"What a big day," Randall said. "It was big for the girls walking in knowing their pool had two state ranked teams in Leland and Rogers City, which they had taken losses to already this season.

"My girls played together and played through some tough battles," Randall added. "I am proud of their ability to adapt, step in and play with true grit. We kept our composure during tough times and made many great plays at the right time all under pressure. I applaud the girls and their efforts.

"They should be proud of each and every one of their teammates."

For the Rayders, Boss earned team most valuable player as she finished with 80 kills and 41 digs, while Holecheck added 35 kills, 39 digs, five aces, six blocks and nine assists and Hang finished with 59 digs and five aces.

Also for the Rayders, Greene had 55 assists, 17 digs and seven aces, while Storm added 56 assists and three aces.

Carey had seven blocks, six kills and five digs, while Pischner had 13 digs, seven kills and six aces and Zabowa had 11 kills, four blocks and 13 assists. Kylie Scholten added seven kills and six blocks.

"All the girls contributed in many different ways, but one thing I do know to be true is that we all had fun at this tournament," Randall said.

Charlevoix's Madelina Boss had a team-best 24 kills, added three aces and was 100 percent serving Tueaday as the Rayders defeated Kalkaska, 25-14, 25-14, 25-13, in their regular saaaon, league and home finale at the Charlevoix High School gym. The Rayders, 29-14-1 overall, will play in the Lake Michigan Conference championshipa on Saturday, Oct. 19, in Boyne City.

POP WARNER

Season closes for Charlevoix teams

The regular season for both of Charlevoix's Pop Warner football teams ended last Saturday.

The Charlevoix Rayder Peewee Division team came out victorious on Saturday in Pellston, with an 18-0 win against the Petoskey Broncos, leaving them 5-1 on the season. Stingy defenses on both sides ruled the first half, with Charlevoix's offense taking over in the second half. Halfbacks Max Ostrum and Luke Snyder scored a touchdown each, while quarterback Jacob Snyder scored the other touchdown. Coaches were pleased with the offensive linemen Phillip Sterrett, Jakob Kerner-Deyoung, Zach Nickel, Spencer Weber, Cam Vrondran, Jack Bemis and Tony Illenden for opening up holes for the backs. Defensively, the Rayders were led by Jacob Snyder, Illenden, Ostrum and Caleb Stuck, who added an interception. Coaches lauded subs, such as Cole MCarthur, Jack Kitta and Max Dixon for coming in and seemlessly doing their jobs. The Peewees will play a Jamboree game — in Pop Warner's version of a playoff — against Elk Rapids Orange at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 19, at Elk Rapids.

The Charlevoix Midget Division squad lost to the Traverse City Trojans in a game tighter than it appeared at 26-14. A great first half by both defenses left it tight at the break, with the Trojans pulling away late. Offensively for the Rayders, Cole Wright scored both touchdowns and ran the ball well all day. Coaches praised the offensive line for sound, fundamental blocking. Tyler Ostrum added the extra point with a field goal, which in Pop Warner is worth two points. Defensively, linemen Eric Staph, Luke Stuck, Ryan Henry, Michael Pearsall and Max Hinkle did a nice job of plugging the running lanes most of the contest. At 2-3-1 on the season, the Rayder Midgets will meet the Petoskey Wildcats in their Jamboree game at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 19, in Petoskey.

Charlevoix student pulls for tradition

STAFF REPORT

Boss

John Boss, a Hope College sophomore from Charlevoix, participated in the Pull, one of the nation's oldest college traditions.

The event happened on Saturday, Sept. 28. Boss was an even-year puller.

The Pull, which first happened in 1898, is an annual fall highlight at Hope College. It started as a tug-of-war between the freshmen and sophomore classes for the freshmen to earn their place on campus. Over the years, it evolved into a grueling three-hour match during which freshmen and sophomore teams, entrenched in shallow pits on opposite sides of the Black River, attempt to gain the most rope through strength and stamina.

Each team has 18 students on the rope as pullers, with another 18 acting as guides and morale boosters. The Pull brings hundreds of alumni, parents and students to cheer on the odd- or even-year teams. The even-year class of 2016 won this year's Pull.

Boss is the son of Dr. Craig and Erica Boss, of Charlevoix. He is a 2012 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

BE A
WISE SHOPPER
It's always wise to remember that if an offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is. If you are offered merchandise at an unbelievably low price, check it out thoroughly. A call to the Better Business Bureau (serving Eastern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula) will tell you whether other consumers have had problems with the firm that has offered the merchandises. (248)223-9400. But call the Bureau BEFORE you make a purchase. You'll be glad you did.

Bemis resigns from chamber

Six-year tenure brought new events, programs

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier editor

Bemis

Erin Bemis unexpectedly stepped down as executive director of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce late last week.

Chamber officials announced Bemis' departure on Monday in a mass email including her letter of resignation.

"It has been my honor to serve as president and CEO of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce for the past six years.

"I am grateful to have been a representative of Charlevoix and its business community and look forward to continuing [illegible] as a resident in the future," Bemis' letter read.

"At this time, I find it in the best interest of myself and my family to respectfully submit my resignation from my position with the chamber."

Chamber officials hired Bemis in 2007 to take over as executive director in January 2008.

Steve Seely, vice-chairman of the chamber's board, said Bemis was not asked to resign from her position.

"She expressed the desire to make a change because she was getting burned out," Seely said. "It's a tough job and she's done it well."

Bemis said she decided to spend more time with her husband and three young sons.

"I'm going to take some time and enjoy my family," she said.

The chamber world can be a hectic one and it's just time to take a break, Bemis explained.

"I never had two days alike and I loved that," she said.

Others in town also recognize Bemis' efforts and achievements for Charlevoix.

Bethany Pearson, Charlevoix's community economic development director, closely worked with Bemis prior to her new position with the city. Pearson said she's glad Bemis is making more time for her family and she is grateful to have worked with her at the chamber.

"The chamber of commerce is a very challenging job with high expectation and many personal sacrifices. People often forget that," Pearson said. "Erin taught me a lot about being strong women in a public role; her mentorship was a critical component to my success."

Bemis said the thing about which she's most proud during her time as the chamber's leader is the re-engagement of chamber membership, as well as the community as a whole. Things went well enough in recent years that the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce was for two consecutive years named the mid-sized Chamber of the Year at the state chamber association's annual conferences in 2010 and 2011.

"And we were a finalist for 2012," Bemis said, beaming.

The annual business expo in March also grew into a main event during Bemis' tenure at the Charlevoix-based chamber. It serves as a place to showcase local businesses, along with the products and services offered. Additionally, Bemis said the goal was to allow free public entry to the event to eliminate barriers to access for Charlevoix's business community.

"There's a lot of businesses in the area that don't have storefronts. The expo is the opportunity to get in front of large crowds," she said.

But most recently, the launch of pro

City election candidate profiles

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

When Charlevoix voters go to the polls on Tuesday, Nov. 5, they will see many familiar names squaring off for three seats on the city council.

In fact, two of the three races will be re-matches of races that took place in a recall election in early May. That election ended in a sweep by the challengers, two of whom will now be incumbents in this election.

The underlying issue behind the May recall election was a controversial project the former council approved in August last year. The project, an outdoor community fireplace to be built in East Park, was to be funded largely by an anonymous donor. When public outcry arose over the size of the project, its impact of view of the park and Round Lake and the process the council followed to approve the project, officials halted construction. In the first meeting after the successful recall, the challengers-turned-council members, joined by council member Lyle Gennett, voted to completely scrap the project.

With that issue in the rear-view mirror, this time around, the biggest issue on the minds of the candidates appears to be finding ways to stimulate Charlevoix's economy.

The following are brief profiles of candidates for each race. (For coverage of the race for the city clerk's seat, see page A3.)

Kusina

In the 1st Ward incumbent Jeff Porter will take on challenger Dennis Kusina. This is the first of the two rematches of the May recall election in which Porter unseated Kusina.

— Jeffrey Porter, 70, is a local dentist, who holds degrees in biochemistry from Michigan State University, and degrees from the University of Michigan School of Dentistry, Indiana University School of Philanthropy and the U.S. Army Medical Field Service School. Prior to his election to the city council in May, Porter served on the city charter commission from 1976-79 and on city council from 1979-83. Additionally, Porter served on the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Board for 23 years, was a member of the city's Cool Cities program in 2007, served on the Crooked Tree Arts Council's board, served as a

Attorneys: City clerk, county commissioner offices 'incompatible'

Sullivan

Attorneys representing the city of Charlevoix and Charlevoix County have issued an opinion that current Charlevoix County Commissioner Larry Sullivan can't legally also serve as the Charlevoix City Clerk.

Earlier this year, Sullivan, who was elected to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last year, filed a petition to run for the office of Charlevoix City Clerk after then current clerk announced she would not seek re-election this November.

Since the filing, attorneys have been researching whether Michigan's Incompatible Offices Act, prohibits Sullivan from holding both offices simultaneously.

The opinion, dated Oct. 17, was authored attorneys Jim Young and Bryan Graham of the law firm Young, Graham, Elsenheimer & Wendling, serve as the city's and county's attorneys respectively.

In the opinion, Young and Graham contend that the offices of Charlevoix County Commissioner and Charlevoix City Clerk are "incompatible" under the act because of the relationship between the city clerk's and county clerk's offices for elections.

Specifically, the attorneys cite the fact that the city pays or reimburses the county for:

"1. the cost of printing ballots used by the city,

2. the cost of programming of County-owned election equipment that is used by the city and city clerk in elections, which are held by the city;

3. the cost of preventative maintenance on the county-owned election equipment that is used by the city and city clerk, and

4. the city's portion of the cost incurred by the county in publishing a unified county-wide public notice regarding an election."

The attorneys go on to write that, "Although there is no written contract between the city and the county, the provision of these services by the county for compensation creates a contractual relationship between the county and city. Moreover, the functioning and maintenance of the election machines used by the city are directly related to the duties of the city clerk to conduct elections."

The attorneys go on to note that if there was ever any dispute that arose between the city and the county concerning this relationship it would place a person who held both offices in the position of not being able to represent the best interests of both organizations simultaneously.

Examples of situations that could create this conflict of interest that Graham and Young provide include: If the county's election equipment were damaged while under the city's control, if the city failed to pay for some of the services, or if some dispute arose

Snow arrives before color ends

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier editor

This year's autumn color season got hijacked by late-October snowfall.

Much of northwest Lower Michigan awoke on Monday, Oct. 21, to a thin layer of wet, sloppy snow across the ground. Roads grew slick, vehicles slid in the slush and then it melted. Then that happened again Tuesday. And Wednesday.

It's that transitional time of year between fall and winter, when colorful trees still cling to some leaves despite the advancing icy chill.

"Everybody probably has had about 1 inch, while other areas in higher terrain have had 3-4 inches, like Gaylord, Mancelona, Kalkaska," said Scott Rozanski, National Weather Service meteorologist at the weather station near Gaylord.

And don't worry because this isn't going to stick, he said.

"The forecast for next week is a lot like what we've had this week, but slowly trending toward a warmer pattern. But that's not until mid-week," Rozanski said.

Temperatures will hover within the 40s until later in the week. The thermometer may read closer to 50 degrees later in the week, he said, but maybe not until and only on Saturday.

"It's not looking like it will begin warming until Halloween. That's the next best chance to blow out of this pattern here," Rozanski said. "What I will say is it will be warmer the first week of November than it is now. But that's easy to say when it's in the low-30s."

Driving conditions may continue to prove challenging in coming days, he said, as this early lake effect snowfall isn't that far away from being rain and is falling on warm pavement. That can create slushy conditions.

But winter is not here yet, Rozanski affirmed.

"I would say we'll go back and forth like we always do. This does not bode well for us to have a cold November, not usually," he added.

Winter tends to "pull back" when snowfall comes well before October's end, Rozanski said. The first half of November is expected to be mild, but that won't last, either.

"When December hits, winter will be here to stay," he said. "I think it's going to be a cold and snowy winter."

Board revises graduation requirements, hires coaches

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

In its meeting on Monday, the Charlevoix School Board revised graduation requirements, appointed winter and spring coaches, clarified administrative responsibilities, and hired two paraprofessionals.

Graduation requirements, which had been modified to accommodate the transition from trimesters to semesters, were revised and adopted by the board.

On the trimester system, students had the opportunity to earn 15 credits per year, but on the semester system, students may earn only 12 credits. After the audits of current students' progress toward graduation and the master schedule were finalized this year, some modifications to the previously-published requirements were necessary. The new requirements for the classes of 2014- 2017 will be published in the student handbook on www.rayder.net.

The modifications, in general, require less elective credits, because there is less room in the students' schedules for electives on the semester system.

Coaches hired

The board unanimously approved the hiring of the following coaches for winter and spring.

Winter coaches

— Boys varsity basketball, Bret Erskine

— Boys junior varsity basketball, Joe Solomon

— Boys freshman basketball, to be determined

— Girls varsity basketball, Liz Shaw

— Girls junior varsity basketball, Bryan Hawkins

— Girls freshman basketball, Mike Way

— Wrestling, Mike Hinkle

— Ski Team, Mike Washburn

— Eighth grade boys basketball, John Pearl

— Seventh grade boys basketball, Doug Waha

— Rayder (intermural) boys basketball, Andrew Potter

— Eighth grade girls basketball, Laura Boss

— Seventh grade girls basketball, Amy Putman

— Rayder girls basketball, to be determined

Spring coaches

— Varsity baseball, Alan Telgenhof

— Junior varsity baseball, Mike Webb

— Varsity softball, Tom Melke

— Boys track, Ken Plude

— Girls track, Mary Plude

— Girls varsity soccer, Pete Scholten

— Girls varsity tennis, Audra Randall

— Boys varsity golf, Keith Grunch

Board member Bo Boss thanked Susan Miller for her 19 years of service to the ski team and expressed a desire to athletic director Travis Garrett and new head coach Mike Washburn to try to keep Miller involved in the program.

High school principal Suzanne Klinger and Garrett acknowledged the athletic accomplishments of junior Ashley Way in cross country and track. As a freshman, Ashley was All State in cross country and the State Champion Runner in the 3,200 meter race in track.

As a sophomore, Ashley placed fourth in the state in cross country and was the 3,200 meter State Champion, setting new state and school records at 10:48.

This year, Ashley is thus far undefeated in cross country, setting her personal best time at 17:45 last weekend in the Gaylord invitational.

Klinger also pointed out that Ashley was an excellent role model and mentor to other students.

Support program duties, paraprofessionals hired

Administrators were assigned as coordinators for various federal programs, in order to be in compliance with federal guidelines. Doug Drenth will coordinate Title I academic support programs.

Bob Gendron will coordinate Title II, principal and teacher training, and Title IV, safe and drug-free schools.

Travis Garrett will coordinate Title IX that deals with gender equity. Suzanne Klinger will coordinate 504 plans, individual educational plans for students who need them, who do not qualify for special education.

Hope Cutshell and Linda Anstutz were hired as paraprofessionals to support students.

Man accused of child abuse bound over to circuit court

BRANDON HUBBARD

Cronk

A Boyne City man is headed to the 33rd Circuit Court in Charlevoix County on charges of abusing his infant daughter.

Steven Cronk, 27, of Boyne City, waived a preliminary examination Tuesday in 90th District Court in Charlevoix and will proceed to circuit court charged with second degree child abuse for allegedly causing physical harm to a 3-month-old child at his home in Boyne City.

The charge, carrying a maximum 10 years in prison, alleges the child was caused physical injury by shaking and/or leaving the infant unattended.

The affidavit cites that at [illegible]:33 p.m. July 11, 2013, the Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet 9-1-1 Central Dispatch received a call requesting an ambulance at 118 W. Water St. in Boyne City for an infant not breathing.

When paramedics responded, they found the baby in distress and struggling to breath. The child was taken to McLaren Northern Michigan hospital in Petoskey before being airlifted to DeVos Children's Hospital in Grand Rapids.

Doctors in Grand Rapids diagnosed the victim with having bleeding in the retinas and brain, a broken right arm, a broken right leg and a possible break in the left leg, among other injuries.

A second doctor at the hospital opined in that the injuries are consistent with shaking trauma and abuse. At the time of the diagnosis, it was determined the baby would not survive if removed from a ventilator.

"I believe it is much more likely that Brooke's (brain injury) is the result of abusive head trauma, rather than a suffocation event with her sister as it has been described by dad," Dr. Sarah J. Brown, a pediatrician at DeVos stated in a July 15 report. "I believe Brooke was abusively head injured on the afternoon of July 12."

The opinion also suggests the fracture to the humerus may have been caused by a jerking or twisting motion to the forearm or hand, as was the fracture to the femur.

The child was released July 30 to a maternal grandmother.

In the police report, Cronk said he left the baby sleeping to take a shower for "no more than 10 minutes" and returned to find another young child in the home in a baby bouncer on top of the child.

Cronk then, in the report, says he "shook her to revive her" but "not too hard."

Later he told police he left the apartment briefly to go to a dryer and spoke briefly to a friend before returning.

Cronk then texted and called the mother, before she returned home to find the baby having difficulty breathing and called 9-1-1, according to the affidavit.

A date has not been set for the circuit court.

Bond was previously set at $1,000 and posted.

Booth

A preliminary examination on attempted murder charges for a Charlevoix woman who allegedly stabbed another woman was postponed Tuesday afternoon in 90th District Court.

Judge James Erhan granted the defense a delay Tuesday to allow Kaylee Booth to undergo a competency exam to review her mental state before the case proceeds.

Booth, 31, is charged with assault with the intent to murder for allegedly stabbing a 28-year-old Charlevoix woman, Justine Marie Murray, five times Sept. 29.

The defendant, who remains in Charlevoix County Jail custody, sat quietly awaiting the proceedings Tuesday and conferring with her counsel Jody Doak and Christopher Turkelson.

The judge raised Booth's bond Oct. 1 from $50,000 to $100,000.

According to the police affidavit, Booth allegedly stabbed the victim once to the left side of the chest and the upper left torso, twice in the upper left arm and once to the left hip, in the early evening Sept. 29 at 704 State St. in Charlevoix.

The charge of assault with the intent to murder carries a maximum punishment of life in prison.

When asked at the crime scene by police if Booth wanted an attorney, according to the report, Booth is quoted as saying: "I think so, I did something pretty serious."

The case is pending the competency examination submission from the defense before new dates will be scheduled.

Clerk's race has many twists

STEVE ZUCKER

Sullivan

Ochs

Races for the office of Charlevoix City Clerk seldom have much ado about them, but this year there are many interesting twists in a race that pits a candidate who recently resigned from the same post against another who may not assume the post, should he win the election.

In the Tuesday, Nov. 5, Charlevoix City Clerk race Larry Sullivan will face Carol Ochs, who is running as a write-in candidate.

Sullivan, who also is a Charlevoix County Commissioner, filed in May to run for the post after then-city clerk Ochs announced that she would not be seeking re-election in November. Ochs made her announcement the day after three challengers were successful in unseating three then-city council members in a recall election. At the time, she said she chose not to seek re-election because she viewed the outcome of the recall election as a vote of no-confidence on her by the community, because much of the recall effort centered around claims that a city council meeting in August 2012 was conducted in violation of the Open Meetings Act. Ochs disputed this claim. Then, about a month later, Ochs resigned from the city clerk's office with about six months remaining in her current term. At the time she made the announcement, Ochs explained her resignation saying, "My competency has publicly been brought into question. Clearly people feel they can do my job better than I can. It's not worth the fight."

She said later she also felt she needed a break from the job and, because hers was an elected position without a leave-of-absence available, she felt the only way she could get her needed break was to resign.

In September, Ochs decided to throw her hat back into the ring to get her old job back amid concerns over whether Sullivan can legally be both a county commissioner and the city clerk at the same time.

Attorneys for the city and the county recently issued a joint opinion asserting their belief that if Sullivan is success-

County board approves apportionment report

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners voted to approve the apportionment report for 2013 at its regular meeting Wednesday.

An apportionment report determines the amount of money to be raised for county purposes, according to Charlevoix County's website.

Jeff Grimm, assistant equalization director for the county, presented the 2013 apportionment report to the board. He noted that the county's dropping of taxable value, which had been declining since 2008, may be "softening."

"Whether it's going to become stable or increase, we haven't been able to tell yet," said Grimm.

Eveline Township saw the biggest hit in taxable value this year. That's because the township hadn't seen many sales over the last few years — except in the last year and a half.

"So they did finally see some of that reduction. Whereas some of the other townships saw it gradually over the previous years, it kind of hit Eveline townships harder this year," said Grimm. "So they did see a significant decrease in taxable value — more so than some of the other townships."

The total taxes able to be levied on Charlevoix County townships in 2013 was $50,152,722. The total Charlevoix County cities and villages paid $21,852,839. In total, taxes paid in Charlevoix County were $72,005,561 — a reduction of a little more than 2 percent from 2012.

The 2013 apportionment report is available in the Charlevoix County clerk's office.

Fall shrub colors

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

When we think of fall color, attention is usually focused on the majestic maples and oaks. My first choice in the fall color competition is smaller and brighter. Maybe I just like to root for the underdog, or in this case the underbrush.

My all time favorite fall color comes from a shrub with the exuberant common name wahoo. Wahoo comes from a Dakota word meaning arrow wood, probably because of its long, straight branches. It is also called burning bush, by reason of its brilliant autumn hues. Its formal, Latin name is Euonymus, and this time of year it can be spotted from a quarter mile away in the woods by its remarkable color.

Most of the Euonymus in this part of Michigan grow in yards and hedges, and is probably not even native to Michigan or even North America, although in the southern part of the state we can find at least one form of burning bush dramatically obvious this time of year in damp forests.

Worldwide there are more than 150 different kinds of Euonymus, and like most of the world's obvious plants they have long been used medically. You won't likely find them in your local pharmacy, but in earlier years and in many places the plants have been used to treat everything from dandruff to uterine prolapse. Before there were pharmaceutical companies and drug stores, people used whatever was at hand. Our local Euonymus is mildly toxic, and making tea from the leaves or bark is not recommended.

Burning bush has bright, red berries in addition to the brilliant leaves. The berries persist long after the leaves have fallen, and provide food for winter birds. The birds seem not to be bothered by the toxicity of the berries. The sight this time of year of one of our local cardinals nipping at the bright, red berries in the midst of the brilliant leaves is a vision worth pursuing.

If you see an 8-foot-tall shrub that looks like it is in flames, don't call the fire department. Just yell "wahoo" and enjoy the view. There are at least a few hedges of them in Charlevoix, and maybe a rare one out in our forests.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds a master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

Endorsement for coming city election

Editor:

Voting Tuesday, Nov. 5, is fast approaching and I would like to remind fellow residents that Dr. Jeffrey Porter, Leon Perron and Shirley Gibson all continue to need your vote. With the recalled council members Pieba and Kusina continuing to spread half-truths and inaccurate information, I know voters understand how Charlevoix benefits with truthful and transparent city council members like Jeff, Shirley and Leon. Remember, the fireplace issue is still very much in the hearts and minds of the recalled council members. Let's keep Charlevoix on track. Vote (even absentee if you are out-of-town) because your voice is heard with Jeffrey Porter, Leon Perron and Shirley Gibson as your representative.

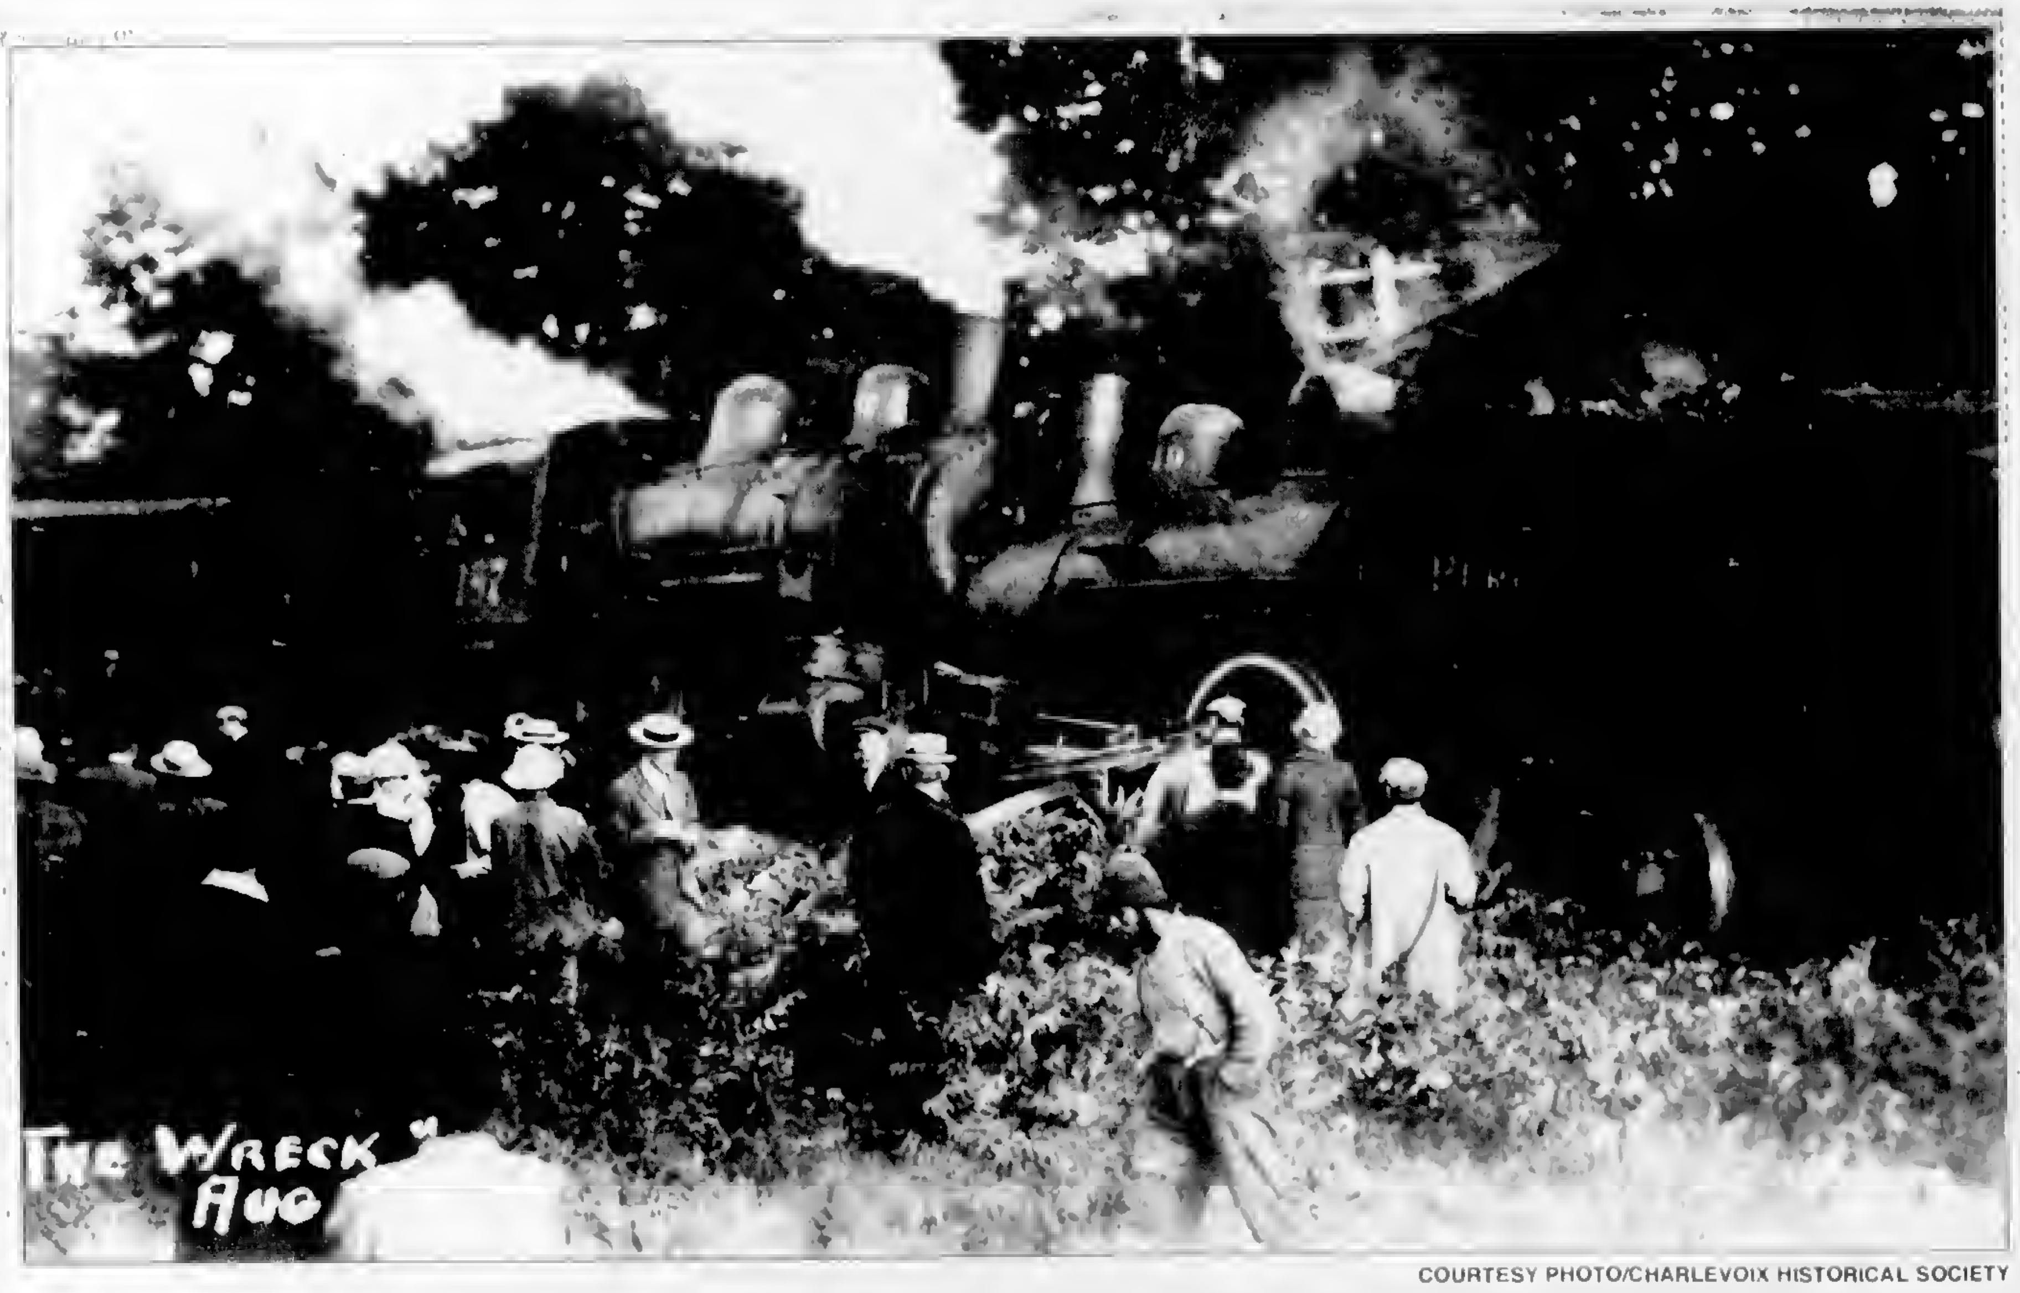
CHARLEVOIX

LOOKING BACK…



COURTESY PHOTO/CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

On Friday, Aug. 23, 1912, a Pere Marquette passenger train left Petoskey at 2:40 p.m. heading south. About six miles northeast of Charlevoix it collided head-on with a local train called the "Dummy" which had slowed to go onto a siding, the standard procedure to let the faster train by. It was later discovered that the regular, older crew on the passenger train had been replaced by inexperienced men who had little if any knowledge of the fact they were supposed to slow down also at this point to make sure the Dummy was safely to one side. This trip was the first time for the engineer and fireman, who were not informed of the switching schedule, and just 10 days for the conductor. They were going too fast and saw the Dummy directly ahead of them only at the last instant. The Charlevoix Courier said that the Pere Marquette, " ... by placing an incompetent crew in charge of a through train, have shown an utter disregard for the safety and welfare of their patrons. It is needless to add that had any one of the former conductors been in charge ... this collision would never have happened ... this wreck is the worst one that has ever occurred on the north end, and no reasonable excuse or explanation can be made to the public for its happening ... except gross carelessness." Fourteen were injured, some seriously, but fortunately no one was killed. The photo was taken by Charlevoix's builder in stone Earl Young.

Kiersten's Ride raises more than $7,000 for suicide prevention

STAFF REPORT

The inaugural Kiersten's Ride event, a 12-mile horse ride in August planned in memory of the late Kiersten Clavier, raised more than $7,000 for North Country Community Mental Health suicide prevention programs in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

The Clavier family and friends hosted the event in memory of Kiersten Clavier, who died last summer at 17 years old. She was the daughter of David and Lisa Clavier, of East Jordan. The family hopes Kiersten's Ride will become an annual, weekend-long event.

"Donations will be devoted to local mental health awareness initiatives. Funds will support programming developed through our organization and a collaborative suicide prevention workgroup facilitated by the Human Services Coordinating Body of Charlevoix and Emmet counties," said Alexis Kaczynski, director of the mental health agency.

North Country Community Mental Health provides behavioral health services to residents of six Northern Michigan counties and served more than 4,000 people last year, including 845 children. More information about the mental health agency can be found at www.norcocmh.org online.

Money raised will be used for suicide prevention activities in the area.

Milagros: Circle of Arts issues call for entries

The Charlevoix Circle of Arts seeks entries for its upcoming all media exhibit, Milagros.

Milagros opens Dec. 6, and will be on display through Jan. 12. Entries are due by Tuesday, Nov. 19.

Milagros, small metal figures used to thank Christian saints for fulfilling requests in time of need, accompanied the Spanish as they arrived in the Americas. The custom continues to be a part of folk culture throughout rural areas of Spain as well as in Central and South American and parts of North America. In Spanish, the word milagro literally means miracle or surprise.

The featured exhibit for this show is a collection created by members of the Fiber Artists Coalition that celebrate milagros, the small miracles and joyful surprises in everyday life. Artists are invited to submit artwork that reflects this theme for consideration.

There is no fee to enter, and entry is by digital images only. Charlevoix Circle of Arts members may submit up to five entries and nonmembers may submit two.

The exhibition is open to all media and will be curated by the Charlevoix Circle of Arts exhibition committee.

Artists should submit one overall image for each piece of artwork. Images must accurately reflect the artwork being submitted. Accepted artwork that does not match the juried image will not be included in the show. For entry tips, send an email to kathie@kathiebriggs.com.

Send images as an attachment to kathie@kathiebriggs.com or copy them to a CD and deliver it to Circle of Arts by the Nov. 19 deadline.

Artists are responsible for the delivery and pick-up of their work. Work must be delivered to the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, 109 Clinton St., by Dec. 2. Exact days and times for delivery will be sent with acceptance letter. Pick up of unsold work is Jan. 13-14.

Orchestra presents 'Moments of Change'

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra Sunday Series will present "Moments of Change — From the Baroque to the Classic," featuring the music of Carl Philipp Emanuel Bach, Niccolo Jommelli and Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart. The concert will take place at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 3, at Castle Farms in Charlevoix.

Castle Farms will conduct a guided tour starting at 2:30 p.m. for $10 per person. For tour information, go to www.castlefarms.com or call Castle Farms at (231) 237-0884.

The music program, like all Sunday Series programs, is presented free of charge, thanks to the support of the Roger and Peggy Dicken Schwer Fund, administered by the Petoskey/Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation.

Members of the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra, Bonnietta Benn, principal flute; Paul Sonner, concertmaster; John Van Patten, principal second violin; Margaret Beck, principal viola; Marga Eickholt, principal cello; and harpsichordist, Robert Pattengale, will join soprano Amy Joy Cross in this afternoon performance, celebrating moments of change.

Bach's "Trio Sonata in B-flat Major" represents the culmination of the Baroque style. Jommelli's cantata "La Pesca" illustrates the mid-18th century shift away from earlier music, and the Flute Quartet, K. 285 by Mozart is an example of the classical style which evolved from the mid-century musical approach.

Dr. William Cameron, 84

William Jourden Cameron, M.D., 84, Emeritus Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology at The University of Kansas Medical School, died of congestive heart failure Oct. 5 in his home on Lake Charlevoix, Mich.

Dr. Cameron was born in Lansing, Mich., to Verta and William Cameron. He was a graduate of Michigan State University and earned his medical degree from the University of Michigan in 1954. Following his internship at St. Anthony Hospital, Denver, Dr. Cameron spent a year in general practice at the Burns Clinic in Petoskey. He then served two years as captain in the U.S. Air Force.

In 1958, Dr. Cameron began a four-year residency in obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Kansas Medical Center and upon completion, joined the teaching staff at that institution. He progressed from assistant professor to associate professor to full professor. He was an assistant dean at the medical school and a vice chairman of the Ob-Gyn department. When he retired in 1995, he had been appointed emeritus professor.

Dr. Cameron was board certified in Ob-Gyn in 1965. He was chairman of the Kansas section of the American College of Ob-Gyn from 1971-74. He was a member of dozens of medical organizations, including the AMA and the American Fertility Society.

Dr. Cameron delivered thousands of babies during his career, but he was particularly recognized as an expert in treating infertility cases. He also was active in establishing the first invitro fertilization program in the Midwest. Early in his years at KU, he was first in the area to transfuse blood in utero to an at-risk fetus, baby of an RH negative mother.

He was a much-appreciated public speaker and appeared on medical programs throughout the United States and internationally. His medical articles were published throughout the country.

Dr. Cameron had a number of favorite pastimes, notably fishing, skiing, reading and watching televised sports. He devoted many hours to fishing Lake Charlevoix, Lake Michigan and at special sites in Alaska, Montana and Canada. He was proud to have skied most of the popular areas in the United States, but in Europe as well.

In retirement, Dr. Cameron honed his kitchen skills and emerged an innovative and talented family chef.

Friends and neighbors of Dr. Cameron recall his devotion to his dogs. The Cameron family has owned Labrador retrievers for more than 50 years. Nick, a black Lab, and Carly, a yellow, remain with his family.

Surviving Dr. Cameron are his wife of 59 years, Monsie (Hoedl); son, W. Bruce Cameron (Cathryn) of Los Angeles, Calif.; daughters, Amy Cameron of Kansas City, and Julie Cameron, M.D. (Ray Varuolo) of Pittsburgh, Pa.; four grandchildren, Georgia Lee Murdoch (Chris), Chelsea Hatch (James), W. Chase and W. Gage Cameron; two great-grandchildren, Eloise Jourden Murdoch and Gordon Bruce Hatch.

Bill Cameron will be remembered by family, friends and colleagues for his unique sense of humor and forthright personality.

A memorial is planned for summer 2014 on Lake Charlevoix. Details will follow.

Those who wish to donate in Dr. Cameron's name, may send inquiring emails to lifeisbetterrescue@gmail.com, an animal rescue shelter his granddaughter Georgia operates in Denver, or to any dog charity.

Next Sunday event planned to celebrate adoption

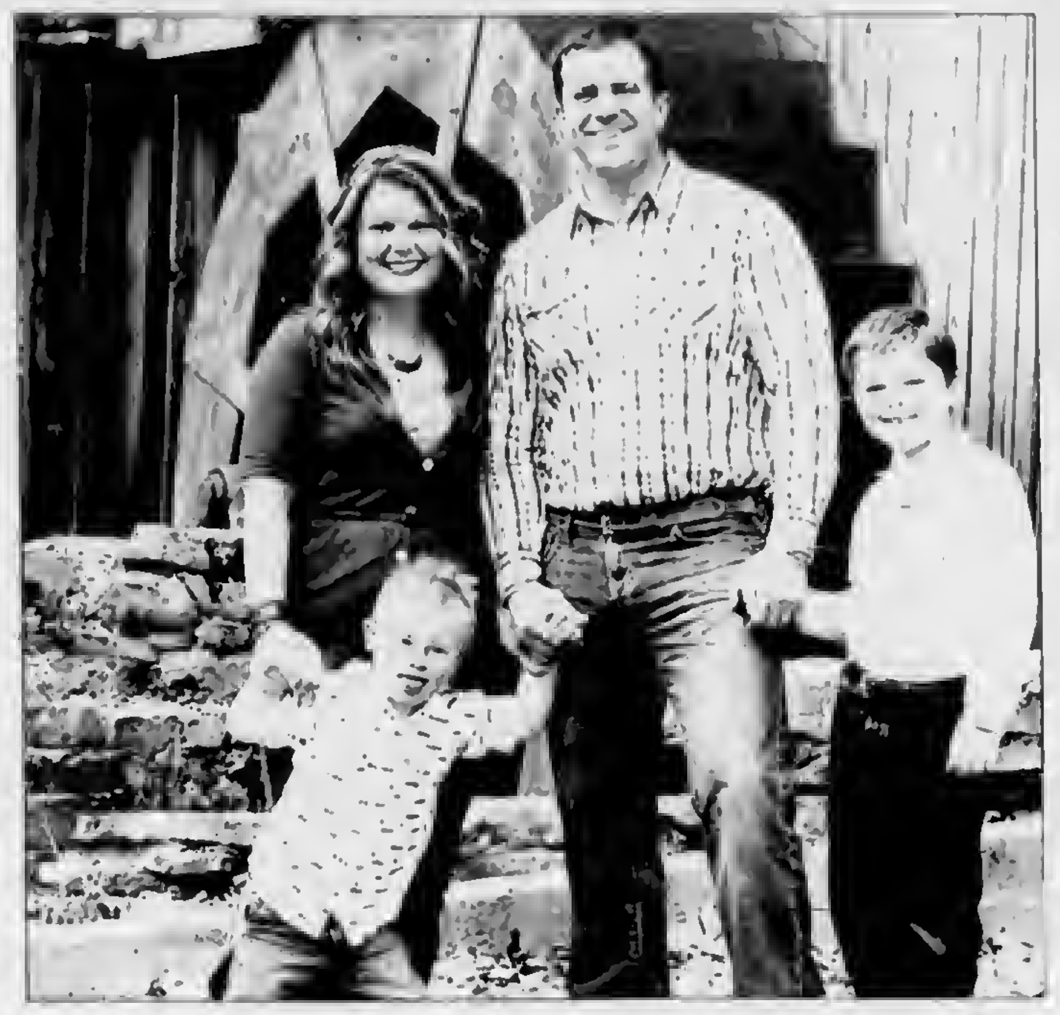
ANNE KELLY

This year, the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix will feature a guest speaker to highlight the observation of Orphan Sunday, a worldwide event which is observed in 52 countries around the globe. Tesney Davis, with Project Hopeful, will speak at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, Nov. 3, at Charlevoix High School's auditorium. This will take the place of the regular Community Reformed Church's Sunday worship service. All are invited to attend.

Jan Biddick Vandenbrink, a Petoskey resident and Community Reformed Church member, has been for the past five years the church's resource coordinator for the Christian Alliance for Orphans.

"I heard Tesney speak at the Together for Adoption conference in Atlanta, Georgia, last fall," Vandenbrink said. "I was so moved by her compelling story."

The church contacted Davis at the end of August and lined her up as the Orphan Sunday speaker. Following the service, information will be offered from the following agencies: Project Hopeful, Michigan Department of Human Services, Bethany Christian Services, and FACES, the orphan ministry of the Community Reformed Church that provides volunteer respite care and support for foster and adoptive parents.



COURTESY PHOTO

Davis will share her family's adoption story and hopefully shed light on the challenge and joy of adopting a disabled child. The program is especially meaningful for anyone who has interest in obtaining information about adoption or foster care, international or domestic.

"Tesney speaks to the international adoption of special needs children," Vandenbrink said. "But, of course we can't forget that there are over 100,000 children languishing in the United States foster care program and there is no cost for domestic adoption out of foster care."

Davis is an advocate for orphans with special needs. She holds a bachelor's degree in early childhood special education from the University of Alabama and another advanced degree. During her professional career, she worked as a therapist for children, young adults and families. She also served as an adjunct instructor for the university's program at the University of Alabama. Together with her husband, Greg, Davis shares a passion for service and orphan care.

Greg and Tesney married 13 years ago and have two 7-year-old boys. Clayton is their biological son, and they adopted Kirill from Russia a little more than two years ago. It is Kirill's heart-warming and often heart-wrenching adoption story Davis will share on Nov. 3.

The odyssey began two and a half years ago when the Davises began their adoption journey for a child with Down syndrome. When the couple made an inquiry to an international adoption advocacy group for children with special needs, they faced what felt like an overwhelming task.

"There were so many, and we would only be choosing one," Davis recalls.

The search led them to a Russian child, Sergey, who later was pre-emptively adopted by a member of the child's extended biological family. The Davises were crushed and began their search anew.

"Shortly after losing Sergey, we received a referral with a grainy photo of a 4-year-old boy wearing pink glasses," Davis said.

With guarded emotions this time, they proceeded with the delicate process of international adoption within a country — Russia — that disregards the dignity of disabled children. According to Davis, most disabled babies in Russia are institutionalized, including children born with Down syndrome. They receive minimal care and often die, lonely and neglected. The Davises feel the adoption process and the joyful bringing home of their new son Kirill was a miracle. There were many court procedures and delays and even a signing of a treaty between Russia and the United States along the way.

"At one point we were told that we could adopt any typical child in the system, just not one with Down syndrome," Davis said.

The decision of a former regional court finally was overturned by the Supreme Court of Russia, and the Davises felt flooded with joy and gratefulness.

"We have been home a little over two years with our son," Davis recently wrote. "I still get overwhelmed with emotions when I think about the miracle God performed. I'm so thankful we let God write the story," she said of their adoptive journey. "It's so much better than anything we could have dreamed up on our own."

BEMIS

fessional development program Leadership Charlevoix County is a new pinnacle for not only Charlevoix, but the entire county. It's a partnership among all the chambers — those based in Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and Beaver Island — designed to engage up-and-coming local professionals to take on more active roles throughout the community, whether that be in government, social or nonprofit situations.

"We worked on that for years before we got it together," Bemis said.

The idea came from a discussion about how many people actually serve in leadership roles throughout the community.

"Often we see the same people. We also saw a lack of succession planning. So we thought, 'What are we doing to groom new leaders?'" Bemis said.

The program is in its third year after successfully graduating classes in 2012 and again in the spring this year, including group community service projects to benefit others.

"It's a cooperative effort of the chambers, but Erin really was the driving force behind getting it started," said Jim Baumann, executive director at Boyne Area Chamber of Commerce. "That's certainly a very big legacy. She did some great things."

Finally, Bemis said that although she's done with her public role at the chamber, the community may one day see her in a public role again. In fact, she's been asked about running for office in the past.

"At this point, I do not (have political aspirations), but I've learned to never say never," she said.

over the quality of the services provided.

"Under the newly presented facts, if the same person was serving as the City Clerk while also serving as a County Commissioner, that person would have simultaneous, but conflicting duties of protecting the interests of the City and the County," the attorneys write.

Although city officials had originally requested an opinion on the matter from the Michigan Attorney General's office, Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel said city and county officials, at this point, are not expecting the attorney general's office to weigh in on the matter. Straebel said his understanding is that Young had been in communication with the attorney general's office and that representatives from the office had said the matter would best be first addressed at the local level.

Graham and Young do cite several prior attorney general opinions in their own opinion.

When contacted by the News-Review Friday, Sullivan said he had heard of the opinion, but had not yet had opportunity to read it.

Sullivan said he had two attorneys research the matter before he filed and they found no incompatibilities. He said his initial thought is that, since his name is already on the ballot for the Nov. 5 election, he will continue his candidacy while he has the legal issues reviewed further.

He noted that if he were to win the election and the opinion written by Graham and Young stands up, he will have to make a decision on which office to retain by Jan. 1.

Sullivan is the only candidate whose name will appear on the ballot, however, former city clerk Carol Ochs recently filed to run against Sullivan for the post as a write-in candidate.

Ochs cited the uncertainty about incompatible offices issue as one of the driving forces behind write-in candidacy bid.

Both the Bach and the Mozart works are part of the standard chamber ensemble repertoire, while Jommelli's cantata has not been performed since the 18th century. Jommelli was an Italian opera composer whose works were highly regarded throughout the courts and opera houses of Europe during the 1740s and 50s. Jommelli was a friend and colleague of the Italian librettist, Pietro Metastasio, and it is Metastasio's poem, "La Pesca," that he set to music. The cantata was transcribed from microfilm obtained from the Music Conservatory of Naples by Pattengale.

captain in the U.S. Army, was a past president of the Vacationland Dental Society and is a member of Christ Episcopal Church.

Porter said he is seeking re-election to the 1st Ward seat because, "Six months has not [illegible] enough time to right the [illegible] of state. That's why I'm seeking the upcoming two-[illegible] term. The city should be moving in a new direction. [illegible] that is built on economic development, growth that respects and reflects the important resort community that Charlevoix represents."

On the topic of the most important issues facing the city, Porter responded, "Our current challenge is new job creation, and it's the lack of those skilled jobs that has prevented young workers from entering the local workforce. This has led to the decline in the school population. But our most important issue is establishing a communal sense of what Charlevoix is to be in the future, and designing a plan to carry out this vision."

Regarding what the city does well and what could be done better, Porter said, "The city's staff in Charlevoix is skilled and hard working. We continue to improve our infrastructure while maintaining a balanced budget. The city has learned important lessons from the recent fireplace debacle and recall election. The most important lesson; carefully listening to and encouraging citizen input on major issues."

Asked what qualities he possesses that make him a good candidate for the city council, Porter responded, "I am a careful listener. I understand and appreciate all segments of the community. I am a prolific reader. Over the years I have acquired leadership skills necessary to serve the citizens of Charlevoix in this important elected position."

— Challenger Dennis Kusina, 64, is a retired insurance agent who has a bachelor's degree from Northern Michigan University in marketing.

Kusina served on the city council from 2007 until May of 2013. He has also served on the city's planning commission, downtown development authority board, and board of review. He has also served as treasurer on the Camp Daggett board and is a Eucharistic minister at St. Mary's Church.

Kusina said he is seeking election again to the 1st Ward city council seat because he wants to continue the work on the council in which he was involved prior to the recall election. "I want to see the city of Charlevoix move forward in growing the economy of our city in a fiscally responsible manner."

On the topic of what the most important issues facing the city are, Kusina responded, "The most important issues facing the city are continuing to provide all the services the city does in a shrinking property tax dollar environment and doing what is needed to help attract business and industry to our town."

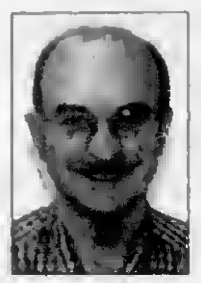
Regarding what the city does well and/or can do better, Kusina said, "The city is doing a great job in balancing its budget and still providing the expected service this community desires. I do not know if it can be done better, but we need to do all we can to grow the business and industry in our town."

Asked what qualities he possesses that make him a good candidate for the city council, Kusina responded, "I am a fiscal conservative. I am pro-chamber of commerce and pro-downtown development authority. I am open minded when it comes to new ideas."

2nd Ward

In the 2nd Ward Leon Perron is running unopposed for the seat that is currently held by Gabe Campbell. Campbell successfully unseated former council member Bryan Vollmer in the May recall election. Campbell chose not to seek re-election this November. The only way Perron would face an opponent would be if someone filed a write-in candidate declaration by 4 p.m. Friday, Oct. 25.

Perron, 60, is the owner of Celeste Murdick's Fudge in downtown Charlevoix. He previously ran an unsuccessful write-in candidate campaign for a 2nd Ward council seat in last year's election.



Perron

Perron said he's running for council because, "As a lifetime resident of Charlevoix, I feel it is time for me to become more involved in the community. I look forward to the challenges and rewards of serving my fellow citizens and representing my neighbors in the 2nd Ward."

Perron listed financial stability, keeping taxes low and the need to keep a close eye on the upcoming state-mandated wastewater treatment overhaul as key issues the city is facing.

He also believes the city should continue with its tradition of doing all it can to preserve and maintain its parks and beaches.

Perron said his life experiences, include four years in the U.S. Army, 20 years in manufacturing and 13 years as a small business owner have helped him to develop good listening skills. "I realize many voices often are not singing the same tune, but I guarantee they will be heard."

3rd Ward

In the 3rd Ward, incumbent Shirley Gibson is running against challenger Jill Picha in the second of the two recall election rematches.

— Incumbent Shirley Gibson, 66, is retired and holds an associate degree in applied science. Prior to being elected to the council in May, Gibson previously served on the city council from 2001-08 and served on the city's planning commission from 1995-2000. She has also served on the city's airport advisory committee and the historic preservation committee.

On the topic of why she chose to seek re-election, Gibson responded, "As the incumbent for a six-month term, I am now seeking the full two-year term which is necessary to accomplish our goals and ideas for the city with a common sense approach."

Regarding what she sees as the most important issues facing the city, Gibson said, "To look at ways to address the issue of high taxes in the business district, be an active partner with business and other agencies to promote and sustain our resort community, and manage our financial resources to maintain efficiency."

Gibson

On the question of what she believes the city is doing well and/or can do better, Gibson responded, "Charlevoix is fortunate to have the professional hardworking staff and employees that we have. During the last six months, the city has moved forward and learned how important it is to listen to residents and improving our continued effort to protect our parks and open spaces."

Asked what qualities she possesses that make her a good candidate for the city council, Gibson responded, "I will listen to my constituents, take their calls and treat everyone with respect, follow the rules, and move the city forward with common sense and a positive attitude."

Picha

— Challenger Jill Picha, 75, is retired and is a high school graduate with some college course credits. She previously served on the city council from 2007 until May of 2013.

Picha has served on the city's airport terminal ad-hoc committee, airport design and development committee, airport policy advisory committee and airport technical committee. She served as the city's deputy mayor from 2009-13 and served in various capacities in the Michigan Municipal League District 6. She is a member of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church where she serves as the chairman of the financial board.

Picha said she's chosen to seek election to the city council again, "Because of my concern for the city, the 3rd Ward in particular and to keep Charlevoix in its strong financial position.

Picha said the issues she views as most important to the city are, "To stay the course of the city's long-range infrastructure plan, and to continue to upgrade the airport as another entrance to the city."

She also said the city should continue to invite business and industry by working with the chamber and downtown development authority and that it should continue approving most tax abatement requests.

Asked what qualities she possesses that make her a good candidate for the city council, Picha responded, "I am honest and open-minded and I vote in the best interest of the community, not for special interest groups or people."

CLERK

ful in the election, he would have to choose between being a county commissioner or city clerk. That's because the attorneys believe the two offices are "incompatible" under state law and therefore may not be occupied by the same person at the same time (See related story on the front page).

Ochs, who had been the city clerk for nine years prior to her resignation in June, told the Courier recently she decided to mount a write-in campaign not because she has an issue with Sullivan's competency to do the job, but because several people asked her to and because she wanted the voters to have a choice at the polls for someone not facing uncertainty in assuming the post, if elected.

Sullivan, 57, retired last year after serving 31 years as the Charlevoix County planning director. He has a bachelor's degree in urban planning from Michigan State University and was elected in November last year to his current office as Charlevoix County commissioner.

Sullivan is a member of the Knights of Columbus, Charlevoix Lions Club, an alternate member of the Charlevoix Zoning Board of Appeals, a member of the city's historic district commission and formerly was president of the St. Mary's School Board and has coached soccer and a girls recreation league basketball team.

He said he chose to run for the position because no one filed to run for the post as the filing deadline approached and he felt it was important to have a qualified person on the ballot.

Sullivan said he is qualified for the clerk's position because he's knowledgeable in taking minutes, is well-versed in the Michigan Open Meetings Act and the Freedom of Information Act, all of which are key elements to the clerk's position.

He conceded that he is not currently familiar with all facets of running elections, but said he would seek training in that area and use current city staff to assist him.

He added that his view of the clerk's position, although an elected one, is to serve specific administrative functions of the city.

"I believe the function of the city clerk at city council meetings is to attend the meetings, take minutes, and respond to questions from the mayor and city council members, not provide his or her opinion, unless the mayor or council seeks it. The clerk, while elected by all of the residents of the city of Charlevoix, is elected to be the clerk, not a councilperson."

Ochs did not respond to several requests from the Courier to complete a candidate profile form, which is why some of her background information is absent from this report.

Manager never missed a game in three years

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

As is customary, Charlevoix High School recognized the senior football players and their parents at the last home football game on Saturday. Proudly standing with the team, honoring his parents, dad with a handshake, mom with a carnation, was Evan Krueger, the team's manager.

"Evan has been incredibly reliable as a team manager. He hasn't missed a game in three years. He is very loyal to the football program," said Suzanne Klinger, Charlevoix High School principal.

Evan, who was unable to play football because of a brain tumor and shunt that he has, loves the sport, so when he started at Charlevoix High School as a sophomore, he took on the responsibilities of team manager. This means he supports the players in any way he can. He carries their water, towels and cheers them on.

He was diagnosed with a disease called neurofibromatosis, a genetic neurological disease that causes tumors to grow in the body, when he was 2 years old. He underwent chemotherapy to stop the tumor's growth and had a shunt implanted to drain the fluid off his brain. At the time the magnetic resonance imaging of his brain showed the tumor was too advanced to be removed.

"The doctors said it has tentacles spreading all over the place and to try to remove it would have killed him," said his mother, Sonya Krueger of Petoskey.

Now, 16 years later, Evan said he still gets headaches, and he thinks and processes things more slowly than other kids.

"Sometimes it's hard to comprehend things," he said. "It takes longer for me to do some things than it takes normal kids."

Evan was proud to recognize his mother's support with the carnation.

"I was glad my mom was there, so I could thank her for her support," he said.

Evan lives in Charlevoix with his father, Dave Krueger.

"It means a lot to me to be part of the team. It's bonding with friends. Most of my friends are football players," Evan said. "They like having me there. I've heard them say it."

After completing Charlevoix High, Evan plans to attend Michigan Career Technical Institute in Kalamazoo, where he will pursue a career in culinary arts. He participated in the hospitality program at Boyne City High School last year, and found he really enjoys working with food.

"I want to thank my mom and dad, my teachers and everyone who has supported me throughout my life, since I was diagnosed," Evan said.

VARSITY VOLLEYBALL

Rayders take second at Lake Michigan tournament

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

BOYNE CITY — The Charlevoix Rayders placed runner-up in the first-ever Lake Michigan Conference volleyball tournament Saturday at the Boyne City High School gym.

The Rayders finished with a 4-2 record on the day as they opened with a 25-6, 25-23 win over East Jordan; topped Kalkaska, 25-14, 25-17; and then ended pool play with a 25-22, 21-25, 15-9 loss to Traverse City St. Francis.

In bracket play, the Rayders topped Harbor Springs, 25-13, 25-14; and in the semifinals topped host Boyne City, 25-18, 25-23, to advance to the finals against St. Francis.

In the final, St. Francis topped the Rayders, 25-20, 25-9, to earn the tournament crown.

"The girls played so hard and at the end of they day probably had mixed feelings of being proud of their team and disappointed they didn't complete their goal for the league tournament," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "I applaud the team and the way they played. We took third in the regular season and second at the tournament."

For the Rayders, Madeline Boss finished with a strong offensive performance on the day as she had 73 kills, 28 digs, nine aces and six blocks, while Jennaca Holecheck added 37 kills, 28 digs, 19 blocks, six assists and four aces.

Also for the Rayders, Olivia Storm had 59 assists and was 33-of-34 serving, while Gloria Greene had 51 assists, was 30-of-31 serving and added seven digs and two blocks. Kelsey Pischner had 11 kills, four digs and three blocks, while Emily Zabowa had 10 blocks, six assists and five kills.

Madi Carey added seven kills and two blocks, while Alexis Trifelner had 18 digs and three aces, Yogi Hang added 14 digs and eight aces and Kylee Scholten had four kills.

Host Boyne City finished with a 4-1 record on the day as they went 3-0 in pool play as they defeated Harbor Springs, 25-15, 25-20; topped Grayling, 25-20, 25-22; and then defeated Elk Rapids, 25-13, 25-18.

In bracket play, the Ramblers defeated Kalkaska, 25-12, 25-11, before falling to Charlevoix, 25-18, 25-23, in the semifinals.

"Today was a disappointing day for us," Boyne City coach Casie Parker said. "We went undefeated in pool play and then won the first round of bracket play. In the second round of bracket play we played Charlevoix and they (Charlevoix) played very well and looked great.

"It was disappointing losing to them," Parker added. "But you can't take anything away from them, they deserved the win."

For the Ramblers, 38-11-3 overall, Heather Nichols had 90 assists and 13 aces, while Kylie Hicks added 50 kills, 44 digs and seven blocks.

Also for Boyne City, Paige Hornbeck had 25 kills and eight aces, while Mallory Karaszewski added 18 kills and Megan Rushlow had 35 digs and nine aces.

Erin Baker had 64 digs, while Hannah Brilinski was 100 percent serving.

SOCCER

Rayders fall to Bellaire in district final

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

HARBOR SPRINGS — A success doesn't always have to come in the form of a win.

When looking at the bigger picture of the Charlevoix soccer team's 2013 season, a success was exactly what it was, even with a loss in their Division IV district final to Bellaire on Friday.

"We are extremely happy with the way our entire season played out," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "We didn't expect for our regular season to go 14-3. That right there is a huge accomplishment as it is."

The Rayders would lose 3-2 to the Eagles in Harbor Springs, ending their season on a cold, rain-soaked night at Ottawa Stadium.

"The guys, they played their hearts out, they left it all on the field," Boss added. "You can't win every game. Bellaire, they're a solid team. They're very skilled, they've got a lot of big guys, a very strong core of guys. They deserved the district title."

Bellaire, 22-1 overall, took an early 2-0 lead to the half, scoring goals at the 24 minute and 16 minute mark of the first half.

DREW KOCHANNY/NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

The Eagles would then push their lead to 3-0 with a second half goal 10 minutes into the second. The Rayders, however, wouldn't pack it in from there.

Charlevoix would score a goal off the leg of Brendan Britt with just over 24 minutes left in the contest, making it a 3-1 game.

With just under 12 minutes left to play, freshman Christian Maiye would make it a 3-2 game as the Rayders continued to inch their way back.

"Once you get the first goal, that's always huge. That's going to start momentum going your way," Boss said. "Then we got that second goal to make it a 3-2 game and our guys, they were playing well. Started playing the way we played all season."

Time would run out on the Rayders, however, as Bellaire, ranked No. 10 in the state in Division IV, would take the game and the district crown with solid defensive play down the stretch.

Boss was proud of the play of seniors Justin Pearl and Nick Snabes, but knows with 10 freshmen on the team, many of them contributors, the Rayders are set up to be an exciting team for the next few years.

"They had amazing careers here, saw it through the thick and thin," Boss said of Pearl and Snabes. "We have at least 10 freshmen on the team and they're a great group of freshmen, so the future is definitely looking bright here."

POP WARNER

Football teams finish out season

The Charlevoix Raydet Pop Warner Football teams took to the gridiron for the last time this season this past Saturday.

The Charlevoix Midget division team lost a tight contest against the Petoskey Wildcats, 8-0 in Petoskey. Coaches said the game was evenly matched, but Petoskey made one more play than the Rayders. Offensively, the Rayders were led by the running of Cole Wright and Tyler Ostrunt, who picked up tough yards in sloppy conditions.

Coaches credit the line play of Owen Pop, Eric Staph, Seth Roeth and Michael Pearsall, who opened up good running lanes. Defensively, the Rayders were led by Wright, Staph and Tylan Fry. The Rayder midgets ended the season 2-4-1, but coaches credited the kids for playing hard and learning lessons which will make the future bright.

The Charlevoix Peewee Division team lost in a great game to Elk Rapids Orange, 16-6 in a game that showcased two teams with great strength and athleticism. Offensively, the Rayders were led by Caleb Stuck, who ran with toughness to paydirt for the only Rayder touchdown. Isaac Moar, Max Ostrum, Luke Snyder and Jacob Snyder also ran the ball well on a day when yards were hard to come by.

Defensively, the Rayders were led by the stout defensive line play of Jack Bennis, Tony Illenden, Zach Nickel, Logan Macarthur and Dmitri Bell. Coaches mentioned key subs, such as Ritchie Cunningham, Will Glass, Cole Macarthur, Winslow Fields, Landon Couture and Masen Fry, who could enter the game and be effective at any time. The Rayder Peewees ended the season 5-2 and have much to look forward to next season as they will return much of their young roster.

Let there be lights

M. CHRIS LEESE/COURIER

Tom Hey, of Holiday Lighting Service in Manchester, wraps new Christmas lights around several trees at the trout pond in Charlevoix's East Park recently. The team also added lights to e row of trees near Bridge Street. Funds for the project came from the city's general fund, the downtown development authority and a private donor.

Commission OKs Charlevoix Pointe project

Neighbor questions density, size at public hearing

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix Planning Commission on Monday gave its blessing to a seven-unit townhouse development on Pine River Lane, despite the concerns of an adjacent neighbor.

With a unanimous vote, the planning commission voted to recommend approval of the project to the city council after listening to comments from part-time Charlevoix resident Kristin Jones, who owns the house immediately to the east of the proposed development.

The development, dubbed Charlevoix Pointe, is proposed by Midtown Development of Traverse City for a mostly-vacant 0.69-acre lot at 115 Pine River Lane. Pine River Lane runs west off of Petoskey Avenue (U.S. 31) just north of the Weathervane Restaurant.

The development would include seven single-family, 3,190-square-foot units each with three bedrooms, three bathrooms and a two-car garage. The units are proposed to be wood frame construction, 2.5 stories with gable roofs, 30 feet tall (measured from the finished grade to the mid-point between the ridge and the eaves) and have a stone veneer and shingle lapboard-style siding.

Jones said while this proposal is better than many others proposed in the past for the property, she remains concerned about the size, of the buildings, the density of the structures on the site, and the overall appropriateness of the development for the community. She also said she is concerned about the small amount of green space provided in the design.

"This new development brings hardscape and traffic and congestion to Pine River Lane," Jones said. "That's not to say I don't want development, but, gee whiz we've had 100 years of grassy walkways to the lake."

Jones also asked about the possibility of the new townhouses being used as vacation rental units.

Doug Mansfield, president of Mansfield Land Use Consultants, said he's not aware of any plans to allow rentals in the Charlevoix Pointe development. However, Spencer said such rentals would be allowed under current zoning.

The Charlevoix City Council is expected to conduct a public hearing and consider the proposal at its next meeting set for 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 4. At that meeting the council could choose to approve the project as presented, approve it with minor modifications, send it back to the planning commission for more revisions, delay a decision for more information or deny approval completely.

Monday's planning commission approval comes with 11 conditions, some of which include:

— The developers must pay in advance for their portion of water main upgrade for Pine River Lane needed for the project. To accommodate the development, the old 4-inch main would be replaced with a new 8-inch main. The developers estimated cost for the work is $22,000-$30,000.

— The developer must design and install a state- and city-approved water and sewer system on the site.

— The developer must grant a permanent utility easement to the city on the property.

— The developers must provide a performance bond in the amount of $50,000. The bond would cover expens-

Changing of the guard

Charlevoix sees wave of key leadership changeovers

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier editor

There's a wave of change in Charlevoix.

Multiple high-profile positions are vacant or in flux across the community and some believe it signifies a new energy in Charlevoix. Nonprofit Charlevoix Circle of Arts plans to hire an executive director, a new position in town. Charlevoix Area Community Pool board members currently are interviewing candidates to replace retiring director Al Gooch. City Treasurer Rick Brandt is training his replacement for when he retires in the new year. Fire Chief Paul Ivan also plans to retire. Then there are the two open positions at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce created when president Erin Bemis moved on and Bethany Pearson took a position with the city as the community's economic development coordinator.

Oh, and then what if Charlevoix is approved for a Main Street program with the state?

What that all amounts to is a number of important roles throughout Charlevoix that all happen to be in flux at the same time.

"I've always ascribed to the idea that change is good, with new eyes looking at things," said Steve Seely, vice-chairman of the chamber's board of directors. "It's fresh ideas and fresh energy."

> "It's an exciting time to be in Charlevoix."
> — Steve Seely, vice-chairman Charlevoix chamber board of directors

Gooch said he agrees this moment in time is an opportunity not just for new blood in Charlevoix, but "energized blood" he said. And he's not the only one to agree.

"The breadth of it across the community — it's a real opportunity," Brandt said.

The city's treasurer said the timing may not be all that coincidental, though. Some of this is because of an aging population, he said.

"It's a baby boomer kind of a thing and it will happen more often," Brandt said.

The benefit in his city office, he argued, is how there is a planned transition period during which he is passing on his quarter-century's worth of knowledge to the next treasurer, Joe Zielinski, who came to Charlevoix from Grand Ba

Betty Hoffmann steps away after 20 years

Charlevoix Schools Foundation Board loses longtime member

ANNE KELLY
Courier contributor

As the 2013-2014 Charlevoix Schools Foundation Board members begin their new terms of office, a familiar presence will be missing. Longtime trustee Betty Hoffmann is relinquishing a position she occupied for the past two decades. As she retires, the foundation is recognizing Hoffman's tenure and philanthropy over those many years.

Betty and her late husband, dentist Walter J. Hoffmann, spent many years on their acreage on U.S. 31 South which they called Tooth Acres. Today, Hoffmann's nephew and his wife live in the couple's former residence and Betty settled back into a log cabin on a five-acre piece of the original property where she resides near a pond and a little brook. There she enjoys nature and bird watching, she said, a favorite hobby.

Hoffmann worked as a Charlevoix Elementary School teacher for 35 years, retiring from her 35-year teaching career in 1996. Three years earlier, she was asked to sit as a trustee on the board for the Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation — now known as the Charlevoix Schools Foundation. She donated seed money to keep the foundation afloat in its beginning stages and was a loyal supporter of the educational organization. Hoffmann's contributions of time and money were offered in memory of her late husband.

Hoffmann is hesitant to accept praise for her contributions and chooses to donate anonymously in his name. However, others have recognized her generosity over the years. Former Charlevoix Public Schools' Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren remembers Hoffmann for the elementary school nature trail project she funded and manually executed along with a few other dedicated teachers.

"She was one of the few people who could convince the superintendent to bring his pickup over to haul wood chips on a Saturday morning," he said.

She also helped develop the original Charlevoix Elementary School playground used by local children for many years. A special project was the seed money donated to the endowment fund of the Charlevoix Enrichment Foundation for a future auditorium in honor of Walter. Her late husband was involved with theater, writing and directing plays and even serving as a radio actor, among other theater related activities. Fourteen years later, when the new high school was built to include an auditorium, Hoffmann's Enrichment Foundation's earmarked donation had grown significantly. Together with other significant donations, including those from Charlevoix Rotary Club and residents Bill and Ellen Schulting, her dream became a reality. Hoffmann's part specifically was used to include a rising orchestra pit and other theater amenities. Hoffman's desire was that the auditorium be used by the commun

Round Lake Education Center offers Head Start/court school

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

The former Charlevoix Middle School building, now called the Round Lake Education Center, houses a Head Start preschool program and Round Lake Academy, a school for students who are assigned by the court.

"Our main savings from moving the middle schoolers to the high school building was in the consolidation of staff," Charlevoix Schools Superintendent Bob Gendron said. "We always planned to re-purpose the building."

Both the Head Start program and the court school previously existed in other locations, but moved to the middle school this year. The court school used to be located in Boyne Falls, operated in conjunction with Boyne City Public Schools alternative school. This year, Round Lake Academy is strictly a court school, meaning that each student has been assigned to the school by the court. Educational programming is handled by Charlevoix Public Schools, but other personnel necessary to the program are provided by the court, including probation officers, social workers and monitors.

The school also provides the academic portion of a Recovery High program coordinated by the court for students with substance abuse problems. Bay Area Substance Education Services provides additional programming for these students.

The preschool and the court school use different parts of the building with different entrances and partitioned halls, so the two programs can't mix.

In addition to the preschool and the high school, the education center houses the offices for teachers of Charlevoix's K-12 virtual school and various community groups lease space for things such as gymnastic classes or special events.

"We need to study what will ultimately be the best usage of the facility," Gendron said. "For example, we should talk about where we should house the elementary school. Would it be better moved to this facility?"

Recovery High — a collaborative approach to help probationers conquer substance abuse issues

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

Recovery High helps adolescents in Charlevoix and Emmet counties, who struggle with substance abuse issues.

Charlevoix and Emmet Probate Court, Charlevoix Public Schools, Charlevoix Emmet Intermediate School District and Bay Area Substance Education Services collaborate with other community services, for example, Community Mental Health and area doctors, to allow students who are on probation and have substance abuse issues to be rehabilitated in their own communities.

Probate Court Judge Frank Mulhauser has watched the program evolve over the years in the two counties.

"The key is to be flexible, to understand what is going on and to find a way to help," Mulhauser said.

Adolescents assigned to the most restrictive form of Recovery High will be assigned by the court to a foster home, the court school at Round Lake Academy in Charlevoix County or at Lakeview Academy in Emmet County. In addition, the adolescent will receive services from Bay Area Substance Education Services, and probation. They will be assigned to drug court, requiring a weekly interdisciplinary meeting among all service-providers and a court appearance.

"These kids are monitored closely," Mulhauser said. "There are no holes in communication, where a kid could tell one person one thing and another something else, because we meet together each week and adjust the kid's program. The program is incentive-based. Kids earn rewards. And there may even be applause in the courtroom, where the proceedings are more informal. Each week, students are told that we're all there to help them through this."

The program emphasizes three components: 1) consequences for their actions, 2) rehabilitation from substance use and 3) restitution back to the victim or the community. The adolescent works with a mediator for accountability to the victim.

"It's important that a young person understand that there is a human being behind this," Mulhauser said.

The recidivism rate has over the years hovered between 8 and 10 percent, which according to Mulhauser, disappointed the service-providers, until they saw that the next lowest recidivism rates for programs like this elsewhere were coming in at 30 percent and average recidivism rates were 60 percent. In 2004, the Recovery High program won a statewide Balanced and Restorative Justice Award.

Council approves memorial brick program for East Park

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix area residents and businesses will soon have a new way to memorialize a loved one or show their support for the community's landmark downtown park.

At its regular semi-monthly meeting Monday, Oct. 21, the Charlevoix City Council gave its final approval to a memorial brick program for East Park's Plaza B. Under the program, private individuals and businesses will be able to buy bricks that will be engraved with short messages and then placed in the center of the plaza. Plaza B is a semi-circular area on the park's western edge along Bridge Street, roughly half way between Mason and Clinton streets.

The cost to purchase a memorial brick will be $100 each. City officials said the city's cost per brick will be about $25, including engraving. The additional $75 will be set aside in a special fund to pay for future maintenance of the park and especially the interactive water fountain near the harbormaster's building.

When originally proposed, the proceeds from the program were to be used to support recreational programs in general, but the council changed the designation for the funds prior to its approval of the program on Oct. 21.

City manager Rob Straebel said messages on the bricks would be reviewed by city staff for appropriateness. He said the plan, in general, would be to allow businesses to have their names engraved on the bricks, but little else such as phone numbers or website addresses.

Since its construction with the rest of the East Park renovation project, the center of the plaza has been covered by everything from plants to wood chips, but earlier this fall workers filled it in with paver bricks. The council decided to do this and began to consider the memorial brick program after it decided to scuttle an outdoor fireplace project previously started in the same space last year.

Straebel noted that bricks likely will be engraved and installed in groups, perhaps once or twice per year.

Anyone interested in purchasing a brick should telephone the city manager's office at (231) 547-3270.

In other action, the council also approved a new policy that would guide city officials on which capital improvement projects on city property should be reviewed by the

Ironton Ferry sign missing

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

IRONTON — This summer, the signs hung on the cottage lumber siding of a white shed at the Ironton Ferry's landing in Ironton were taken down so that workers could paint the shed.

A few of those signs made it back on the building — but one went missing. The missing sign is one that described the Ironton Ferry as a registered state historic site.

It read, "Captain Alexander operated the ferry from the 1880s to the 1940s. 'Ripley's Believe It or Not' credits Sam with having traveled a distance equal to the circumference of the earth without ever being more than one quarter mile from his home on the incline in Ironton."

James Vol Hartwell, owner of Red Fox Inn Bookstore in Horton Bay, who donated the sign, said crews finished painting the shed in August, and discovered then that the sign was missing.

"They went to put it back and it wasn't there," said Hartwell. "They went through every possible place it could be."

Hartwell said the sign went missing once before, and was returned to the site in 2009. He is hoping the same will happen again.

"Anyone who knows of its whereabouts can bring it back and lean it against the white shed with green trim in Ironton town, no questions asked," said Hartwell.

City to host Trail Town presentation

STAFF REPORT

Charlevoix officials will host a presentation on a concept known as the Trail Town Program at 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 7, at Charlevoix Public Library.

The presentation will feature Harry Burkholder of the Land Information Access Association and will focus on the benefits of, and how to establish a Trail Town, city planning director Mike Spencer said.

According to information on the program provided by the organization, "Trail Towns are communities where the trail system is utilized as an important aspect of tourism focused economic development and revitalization strategy. Any type of trail can be used as part of a Trail Town designation, including bike and kayak trails, with regionally connected routes demonstrating more success up to this point. To establish a Trail Town, a 'four point approach' has typically been used which calls for organization, promotion, design and economic restructuring."

"This may be an opportunity for Charlevoix to realize the economic potential of facilitating trail users as the benefits are becoming better known," Spencer wrote.

He noted that Burkholder will be presenting and answering questions and emphasized that the meeting is strictly informational. No decisions regarding the program and Charlevoix will be made at the meeting.

Sheriff warns about Facebook scam

STAFF REPORT

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider is warning area residents about a new type of scam reported to his office recently involving Facebook.

Schneider said the reports involve people hacking into unsuspecting Facebook members' accounts and recording their friends list and their personal information. The suspect then creates a new Facebook account using the victim's name and personal information. The culprit then "refriends" all the original friends on the new account and then attempts to scam the friends of the original account holder. Schneider said the victim thinks they are communicating with a friend but it is actually a stranger trying to scam them.

The sheriff said in a recently reported case, the "friend" was trying to get the victim to click on a link called the "United Nations Helping Foundation Program." The "friend" told the victim the foundation gives up to $100,000 to people who are deaf, retired, elderly or disabled. The victim figured out this person was not her friend by asking questions only her true friend could answer. The scammer then disconnected once it was obvious the victim had figured out this was a scam.

Schneider said the victim in this case wanted law enforcement to advise citizens about this scam and said it is easy to combat if the user asks questions to establish the true identity of the "friend."

Life with a 2-year-old's eyes

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Watching a 2-year-old grandson is more fun than playing with a basket full of puppies. Yesterday it was creative cupcake making: a learning experience that included measuring, sifting and cracking eggs. It warmed my heart watching his small hands add ingredients to the familiar mixing bowl whose chipped edges served as memories of use. It was sheer joy to see his face light up when I turned the mixer on and together with my hand over his we carefully pushed the dry flour to meet the liquid of milk and eggs. We watched the mixture transform into a texture worthy of tasting. Something I usually take for granted, but now it was as if I was seeing this magic for the first time.

He was proud of himself as he intently placed parchment paper cups into the tins. I swelled with pride feeling that maybe this was the grandchild who would love cooking as much as I do. While we licked the remaining batter from my old, wooden spoons I decided that tomorrow I'll come up with an even better cooking project. Tomorrow we will make chicken pot pies. Reality check: it became an entirely different scenario.

When there is lack of sweetness and more chopping than stirring a 2-year-old little boy bores quickly. He didn't mind watching me cut up vegetables and occasionally sharing in the eating of tidbits, but he quickly lost interest when a motorized beater and sugar weren't part of it. Then I remembered my life at 2 years of age with Busica. It was a bit different. Busica had her chicken hanging from a pantry hook already bled out and ready for plucking. But this was after she chased it around the yard saying something in Polish. Yep, it was a bit more exciting. Even making sausage was fun because I helped turn the handle as the ground meat oozed out of the small metal opening and filled the intestinal casing. So as the chicken pot pie was simmering in the oven, I remembered that maybe cooking was a bit more exciting for me than it was for this little one. Since becoming a vegetarian (this has nothing to do with my prior cooking with Busica) I don't see me chasing chickens or making homemade sausage any time soon. Somehow I need to make the culinary art with vegetables look at bit more inviting. Chasing after a loose cabbage that rolls on the floor just doesn't have the same appeal, but I'm working on it.

We decided to leave the kitchen behind for awhile and read books. One thing that never grows old with a toddler is looking at big, colorful books with lots of pictures. He quickly caught on to repeating what animal or object we'd point to and then counting them. From there we'd make the sounds they would make. I'm still stumped on what sound a giraffe makes and my imitating the call of an elephant is mildly disturbing. It was heartwarming to see his excitement with each new page but even better was the calm, warm little body next to mine that brought back memories of having our daughters when they were 2 years old, sitting next to me and looking at the very same book.

Life certainly seems brighter, newer and shinier through the eyes of a 2-year-old. I feel fortunate and blessed to have this opportunity. While he is busy looking at everything and seeing it as new, I look at him and see only our hearts.

LETTERS to the editor

No more mining, please

Editor:

I am responding to the 'No fracking here' article which appeared in the Oct. 18, 2013, Charlevoix Courier. Every resident of Charlevoix County should look at Google Earth at St. Mary's plant in Charlevoix. Do we really want any more of our shoreline and county given over to this environmental mess? The berms along the highway and road into Fisherman's Island State Park disguise the complete destruction of all green. Fisherman's Island State Park is a place where people come and bring their families or just enjoy lunch in their car. A land swap?

Please no more,

Linda D. Weston, Charlevoix

Help find a class ring?

Editor:

The weekend of June 20-23, we were in Charlevoix/Petoskey area for my sister's wedding. Some time during the weekend my son lost his class ring. He is not sure where or when he lost it, just some time during that weekend. He finally just told me this week that he had lost it. His ring is silver with a blue stone in the middle. It has the initials GHS on it and his name "Robert Allen Bundley III" is engraved inside the ring. He is a senior this year and it would mean the world to him if he could get it back before he graduates. If you have any information, please contact me at epetherbridge@hotmail.com. Thank you for your help.

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

With the success of his Boulder Park development in the late 1920s and 1930s, builder in stone Earl Young's ambition went beyond residential mode. Even with the Great Depression keeping a damper on the country, he conceived of a plan that would have transformed the northwest edge of Round Lake into an unprecedented Northern Michigan resort complex.

Earl arranged financing with the head of one of the local banks and a few summer residents to buy out the Charlevoix Lumber Company (now the Edgewater) beside the channel bridge, which had been severely hit by hard times. In its place, near Bridge Street, would go a circular restaurant with views from over half its windows of Round Lake and a replacement bridge which Charlevoix expected to be getting soon. Above this would rise a 60-unit hotel. On the East Dixon corner tennis courts would be installed, and the whole fronted by a new marina. By the time financing was in place, options on the property obtained, plans drawn up and this scale model constructed in the summer of 1941, along came Pearl Harbor and World War II in December to dash the idea to bits. The first structural steel had actually been delivered, the earth was ready to be turned. But the government took the steel back. A new bridge had to wait until 1947. After war's end the lumber company began doing well with postwar demand and no longer needed to sell. So Earl Young's dream had to remain just that, unfulfilled until the Weathervane Inn materialized in 1954 on the other side of the highway.

Foundation hires new director

STAFF REPORT

Townsend

Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation recently hired a new executive director, Chelsea Townsend.

Townsend worked with the hospital for the past year, first as interim communications coordinator, then moving into various roles this recent summer with the foundation and community health. She brings extensive experience in board administration and operations management to her role at the hospital's foundation.

As executive director, Townsend will continue to be involved with community outreach and community engagement, both very important components of the work done through the foundation.

"Our mission is simply to support, through our philanthropic efforts, the hospital's mission, of which a key focus is to improve the health of the communities it serves," Townsend said.

Having grown up in the area, Townsend said she is excited to return home. After graduating from the University of Michigan, she moved to Chicago where she worked downtown in property management. She said she is very happy to be back "Up North" and working in the nonprofit sector.

"This is where I've always wanted to be — in a position to help a tremendous organization make great strides in community care — and Charlevoix Area Hospital and the foundation are poised to do just that," she said.

Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation is a nonprofit organization that raises and manages funds to benefit the hospital. More information is available at www.cah.org online.

A live pit band will accompany the student cast of "Godspell," the musical presented by Charlevoix High School. In the spirit of the production, the students involved are collecting donated non-perishable food and new or gently used coats for a local food pantry and coat drive project, which audience members are invited to bring to each show.

Charlevoix High revives 'Godspell'

STAFF REPORT

The idea for "Godspell" was conceived and originally directed by John Michael Tebelak with music by Stephen Schwartz (Wicked, Pippin). "Godspell" is one of the biggest off-Broadway and Broadway successes of all time. This is a revised edition, which updates the music to incorporate jazzier harmonies with more of a rock edge, as well as modernizing the references in the parables. Based on the Gospel According to St. Matthew, this show contains many well-loved songs such as the international hit, "Day by Day." Other songs include "Prepare Ye," "Bless the Lord My Soul," "Learn Your Lessons Well," "All For the Best," "All Good Gifts," "Turn Back O Man," and "By My Side." "Godspell" is a groundbreaking and unique reflection on the life of Jesus. The show stresses Jesus' humility and compassion, and the parables are brought to life in a way that will appeal to the religious and non-religious alike with its themes of love and community. Drawing from various theatrical traditions, such as clowning, pantomime, charades, and vaudeville, "Godspell" will leave those in the audience spellbound by the musical theatre staging.

Performances:

"Godspell" will be performed at 7 p.m. Friday-Saturday, Nov. 8-9, again at 2 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 10, at Charlevoix High School auditorium. Tickets are $5 for students and $7 for adults, though a family matinee is available for $20 for a collective two adults and two or more students.

Kiwanis sponsors builders club

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club announced the sponsorship of a Builders Club at St. Mary School in Charlevoix.

The club is open to all sixth- and seventh-graders and meets once a week during the school day lunch hour. When presented with the prospect of a forming a club, the staff and administration thought this program was an excellent fit with the already existing philosophy the school promotes. This opportunity for sixth- and seventh-graders gives them more visibility in the community with their service in helping others.

They will continue with the recycling program that was put in place earlier, but improved changes will allow for more item pick ups and drop offs. The Builders Club will add to St. Mary School's involvement of giving back to others during the holidays by adding a United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) collection, Salvation Army bell-ringing, snow shoveling for seniors and working with the local Kiwanis Club to help with its Eliminate Project, which promotes eliminating maternal and neo-natal tetanus.

The objectives of the club are to provide opportunities for leadership roles at the middle school level by encouraging involvement with the school, community and worldwide projects. The learning process includes understanding Robert's Rules of Order, forming committees and selecting project chairpersons to oversee each new activity.

Currently, the students are collecting food for local food pantries and collecting for UNICEF. Future projects include cocoa and bake sales to help area families in need and setting up a program for teacher and staff appreciation. The faculty advisor is Joe Solomon and Kiwanis Club advisors are Gayle Gennett and Sue Goss. The Builders Club is open to new members and invites guests to visit meetings, which happen at noon on Thursdays in the extended day care classroom.

Her warm personality and wonderful sense of humor will be missed.

Local builders' group donates $8,000

The Little Traverse Association of Home Builders (LTAHB) recently donated more than $8,000 to area schools to help support the education of the next generation of building trades workers.

The organization represents builders, remodelers, suppliers and the allied trades in Emmet, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Otsego counties. The funds raised for this support of education comes through a community outreach program called Garage Build. It is an annual event to promote the building trades programs at four school districts in the organization's service area, including Boyne City Public Schools, Charlevoix Public Schools, Pellston Public Schools and the Public Schools of Petoskey.

Each year a two-car garage is auctioned by silent bid in March at the Northern Michigan Home Show, which is produced by the LTAHB. The building trades students, with the supervision of their instructors and LTAHB volunteers, frame, roof, enclose, secure and electrify the garage for the winning bidder in the spring prior to the conclusion of the school year.

"Garage Build gives students a real world experience in the building trades," said Carl Wagar, of Wagar Builders and longtime chairman of the program. "Many students first discover an interest in building through this program that may directly lead to a career. Our building trades instructors are training the future of the industry and the Little Traverse Association of Homebuilders has a duty to support that."

This year marks the 13th of the Garage Build program.

"This is truly a community wide effort and we are thrilled, as an association, to be able to give back to the education of students who will be the future of our industry," said Scott Herceg, LTAHB executive officer.

Herceg went on to explain how the schools' funds may be used at the discretion of the building trade instructors for education materials, specialty shop equipment, and post-graduation scholarships for their students.

"However the funds are used at the individual schools, we know that the students will get the direct benefit and that is our goal," Herceg said.

To find out more information about the Garage Build program or to get involved, contact the Little Traverse Association of Home Builders at (231) 348-9770 or send email to ltahb@ltahb.com.

Students attend STEM event in Ellsworth

Spaghetti, string, masking tape, scissors and one marshmallow turned into a lesson about science, technology, engineering and math.

Last week, a group of area high school students took part in a hands-on event sponsored by Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District and Ferris State University. Ferris faculty, admissions and recruiting staff visited both Petoskey and Ellsworth high schools to meet with 10th, 11th, and 12th grade students who have expressed an interest in the field of STEM or Science, Technology, Engineering and Math.

Approximately 50 students from Alanson, Pellston, Petoskey, Petoskey-Concord and Harbor Light attended the morning event at Petoskey High School where they were broken into teams to build the tallest structure they could using spaghetti, string, masking tape, scissors and a marshmallow.

They were given 18 minutes to accomplish the task. The event was repeated in Ellsworth in the afternoon for schools located in the southern service area of Char-Em ISD.

"We're pleased to have Ferris State University partner with us on this event," said Gretchen Spedowske, career/college consultant with Char-Em ISD. "The students were exposed to careers in STEM in fun, hands-on ways and they were able to interact with students from other area schools who share their interest."

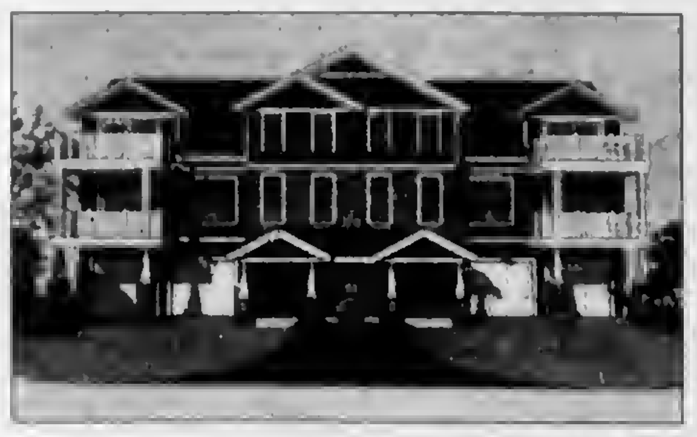
es the city could incur should the developers start the project and then fail to complete it as planned.

— The steepest grade on the site may be no more than 13 percent, as recommended by national standards, to facilitate emergency vehicle access.

Spencer said he doesn't anticipate the development creating any more problems with traffic than already exist in the area. He said the major contributors to traffic issues on Pine River Lane in the summer have to do with the proximity of the bridge on U.S. 31 and customers visiting the Weathervane Restaurant and the nearby hotel. He noted how each unit will have parking for four vehicles — two in the garage, and two in the driveway — which he said should be plenty under most instances.



COURTESY IMAGE

This artists rendering provided by tha developer shows what one of the buildings in the proposed Charlevoix Pointe development would look like from tha front.

The lot on which the development is proposed is zone R-4, high-density residential. The property recently was rezoned to that designation when the city approved a major overhaul to its overall zoning ordinance earlier this year. Previously the property was zoned commercial, which would not have allowed for this type of development, Spencer said.

He said that in his opinion, the development meets the zoning requirements for the site and does not require any variances.

CHANGE

At the same time, Brandi said he gets to bounce ideas around with his replacement and have an active role in making plans for the department's future.

"That's invaluable and that's what you hope for — to give as much back as you can," Brandi said. "Then I get to look at new ideas with the new person."

There's value in both passing on institutional information and having an experienced opinion to gauge up-and-coming concepts and strategies, he said.

It all adds up to a buzz around the community.

"It's an exciting time to be in Charlevoix," Seely said. "There's been an undercurrent of positive groundswell happening for the last six-12 months and now it's blossoming. There will be a lot of opportunities for people in this community to stand up, take a position and redirect things going on in Charlevoix to make a positive impact down the road."

Brandi even points to the Leadership Charlevoix County program — now in its third year of professional and community development training — as a way to groom new community leaders and pass on important historical context for the new folks. "Bringing in new ideas gives you greater perspective," he said. "It's kind of exciting and maybe it's time for a change."

In fact, there is a planned community economic development forum designed to help local leaders better understand the needs of the community and set priorities. The general public open forum will be 6-8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 13, at Charlevoix Public Library.

nity, not just the school.

In 2002, Hoffmann was named Citizen of the Year by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, a community award "recognizing a person or persons who over a number of years, have given freely of their time, talent and resources to make the Charlevoix area a better place to live." The award came as a complete surprise to Hoffmann, whose quiet donations of time and money had not gone unnoticed, despite her anonymous efforts. Her contributions known at that time also included donations to the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, the Charlevoix Senior Center, the land donation and landscaping of property along the channel on Park Avenue known as Hoffmann Park, as well as other environmental work for keeping Charlevoix beautiful.

"I just see things that I'm interested in that need doing and I do it," Hoffmann said in an interview with the Charlevoix Courier after the award was presented.

Today she continues an active role in various endeavors: The Charlevoix Historical Society, The Banks Township Historical Society and the Antrim Creek Natural Area Committee, working to preserve the last mile of frontage on Grand Traverse Bay. She also is a member of the Audubon Society.

Vicki Voisin once wrote a personal note to Hoffmann, as one of the former chairpersons of the Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation when in 2003 she turned over her presidency to the next in line. Hoffmann has saved it over the years.

"I certainly enjoyed my years of membership which were enhanced by your steady loyal dedication to the goals of the Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation," the note reads.

Pam Barnes is the most recent past foundation chairperson who served on the board for 10 years, seven as chairwoman. She said she remembers Hoffmann as being a faithful and valuable board member who virtually never missed a meeting and provided history and continuity for the group. Incoming chair Julie Voci agreed.

"People like Betty Hoffmann, who have invested in our future and our students with their time and money, have made the foundation what it is today," Voci said.

"I've enjoyed my time on the Charlevoix Schools Foundation Board as a trustee," Hoffmann said. "I have seen a lot of people come and go. I think we've accomplished a lot."

planning commission before consideration for approval.

The policy is a lingering outgrowth of the controversial proposal to build an outdoor community fireplace in East Park. Among the complaints of opponents of the fireplace project was how the proposal didn't go before the planning commission for its input before the council approved its construction.

At the time, city planner Mike Spencer noted — along with a resolution accompanying the proposed policy — the state's Planning Enabling Act does require that a "street; square, park, playground, public way, ground, or other open space; or public building or other structure shall not be constructed or authorized for construction in an area covered by a municipal master plan unless" it is first reviewed by the planning commission. However the act does not clearly define what constitutes a structure.

The resolution also notes that typically infrastructure project are reviewed by the planning commission during each year's budget process, but the city does not currently have a process in place for reviewing proposed projects that come up between budgets.

The proposed policy spells out the following definitions for "structure," "feature," and "amenity" and exempts from further review projects that have already been approved through the budget's capital improvement plan; those that are necessary to protect public health and safety; repair, replacement or expansion of utilities; replacement or repair of existing structures, features, and amenities or existing roads, curbs, gutter systems, and sidewalks; and minor changes or improvements to existing uses related to recreation, governmental operations, utilities, and recycling.

Under the proposed policy, projects that would require review include:

— Any new structure, feature, or expansion of an existing building.

— Any new use or recreational activity proposed on public properties.

— Purchase of any additional properties to be owned by the city. Sale of any city-owned lands.

— Construction of new roads, alleys and parks.

The review process contemplated would have the planning commission look at all documentation for the project, take public comment on the project and forward a recommendation to the city council for its consideration.

RECOVERY

Typically, an offender will be assigned to 90 days of foster care, court school and BASES programs, providing strict 24-hour supervision, though each case is different and the program is tailored specifically to the needs of the individual.

"We want there to be enough time for the kid to start thinking differently," Mulhauser said.

The adolescents are drug-tested frequently and evaluated continuously with evidence-based milestones. They can earn more freedom, such as a visit to home or an outing, by meeting their milestones.

Adolescents may start in a less restrictive environment, for example, staying in their own homes, but going to court school and BASES programs. They are continuously monitored. If they aren't successful at staying clean and meeting their milestones in this setting, they could be moved to foster care. The program is structured to flexibly meet the needs of each probationer, with movement to more restrictive and less restrictive placements always possible.

JAMIE BAUMANNN/ NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

Brandi Polzin, math and history teacher, halps a student at Round Lake Academy. Round Lake Academy educates students assigned by the court.

"The move of the court school to Round Lake Academy in Charlevoix from Great Lakes Academy in Boyne Falls has made it easier for staff to access the kids," Scott Kelly, director of BASES, said. "There is more adult traffic for hands-on work with the kids, saving time and gas."

The Charlevoix location is closer to Charlevoix County probation officers, as well as the BASES staff.

Recovery High provides a stable, supportive environment that promotes buy-in for health and goals, building skills in the adolescents so that they will feel well and function well once they leave the program.

"The strength of this program is that we can provide services to kids in their own community. It's easier to stay clean in an institution away from the community, but the recidivism rate of kids coming out of institutions, once they return to their communities is high. By providing services within the community where kids live, we are teaching them to address the issues in the environment where they will be living," Mulhauser said.

Rayders JV completes perfect season

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier editor

Charlevoix's junior varsity football team finished a perfect conference season last week with a resounding victory over rival East Jordan.

The Rayders topped the Red Devils 29-6 with strong offense and defensive play, but only after a scoreless first half for both teams.

"This game capped a great two-year run by the sophomores on this team; they completed a perfect 12-0 record against teams in our conference. I am not sure of the last time that happened, if ever. This is a credit to their work ethic and their love for playing football. I expect them to continue their success at the varsity level next year," said Todd Klinger, Charlevoix coach. "This was a very hard-fought game and we were able to wear them down as the game went on. The team came out fired up after halftime and moved the ball down to score quickly. This set the tone for the second half where we were able to score four touchdowns after not having any in the first half."

Quarterback Forrest Noirot had nine carries for 45 rushing yards, followed by ballcarrier Ben Boss with his 12 carries for 32 rushing yards and Justin Adkins with five carries for 24 rushing yards. Noirot also completed five of seven attempted forward passes for a total 145 yards, the best being 61 yards in a fourth-quarter pass to Boss. On the receiving end, Boss advanced the ball 74 yards after his two catches; followed by 64 yards after two catches by Brad Klinger.

"Offensively, Forrest Noirot led the way with his best passing performance of the season. Brad Klinger and Ben Boss both had great runs after their catches to score on long passes. All of the success that we had in the air and on the ground would not have happened without great play from the offensive line," coach Klinger said.

That offensive line includes Jake Mitchell, Tyler Fochs, Alex Kleiber, Caleb Hart, Joe McCraney, Josh Hinkley and Jake Seger.

"This group has really come together as the season went on. None of them came into the season with much JV experience. They worked hard and did a nice job of communicating on the line," Klinger said. "It will be nice to have four freshmen coming back next year who played a lot on the offensive line for the JV team."

But the JV Rayders didn't just score well. They also defended their end zone well.

Both Malcolm Williams and Justin Adkins made seven tackles, including Akins' taking down the East Jordan quarterback in his end zone. Those tackling statistics are closely followed by Noirot and Hunter Cox, who had six tackles each. Alex Kleiber even caught the ball for an interception.

"On defense, Justin Adkins and Malcolm Williams led the attack just as they have all year. The whole group played aggressive all night," Klinger said. "Josh Hinkley and Truman Left worked hard to keep the middle stuffed up. Noirot, Cox and Camden Alden did their job of keeping East Jordan from getting outside all night."

East Jordan scored a touchdown in the third quarter, but no extra point from the kicker. The same can be said for Charlevoix, except before the third quarter ended it was followed up with a second touchdown and successful two-point conversion. The fourth quarter finished with a third and fourth touchdown for Charlevoix, with one good extra point from Cox.

"Overall, speaking for assistant coach Havens and myself, we felt privileged to be able to coach this group of young men. Every day they came with a good attitude and ready to work hard," Klinger said. "We had a lot of fun with all of them. One thing they understood was when we got on the practice field it was time to work, but we did have a lot of laughs, too."

Rayder fans can watch for the return of these high school football players in next year's season.

Rayders fall to rival East Jordan in season wrap-up

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

EAST JORDAN — What a turnaround.

The East Jordan Red Devils wrapped up a season to remember, turning around a winless 2012 to 5-4 record this season concluding with an 18-7 win over rival Charlevoix on Friday, Oct. 25.

The Red Devils, 5-4, 2-4, came up just a win shy of a playoff run, but that won't diminish what they did on the field in their breakout season.

"Very, very proud of this bunch of young men," East Jordan coach Allan Peterson said. "Doesn't seem like a big deal to be 5-4, but when it's been 10 years it is a big deal. We feel like we we're just a few plays from being 7-2."

A defense minded first half on Friday began with the Red Devils gaining a 6-0 score with Noah Bacchus putting the Red Devils up on a 14 yard run.

Charlevoix, 1-8, 0-6, would then take the lead on a 2 yard score by Shane Sotherland, making it a 7-6 game at the half, but the Rayders, who fumbled twice in the first half, could have been up more.

Charlevoix junior quarterbac ate Moon (9) looks for an open receiver as linemen (from laft) Devin Largant, Andrew Mitchell and Adam ichaud block during Friday's Lake Michigan Conference contest at Boswell Stadium in East Jordan.

"We left points on the board and could have come away with a field goal or touchdown," Charlevoix coach Ron Bindi said.

Ben Walton and Dustin Hejka each added rushing scores in the fourth quarter after a scoreless third to give the Red Devils an 18-7 lead.

Charlevoix's Nate Moon completed a pass to Will Telgenhof to put the Rayders behind just five, but with just 2 minutes, 30 seconds remaining, the Red Devils would hold on.

"That was the best one win team I have ever faced," added Peterson. "They have some great athletes. I can't say enough about our senior dominated line, Weston Swanson, Oscar Scheier, Nick Holt, Will Harris and Jaden Hoffman. They blocked to the very last whistle."

The one win season for Charlevoix matched their total from a year ago, but change was clear under first year coach Bindi.

"It's disappointing after the way we started the year," Bindi said. "We just have a lot of work to do to try to get things to where we need to take them. We knew it was going to take time. We just have to learn how to win and build on that."

East Jordan was led in the game by Walton with 144 yards on 29 carries, while Hejka added 62 yards on nine carries. Bacchus ran the ball 11 times for 40 yards and Tim Schut, eight carries for 33 yards.

Defensively, Schut led the team with nine stops, while Brandon Cardwell brought in six tackles.

For Charlevoix, Sutherland carried the ball 16 times for 116 yards, Nate Moon added 34 yards on eight carries and went 3-of-14 passing with 85 yards.

Will Telgenhof brought in two catches for 43 yards and Austin Potman brought in one catch for 42 yards.

Sutherland led the Rayders with 18 tackles, while Sam Eakes brought in 17 stops. Spencer Kilpatrick and Bryan Noirot had 12 and 11 tackles, respectively.

The Charlevoix High School varsity volleyball team defeated St. Ignace, 25-22, 23-25, 25-16, 25-16, in their final regular season home match in a non-league contest.

The Rayders traveled to Maple City Glen Lake Thursday, before playing host to Elk Rapids in a Class C district match at 5 p.m. Monday, Nov. 4.

"We made some small changes to serve receive which made a difference and our blocking was stepped up which made a big difference with their outside hitters deep into the third and fourth set," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "We continue to play hard and get better at staying focused on our goal."

For the Rayders, Madeline Boss finished with 28 kills, nine digs and was a perfect 100 percent serving, while Gloria Greene added 27 assists and five digs.

Also for Charlevoix, Jennaca Holecheck served 28-of-31 with five aces, 12 kills and 12 digs, while Olivia Storm added 18 assists and was a perfect 15-of-15 serving.

Kelsey Pischner and Kylie Scholten each finished with five kills, while Emily Zabawa had five assists and three kills.

Way stays perfect, wins regional title

Rayder boys qualify

ACME — Another race down, one more big one to go for Charlevoix junior Amber Way.

Way kept her undefeated season intact Saturday on a cold, wet and muddy track at the Grand Traverse Resort and Spa as she won the Division III regional girls' race, finishing better than 51 seconds faster than runner-up Annie Fuller of Manistee.

Way finished in 19 minutes, 6.42 seconds, while Fuller was second in 19:57.36.

"She (Way) ran the race she wanted to and if she didn't, she would've been disappointed," Charlevoix coach Mary Plude said. "She ran her time and ran the race she wanted to and she challenged herself on the course. That course was probably a minute faster on a good day weather wise, but there were some really muddy spots and if you didn't run a precise form and watch your step, you could be in trouble."

Benzie Central won the girls regional title as they finished with 56 points, while Manistee was second, 63; followed by Hart, 96. Charlevoix placed fifth with 123 points, while Harbor Springs was sixth, 124; and Boyne City was 10th, 301.

The top three teams in each race and top 15 individuals all advance to the Division III state finals Saturday, Nov. 2, at Michigan International Speedway in Brooklyn.

In the boys race, Benzie Central placed first with 34 points, while Mason County Central was second, 57; and Charlevoix was third with 100 points.

Harbor Springs was sixth with 162 points, while Boyne City placed 10th with 239.

"We're excited to be there and it's going to be fun for the kids to run the race," Charlevoix boys' coach Ken Plude said. "This year all the boys have put in the mileage and they've been working hard."

For the Rayder boys, senior Jackson Buday finished a team-best 11th in 18:07.94, while senior Tristen Rudolph was 14th, 18:14.30; followed by freshman Luke Buday, 24th, 18:46.75; junior Noah Jeakle, 26th, 18:50.3; junior Nicholas Plude, 28th, 18:54.47; junior Lucas Von-Lau, 36th, 19:18.67; and junior Parker Skeel, 20:07.83.

"The guys did really well," Ken Plude said. "Jackson (Buday) had a good time, probably his third best time in tough conditions and he got a second wind with about 600 meters to go and had a good finish over the hill.

"All the guys ran well," Plude added. "They were a little upset that they fell out of rankings and they beat a number of teams that are ranked. That was a good motivating factor."

For the Rayder girls, Way led the way with her win, while senior Caroline Boss finished ninth to qualify as an individual as she finished in 21:00.28.

"She (Boss) started slipping around the two mile mark but once I barked at her, she got back up to where she needed to be," Mary Plude said.

"She knew she had to do it for the team and she finished strong."

Also for the Rayder girls, freshman Katie Mousseau was 37th, 23:47.23; followed by freshman Isabelle Buday, 39th, 23:52.61; junior Ellie Way, 40th, 23:55.05; junior Allie Hodge, 49th, 24:23.16; and senior Cora Taylor, 52nd, 24:36.81.

"Who would've thought a year ago this group would be together at a regional meet," Mary Plude said. "They all did a fantastic job and three of them had never been to a regional meet before. I was very pleased with the team as a whole."

Plude was also once again impressed with Way's performance.

"We had a Google map of the course and looked at it and there were some long straightaways, some hills and some treelines," Plude said. "You have to be ready for everything and we figured Amber was about a minute ahead of the group. She had worked out every situation and she went out hard with the pack and she had about a 15 second lead about 800 meters in.

"After about the two mile mark, she was able to relax and she had good form," Plude said.

"She knows her race, she was in charge and she's grown into such a competitor. She's just a little girl inside, but once that race starts she's very intense, her eyes show it and it shows in her stance."

Sullivan wins

Attorney General's opinion to be sought pertaining to issue of 'incompatibility'

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

Sullivan

Although Larry Sullivan soundly defeated former city clerk Carol Ochs in Tuesday's Charlevoix City Clerk election, it could still be many weeks before the city knows if he will assume the office come Jan. 1.

Sullivan defeated Ochs, who ran as a write-in candidate by a margin of 443-120 in Tuesday's election.

The uncertainty surrounding Sullivan assuming the office centers around the fact that he is also currently serving as a member of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

Recently both the city's and the county's attorneys penned a joint opinion that if Sullivan won, the state's Incompatible Offices Act would prohibit him from holding both offices.

City could change from elected to appointed clerk

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

This year's Charlevoix City Clerk election received more attention than it likely has in many years thanks to an unusual set of circumstances surrounding one of the candidates — and the eventual winner — Larry Sullivan.

That's because Sullivan also currently serves as an elected member of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners. Recently attorneys for the city and the county have opined that Sullivan is barred from holding both offices at the same time by the state's Incompatible Offices Act. The act basically prohibits a person from simultaneously holding two offices that could potentially present a conflict of interest.

Sullivan has countered that he checked with two attorneys prior to filing to run for the post and both saw no problem. After his win Tuesday, Sullivan said he will be asking for the Michigan Attorney General's office to weigh in on the matter.

If the Attorney General's office agrees with the city's and county's attorneys, Sullivan would be forced to choose between the county commission or city clerk's seats. This means city officials might not know until Jan. 1 if Sullivan will be assuming the clerk's office.

Ochs

However, all or some these legal twists could turn out to be irrelevant, if a move to modify the city charter goes forward.

Earlier this year, shortly after then-city clerk Carol Ochs announced she would not be seeking re-election, Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel floated the idea to the city council in June that the city might be better served by an appointed clerk instead of an elected one.

At that time, Straebel noted that a survey by the Michigan Municipal League showed that of 127 reporting municipalities, 106 had an appointed clerk, 16 had elected clerks and five did not specify.

Straebel went on to write in his memo: "An elected clerk may or may not have the skill set for the job. The duties require strong administrative, written and verbal skills as well as knowledge about the Freedom of Information Act, drafting meeting minutes, archiving, issuing licenses, and a bevy of other professional skills. If the new clerk does not have these skills, they will need to attend training to learn the intricacies of running the clerk's office."

At the time, Ochs, who had served as the city clerk for the previous nine years, said she can see benefits of both the elected and the appointed positions.

"Larry Sullivan is more qualified to step in to this chair than I was when I stepped in," Ochs said. "It takes one year to learn the job and it is a two-year term. You should at least look at changing it to four-year term."

She added: "One benefit of being elected is you do have a certain amount of autonomy, but it is hard to get someone with right the skill set."

To make the change from an elected to an appointed city clerk would require modifying the city charter which can be done only by a vote of the people.

At the June meeting the council was generally supportive of looking at the matter further and charged Straebel with doing more research and reporting back.

Straebel

Straebel said Monday he's planning to bring the matter back before the council for discussion at its next meeting set for 7 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 18.

He said he hopes to have legal opinions from city attorney Jim Young on what options are available for the city.

Straebel said one issue that he expects the legal opinions to address is if the ballot language can, or should be worded for the change to take immediate effect or if it would take effect two years from now when the current clerk's term to which Sullivan was just elected expires.

Straebel said his initial goal would be to have the ballot question on the change to the charter ready to go in time for the next available election date Tuesday, Feb. 25. In order for that to happen the ballot language would have to be approved by the council and the Michigan Attorney General's office by Dec. 17.

Porter, Gibson retain Charlevoix council seats

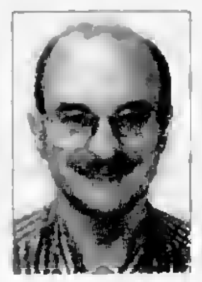
STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

Two Charlevoix City Council members will retain their seats for a full two-year term after winning rematch races Tuesday of the recall election that put them on the council six months ago.

In the city's 1st Ward, incumbent Jeff Porter defeated Dennis Kusina by a vote of 206-109.

In the city's 3rd Ward, incumbent Shirley Gibson defeated Jill Picha by a 126-78 margin.

In the city's 2nd ward, Leon Perron ran unopposed and received 110 votes. Gabe Campbell, who currently holds the 2nd Ward seat, did not seek re-election.



Perron

Porter, Gibson and Campbell came to the council in a recall election that took place in early May. In that race, Porter and Gibson unseated then-council members Kusina and Picha respectively, by sound margins. Campbell unseated then council member Bryan Vollmer, also by a large margin.

The recall election stemmed from a controversy that surrounded the former council's approval of a community outdoor fireplace project for East Park.

Porter

Shortly after taking office, the reconstituted council voted to scrap the partially completed fireplace project.

Prior to the election, all five candidates pointed to maintaining a solid budget picture for the city and finding ways to stimulate its economic base as priorities for the future.

Following Tuesday's election, Porter said he was pleased with the election results.

"I look forward to serving for next two years," Porter said. "I'll do my best. I look forward to working with the city's staff. The city's staff is excellent and we are going to make some real progress in the coming years."

Gibson

Kusina offered his thanks to those who supported him and said he has no definite plans right now for future campaigns for the council.

"I want to tell people to please support Charlevoix. It's a great place," he said.

Stained glass in living color

MICHAELKADE MORROW
Northern Michigan Review

Mary Ellen Murphy, a stained glass designer, is hosting a unique opportunity at the Charlevoix Public Library to see the work and skill involved in creating a stained glass masterpiece.

"I got my start through an adult education class. I was already doing other forms of art, but I found stained glass to be one of the easier ones to leave and come back to with having small children," said Murphy, 23-year veteran of the technique.

The Artists in Action event will begin at 2 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 21, in the library's main lobby, 220 W. Clinton St., Charlevoix.

"This demonstration will give people an idea of the amount of work that goes into a piece of stained glass, and they can ask all sorts of questions. Many don't realize how much work really goes into it. You have to have a lot of time, a lot of patience," Murphy said, adding "a lot of Band-Aids."

Most of the work Murphy does is on a commission basis, and it ranges from the more traditional forms of the work, to very modern pieces inside residential homes. "I really enjoy custom work, and the fun of it is I get to go to a person's home, talk to them, find out what their style is, and it is a great way to bring color into the room," Murphy said.

"Many of my designs are created so they can be placed in already existing window frames. They are added to the window," Murphy said. "The pieces also add an extra level of insulation."

"The most amazing part about the work is how it takes your breath away. There is nothing like the feeling of lifting a piece into place, and looking as the light shines through it. It is just awesome. Sometimes I think, 'wow, I actually made that.'" Murphy said.

Murphy's work can be viewed in several of the local churches around the area. Bethany Lutheran in Charlevoix, Hope Lutheran and St. Luke Church, both in Bellaire, all contain examples of her craft.

The demonstration will allow people to see the multiple techniques involved in completing a stained glass panel. Panels are created using lead edging, copper foil edging, or soldering, and sometimes a combination of all three.

"I bring a piece I am working on, so they can see the patterns involved, and how it is done. You have to create two patterns when designing a piece of stained glass, one is used as a template for assembly, and the other has to be cut up to use as a template to shape the glass," Murphy said.

This is her first public demonstration and she said she expects it to last between 2-3 hours.

"You don't have to be there right at the start. It is a work in progress," she said, adding that something like a window can take 40-60 hours to fully complete.

At the demonstration, viewers can ask questions and get a feel for the joy Murphy has for her craft.

"I really enjoy getting to play with the colors and the texture of the glass. I just love doing it — love it, love it," Murphy said.

More information about the exhibit can be viewed at www.charlevoixlibrary.org/calendar online, or at Murphy's website, www.stainedglassbymaryellen.com.

Bird walk Nov. 9 at Fisherman's Island

Waterfowl and other migratory songbirds will be on the viewing agenda for the Petoskey Regional Audubon Society members and guests during a planned event at Fisherman's Island State Park.

The bird-watching hike will begin at 8 a.m. on Saturday, Nov. 9, at the picnic area at the end of the state park.

"Fisherman's Island in fall and spring is good because it's during migratory seasons. You want to find a place that juts out into the water," said Darrell Lawson, society president.

Well, Fisherman's Island State Park does just that. The former island now is a peninsula that extends away from the main shoreline into Lake Michigan. It should be ideal for viewing whatever migratory birds are passing by this region, Lawson said.

"We could very well see some loons, which are still coming by," he said.

Other birds participants could hope to see include snow buntings, American pipits, Lapland longspurs and horned larks. Audubon officials encourage binoculars to be brought to the event, if possible. Participants should dress in layers for protection against the weather and expect the walk to last 3-4 hours.

Lawson said the event will happen rain or shine, though Sunday, Nov. 10, will be the makeup date if heavy rainfall causes a delay.

Council OKs Charlevoix Pointe development

Developers expect to break ground on $5 million project in spring

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

Despite the architectural concerns of one of its members, the Charlevoix City Council approved the site plan for a new seven-unit townhouse development on Pine River Lane Monday.

The council approved the project, that its developers have dubbed Charlevoix Pointe, by a 5-1 vote with council member Jeff Porter casting the lone dissenting vote.

There was no initial public comment about the project at Monday's regular semimonthly meeting, but during the council comments on the plan, Porter spoke up saying he doesn't think the architecture of the project is worthy of Charlevoix.

"This piece of property is one of the few developable pieces of properties we have in the city. It's in a residential area, rated R4 (high density residential). Because it's sensitive, we should consider something that is architecturally significant for this area," Porter said. "When I look at this, I look at something that looks like it came out of ninth-grade architecture class. It looks like a plain-Jane project that doesn't deserve to be on this street."

When questioned by city planning director Mike Spencer about what specifically he didn't like about the design, Porter pointed to many of its features such as the type and size of windows, the mix of exterior building materials, and the gables used in the design.

Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson noted that he felt the design was much better than previous proposals for the property, one of which included a 30-unit hotel and another which was an 18-unit single family clustered housing development.

Porter responded: "Don't get me wrong I'm all for developing this piece of property, but ... What style is this? It's sort of a mumbo-jumbo of styles.

Responding to Porter's comments, Doug Mansfield, the project's site engineer said, that while working on previous projects proposed for the site, he and his staff tried to determine exactly what a "typical Charlevoix architecture" is and, aside from the Earl Young designs, they couldn't determine one particular theme. Therefore, he said, the designers did their best to create an attractive development that fit into the city's zoning require-

New faces of the foundation

Foundation's roots grow deep

ANNE KELLY
Courier contributor

Originally formed as the Charlevoix School's Enrichment Foundation in 1987, this organization was conceived by Gordon VanWieren, former superintendent of the Charlevoix Public Schools. Its mission was "to enrich the educational experience of students by providing financial support for exemplary teaching and learning opportunities." VanWieren recognized that school funding would be compromised over the years and there would be instances in which the budget would not allow for the educational programs our teachers, along with the community, deemed important to the enrichment of the curriculum.

"At that time we were the only school in Northern Michigan with an educational foundation," VanWieren said. "We had consultants come in and explain to us the implications of forming a foundation. At first there was some controversy because of taxes but in the end it all worked out for the best. Starting it up was one thing, but the credit really goes to the generous people who stepped forward to volunteer their money and/or their time for this very important venture. There have been many dedicated community members that have served in various capacities within the board."

The original community members who signed the foundation's incorporation papers in 1987 were Louis Hollow, John Frey, Leonard Zehnder, Scott Beatty, Celeste Bickersteth, Mary Lee Campbell and Thomas Dammon. VanWieren was designated the resident agent and the new corporation was to be financed by "the solicitation of gifts and donations from the public, other foundations and private industry." Foundation funds would be used to improve the educational program for students and teachers in areas where tax monies would not ordinarily be used.

Former elementary teacher Mary Ann Chew was on board from the inception of his plan. She was the original chairwoman of the foundation and dedicated 20 years to its mission.

"We spent many hours of research and looking into the legalities of forming a foundation before we even set it up," she said. "The fact that the Charlevoix Schools Foundation, as it is now called, was established and has remained strong over the years is really a tribute to Gordon VanWieren and is part of his legacy to the Charlevoix Schools."

Vicki Voisin, who followed Chew as foundation chairwoman, remembers that the board added a fundraiser component to the endowment fund. A golf scramble to honor the late Alyce Lesser, one of the original charter members was initiated during her tenure as was the "Non-Event" fundraiser.

Gayle Gennett, a long time Charlevoix Schools' counselor, who spent seven years chairing the foundation weighed in on the organization's importance.

"Serving on the board was an educational experience for me," Gennett said. "We were able to receive applications from teachers requesting funding for their pet projects and donate the money twice a year as the board saw fit. It was challenging to decide who was most deserving of the grant money. It made for some interesting discussions." Gennett suggested teachers make a presentation stating their cause as part of the application process. The presentation piece remains as part of the process for proposals.

Endowments, fundraisers and donations continue to keep the organization alive and well. Although the foundation is now under the

Progressive Women present TEDTalk

STAFF REPORT

The next meeting of the Progressive Women of Charlevoix County will feature the 15-minute TEDTalk Jonathan Haidt: The moral roots of liberals and conservatives. TED stands for Technology, Entertainment and Design. TEDTalks are a global set of conferences owned by the private nonprofit Sapling Foundation whose slogan is "ideas worth spreading." More information on TEDTalks may be found online at www.TED.com.

This TEDTalk is presented by social psychologist Jonathan Haidt. The TED website states that "Haidt's research on morality across cultures led up to this 2008 TEDTalk on the psychological roots of the American culture war. Haidt studies the five moral values that form the basis of our political choices, whether we're left, right or center. In this eye-opening talk, he pinpoints the moral values that liberals and conservatives tend to honor most. Jonathan Haidt studies how — and why — we evolved to be moral. By understanding more about our moral roots, his hope is that we can learn to be civil and open-minded."

This TEDTalk may be viewed online at http://on.ted.com/qSjn.

After the TEDTalk, Kris Busk, one of the group's founding members, will lead a discussion of the implications of Haidt's research. How does this relate to today's political climate? How do these moral values influence our positions on policy issues? Considering these differences in moral values, how do we talk with each other? The group invites the public to this provocative and challenging session.

The meeting will take place at noon on Tuesday, Nov. 19, in Community Room A at Charlevoix Public Library, 220 W. Clinton. Members may arrive at noon and the TEDTalk will begin at 12:30 p.m. Members are invited to brown bag their lunch. The program is open to anyone interested in progressive issues, male or female. Registration appreciated by Nov. 18 by sending email to progwomenchxcty@yahoo.com or calling (231) 582-9005.

The Progressive Women of Charlevoix County meets from noon-2 p.m. on the fourth Tuesday of the month. This meeting was moved to the third Tuesday because of Thanksgiving. Locations alternate between Charlevoix and Boyne City. There are no membership fees and meeting announcements are by email only.

Autumn leaves and time to think

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

For much more than 50 years, I have been unable to rake, blow or move leaves in the fall without thinking of Percy Bysshe Shelley. His poem, "Ode to the West Wind," was among the first to which I paid attention. I am not especially a fan of poetry, but "Ode to the West Wind" has stuck in my mind since grade school. Maybe it is nothing more than that — my early adolescent macho thinking made Percy the perfect name for an English poet. The poem is certainly in the grand mode of Victorian writing, even though Shelley preceded Queen Victoria by a few years.

The poet composes what is mostly a prayer, and supposes himself to be as swept along with life as is an autumn leaf, with just the possibility of rebirth as something new, much like the fate of real leaves.

Some of the poetic language is especially vivid. He enumerates the colors of the leaves being swept along, concluding with "hectic red." I always wanted a hectic red Crayon, but never found one.

Time to think, while performing what is often called mindless work, has become almost rare. We mostly try not to do such work, but I have always favored it. From age 12, I often spent eight to 10 hours a day driving a farm tractor, plowing, tilling, raking hay, or any other task that could be done with a smaller tractor. This was not child labor; this was the only son helping his father feed the family. But it provided something else to me — the opportunity for eight hours of thoughtful time per day, while doing useful work. Such time is almost hard to imagine in the modern world.

The college newspaper from Luther College, where I taught for 30 years, was called "Chips" in honor of a rule from an earlier century that required all students to spend a certain number of hours each week splitting wood for the college heating system. Mindless work, you might say, but maybe those 19th century educators had some idea of its value.

Operating a leaf blower to move the year's leaves to the curb provides that sort of time. I am almost insulated from the audible surroundings by the sound of the blower, and some concentration on where the leaves are going shuts off most concern with the visual surroundings. After a while, the sound of the blower fades and a large space for thought is created right there in the front yard.

What are the fruits of today's leaf-blowing experience? "Ode to the West Wind" came up, of course, and right after that a line Shelley might almost have written. "I am become the west wind," I thought; an amount of power that Shelley could not have imagined. And then on to all the goods and bads that such power has provided. A phrase from Bob Dylan — something like "blowin' in the wind," or "A hard rain's gonna fall." Maybe the world really is beginning to heat up.

It was a thoughtful hour. Imagine what we could think of if we had eight hours of such disconnected time per day. I am convinced we would more clearly see our individual and collective problems, and maybe even imagine some solutions.

Our legislators could use a lot of such mindless time. Time to think must be rare for members of Congress or the legislature. I think we all could benefit from our lawmakers having such time.

Back to Shelley. The last line of his poem is one almost everyone has heard. It carries a hint of optimism we could certainly use. Shelley concludes, "If Winter comes, can Spring be far behind." Words to live by, from a long-ago British poet and a leaf blower.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

LETTER to the editor

Thank you all for the Halloween treats

Editor:

Thank you to all the Charlevoix businesses and community members who donated Halloween treats to more than 500 kids at Charlevoix Elementary School. Due to inclement weather we were unable to parade downtown, so the parade was conducted inside our school building. Several merchants very generously either came to school with treats or sent treats in to be distributed by volunteers. This is the type of occasion that truly makes Charlevoix a unique and wonderful place to live. We are so grateful to all who generously donate to our schools whether it be with physical items or by making the effort to come spend quality time with our students. It means so much to them and to our staff. Thank you again.

Veterans Day, almost 100 years ago

Veterans Day is intended to honor and thank all military personnel who served in the United States armed forces in all wars, particularly living veterans. At many places the American flag is flown at half mast. A period of silence lasting two minutes is held at 11 a.m. at many gatherings.

History

On the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month of 1918 an armistice between Germany and the Allied nations was signed and came into effect.

On Nov. 11, 1919, Armistice Day was commemorated for the first time by then President Wilson. He proclaimed the day should be "filled with solemn pride in the heroism of those who died in the country's service and with gratitude for the victory."

In 1926, the U.S. Congress enacted a law which made Nov. 11 in each year a legal holiday, known as Armistice Day. This day was originally intended to honor veterans of World War I. A few years later, World War II required the largest mobilization of service men and women in the history of the United States. This was followed by the Korean War. In 1954, the Veteran Service Organizations petitioned the Congress to change the word "Armistice" to "Veterans." Congress approved the change and on June 1, 1954, Nov. 11 became a day to honor all American veterans, where ever and whenever they had served.

In 1968, the Uniforms Holiday Bill changed Veterans Day to the fourth Monday of October. The bill took effect in 1971. The change caused so much confusion that in 1975 President Ford signed another law changing Veterans Day back to Nov. 11.

Show your gratitude

Have you ever wanted to show your gratitude to the troops, but didn't know how? Have you ever wanted to say "thank you" to a service person, but you didn't?

An easy way to show your gratitude is to look the service person straight in the eye, place your right hand over your heart and then extend the hand, palm up. This indicates heart-felt warmth and thanks without saying a word.

Veterans and active duty military, thanks for your service.

John Hess, Director of Veterans Affairs, Charlevoix County

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

This is believed to be the first surviving photograph of Bridge Street, taken perhaps as early as 1878. At the far end, barely visible, appear the rectangular uprights of the third bridge across the channel, installed that year. Charlevoix had experienced a building boom beginning in 1872 when the number of structures in town doubled, and rapid expansion continued after that. But Bridge Street did not ascend all the way up the south hill. A farmland fence ran across the top at what is today Hurlbut Street. The street stopped about halfway up near today's Belvedere Avenue. Traffic into and out of town to and from the south used Antrim Street which met the Norwood Road several blocks west. Wagon and cart tracks are visible in the photo curving around the Antrim Street corner. Bridge Street was a morass of muddy ruts after rainstorms, and its dust and grit blew into every building during dry windy periods. Several hundred barrels of water a day were required to keep the dust down until 1904 when Bridge Street received its first pavement. Until then our main artery had the look of a rough and ready frontier town.

COMMUNITY Highlights

Little Burgess gas station gets big makeover

JL SUMPTER
Northern Michigan Review

The rural community of Burgess has new life in an old, revamped gas station.

If you look northeast at the corners of Burgess Road and Old U.S. 31 Highway in Charlevoix County, you will see a little one pump filling station that served the small community more than 70 years ago. With the help of many area residents, owners Joe and Kathleen Rivard are working hard to historically restore the building.

The village of Burgess was once a thriving farming community, with a post office, grocery store and church. Although the post office closed in 1904, the filling station remained open and continued to provide the community with goods and supplies until its closing.

It is thought the Burgess Filling Station closed its doors after the war in 1946 when U.S. 31 carved its path along the shoreline from Bay Shore to Charlevoix. As the majority of the business was lost, owners Wess and Gladys L'huillier decided after more than 20 years the era must end.

Joe and Kathleen Rivard bought the property in 1976 and only recently did they decide to restore the filling station/grocery store. When the decision was made there was immediate interest from area residents.

"There are days when I arrive and there are items placed at the door hoping to help with the restoration," Joe said.

The old bright orange Gulf gas pump was located at Stu Holley's garage sale and is now back in its place, standing proudly at the front of the store. Although there are no intentions of opening for business, it will hopefully be available as a community museum in the near future.

Jim Hartwell of Horton Bay is assisting Joe in his quest and has played an integral role in uncovering the past. He spoke with many long-time residents in the area who talk of buying penny candy from the store when walking to Ba-shooto Greensky Church or buying loaves of bread when their grandmother didn't bake. In fact, some remember the filing station having a pump where gas flowed into a globe at the top of the pump before filling the vehicle. Hartwell is no stranger to old buildings as he is part of a family-owned business in Horton Bay for the past 103 years.

"It has been really fun and I believe it will continue to grow as the interest grows," said Joe.

Rivard and Hartwell are always looking for old stories of Burgess and the store. They have a box at the front of the building where residents can provide memories or contact information for items that may help with the project. Although it's closed for the season, the search for memories continues so stop by and leave a note if you are in the area.

Benefit event raises dollars for performing, visual, literary arts for Charlevoix's public academy

STAFF REPORT

CHARLEVOIX — Northwest Academy will again be hosting an evening of food and entertainment on Thursday, Nov. 7, at the Argonne Supper Club on the Boyne City Road in Charlevoix.

This year's event, called "A Notable Dinner," is a fundraiser in support of the performing, visual, literary arts and enrichment programs at Charlevoix's own public school academy, Northwest Academy.

Students (with professional and parental supervision) will be the hosts, waiters, bussers, dishwashers, cooks and kitchen helpers. Live entertainment will be provided by members of the Northwest Academy Advanced Band.

Dinner options will be the Argonne's shrimp, ribs or chicken. Desserts and a cash bar will also be available, but are not included in the price of the ticket. Dinner tickets are $25 per person in advance. Diners may come any time between 5-8 p.m.

Tickets may be purchased at Northwest Academy and The Clothing Company. Many Northwest Academy students and parents will also have tickets available. For more information call the school at (231) 547-9000.

Northwest Academy is planning additional fundraisers around the holidays and during the winter months, including a repeat of its successful "Cabin Fever Artsy, Musical Soup Cook-off" at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts.

Students from East Jordan Elementary School collected more than 2,400 books for Great Start FreeCycle Books. Each classroom competed to collect the most books. The winning class was teacher Gwen Catt's (back left) third grade.

East Jordan book collectors

STAFF REPORT

Students from East Jordan Elementary School collaborated with the Great Start Parent Leadership Council to host a book drive for the FreeCycle Book Bin project. With the help of the East Jordan Elementary students, more than 2,400 books were collected during the week-long schoolwide book drive.

The goal of the FreeCycle Book Bin project is to collect and distribute gently used books to children across Charlevoix, Emmet and northern Antrim counties. There currently are 39 bins within these communities found at locations where families and young children visit. Each colorful bin holds more than 50 books that range from infant board books to advanced chapter books. All books have a sticker on the cover that reads, "This Book is free — Great Start FreeCycle."

Parent Leadership Council member and East Jordan resident, Samantha Webb, took an active role in initiating the book drive as well as helping students collect and organize the donated books. The Great Start Parent Leadership Council works with parents and the greater community to strengthen families and promote optimal development of all young children. Students were sent home with a FreeCycle bag asking families to use the bag to donate books. Teacher Gwen Catt's third grade had the greatest classroom total, with 295 books collected, and is being rewarded with an ice cream party.

For more information about the Great Start Parent Coalition and FreeCycle Books, call (877) 866-3714 or email greatstartforkids@gmail.com

Coat drive returns to Clothing Company

Gently used coats and jackets will be collected at the Clothing Company from Monday, Nov. 11, through Sunday, Dec. 15, for the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project.

The donated items will be made available to families and individuals during the Christmas Project's distribution day on Friday, Dec. 20, at Bethany Lutheran Church.

For years, Clothing Company owner Jackie Dipen and her staff teamed up with the Christmas Project to fill the project's need for winter coats and each year the coat drive has been a great success. The Clothing Company's coat sale and special store incentive to encourage people to turn in their used coats for new will take place from Nov. 11-24. After the sale, Jackie and her staff will continue to collect coats for the Christmas Project until Dec. 15.

For further information about the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project contact the project's director, Bev Boss, at (231) 547-2078.

Fran graduated from Central Michigan University with a degree in K-12 education. She also obtained a master's of education specializing in learning disabilities from Wayne State University. She taught for Schoenhals Elementary School in Southfield for 15 years before retiring to her hometown of Charlevoix. She became one of the thousand points of light created by President George Bush by going into the Charlevoix Schools and assisting students needing extra tutoring services. One of her favorite activities after retiring was walking three miles a day with her younger sister, Faye. Their many adventures while walking brought them together for the first time since shortly after Faye was born and Fran started school in Mount Pleasant.

The funeral service was 1 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 5, at the Winchester Funeral Home. Visitation was from 4-8 p.m. Monday, Nov. 4, and from 11 a.m. until the time of the funeral on Tuesday. The Rev. Donald Kinloch of the First Presbyterian Church in Petoskey officiated. Burial was in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Ronald McDonald House of Detroit in memory of Meggin Hessler, 3911 Beaubien, Detroit, MI 48201.

Rosetta May Howe, 101

Rosetta May Howe, 101, of Charlevoix, passed away Thursday, Oct. 31, 2013, in Petoskey.

May Howe was born Rosetta May Mohney on Dec. 10, 1911, in Vicksburg, Mich., to John Ray and Jennie Bell Mohney.

In 1929, she married Sherman Howe in South Bend, Ind., and was soon blessed with two girls, Doris and Cora. In 1938, the family moved north and settled on several acres on the Boyne City Road. Their third child, Margaret, was born there.

May helped with logging, picking cherries and other crops, planting a garden, then harvesting and canning for wintertime.

In later years, May cooked in local restaurants and inns and for summer visitors who came to Charlevoix. May retired in 1977 from Hoskins Manufacturing after 14 years.

After retirement, she took care of children of former coworkers for many years. She continued many lifelong habits — long walks in the woods, church activities, cooking and canning — particularly her famous wild strawberry jam. She enjoyed reading, writing letters, doing crossword and jigsaw puzzles; she always kept busy and occupied.

She became ill in September of 2007, and resided at Bortz Health Center of Petoskey until she was ready to be taken home on Oct. 31.

May is survived by two daughters, Cora Clarke of Hobbs, N.M., and Margaret Kilbourn of Denison, Texas; nine grandchildren; 18 great-grandchildren; 20 great-great-grandchildren; and a host of other family members and friends.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Sherman; daughter, Doris Howe Crump; four brothers, Carl Mohney, William Mohney, Edwin Mohney, Don Mohney; three sisters, Beatrice Julien, Ethel Renew and Virginia Lash.

The funeral service will be at noon Thursday, Nov. 14, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where friends may meet May's family beginning at 10 a.m. Burial will be in the Undine Cemetery in Hayes Township.

Friske's Country Haus event returns

MEGAN WILSON
Courier contributor

Friske's Farm Market doesn't want the third weekend in November to be all about deer hunting. That's why the business will host its Country Haus event from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 16, at the market in Atwood, along U.S. 31 south of Charlevoix.

"Normally we do the sale closer to the holidays, but we decided to do it on opening weekend to give the ladies something to look forward to," said Heidi Friske Drost, of the orchard market. "We are having 25 percent off sales in the entire store."

Items that will be discounted come from the Victorian, chic, kitchen, bath, children's, lodge rustic, garden and Christmas themes.

"To go along with our customers' shopping experience, we will also be having live holiday music, refreshments and holiday snack samples," Drost said. "We will also have eggnog from Shetler's Dairy. They are based out of Kalkaska."

Shetler Family Dairy produces non-homogenized milk in glass bottles, and feed their cows grass, also guaranteeing the animals are free of antibiotics or other harmful contaminants that could pass into the final milk product.

This is the 10th year for the Country Haus event and Drost said it appears there is no slowing down for Friske's Farm Market.

"We started this event back in 2003, and it seems like every year things keep getting bigger. This year we decided to go back to a traditional sale format," she said. "I am happy to say that this year sales have been good and are going along at a steady pace. We hope that holiday sales will be even better."

Friske's Farm Market opened in 1962 and is operated by three generations of the Friske family. It can be found 10 miles south of Charlevoix on U.S. 31 in Atwood, and features apple cider, doughnuts, ice cream, as well as traditional holiday gift items and food.

Economic forum on tap, chamber looks to future

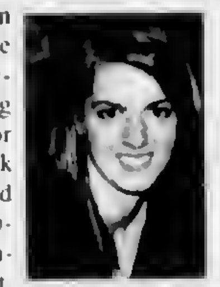
SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier editor

Strategic planning for Charlevoix is set for the near future in two venues.

First, the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance will facilitate a two-hour community forum designed to allow citizens the opportunity to share ideas about the community's economic development, which will be recorded and presented to local leaders. Secondly, the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce formed a selection committee to conduct a search for the new chamber president, following last month's resignation of six-year president Erin Bemis.

Both are apt to influence the direction Charlevoix's leadership will move in the future.

Bethany Pearson, Charlevoix's economic development coordinator, said the community forum is designed around small group discussions in which all attendees will be encouraged to participate. There will be an interactive and anonymous voting system for feedback presented in a collaborative environment, she said.



Pearson

"This event is the first step in engaging the public and collecting information to formulate a plan of success for Charlevoix," Pearson said. "The event plays hand in hand with what we are trying to accomplish through the Michigan Main Street Program."

Information generated during this session will be analyzed by officials from the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance and then used by sponsoring organizations, including the chamber and Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau, city of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority.

"Anyone who owns a business, raises their family, pays taxes in the community, or has a love for Charlevoix is an asset in this process," Pearson said. "The more diverse and engaged citizens we have, the better our results will be in the long run."

Topics expected to be presented at the event include how to maintain current businesses in Charlevoix, how to help grow businesses here and how to recruit new businesses to town. The event will run 6-8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 13, at Charlevoix Public Library, 220 W. Clinton.

Additionally, the chamber's selection committee to do the chamber president search includes Steve Seeley, Alicia Mosher, Rob Straebel, Kirby Diepert, Mike Hinkle and Jodi Bingham. Meanwhile, the chamber's executive committee is working to create a new chamber president job de-

Elementary school gets $2,270 for test drives

STAFF REPORT

Fox Charlevoix, the local Chrysler Group dealership, helped to raise $2,270 for Charlevoix Elementary with Chrysler brand's Drive for the Kids program. The fundraising event happened on Oct. 11 in conjunction with Grand Friend Day.

"The Chrysler brand and our local dealerships are committed to giving back to the communities where we do business," said Mike Dragojevic, director at the Great Lakes Business Center for Chrysler Group LLC. "We are extremely proud to support both schools and organizations, as they encourage student development and growth."

Participants earned a $10 contribution to the school on their behalf from the Chrysler brand by taking a brief test drive in a 2013 model Town & Country minivan, which is the highest ranked in loyalty 11 years running, as well as other Chrysler vehicles made available for test drives by Fox Charlevoix.

At the conclusion of the program, the school with the highest number of test drives in each one of the five geographic regions (Northeast, Southeast, Midwest, Central and West) will win an additional $5,000 for a total of $25,000 in additional funding from Chrysler through the Drive for the Kids program.

Since 1993, when Chrysler announced the Drive for the Kids program, Chrysler dealers worked with parents and educators in communities across the nation. Chrysler contributed nearly $5 million directly to local schools for student needs, from playgrounds and field trips to reading programs and new computers.

Chemotherapy and infusion center addition on the way

Chemotherapy patients in Charlevoix will be able to get services closer to home.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Board approved plans for the addition of a chemotherapy and infusion center at Charlevoix Area Hospital. The hospital has been working to renovate existing space for the service and the center is now in the initial stages of planning. The new center will be located in several former patient rooms with views overlooking Lake Michigan.

The center will feature six chairs and Charlevoix Area Hospital will provide highly specialized treatment for patients requiring chemotherapy, blood products, antibiotics, hydration therapy and other support infusions.

Jenks

The new center will provide care close to home, meaning that patients will no longer need to drive long distances for their necessary infusions or chemotherapy.

"We are beyond thrilled to offer the community a new state-of-the-art infusion center," said Lyn Jenks, president and CEO of Charlevoix Area Hospital.

"We have the opportunity to provide personalized, quality care to the community in a unique atmosphere and, most important, close to home."

While still in the early planning stages, Jenks said that the hospital hopes to have this important service implemented and available for patients in the spring of 2014.

Griffin exploration details to be revealed

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier editor

The findings of the Charlevoix-based exploration team that hoped to find and identify the long-lost Griffin shipwreck in Lake Michigan will soon be revealed.

Steve Liben, of Charlevoix, is the founder of Great Lakes Exploration Group who spearheaded the effort surrounding this historically significant ship, also known by the French equivalent Le Griffon. He said an exclusive expedition presentation will be shared at Charlevoix's library which details what is known at this point.

"This will be a complete update," Libert said.

The event is slated for 6:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 23, at Charlevoix Public Library, 220 W. Clinton. Tickets will cost $20 and will be available at the door on a first-come, first-served basis.

The report will involve information gleaned from recent scientific testing on a wooden beam thought to be from the famed shipwreck. In June, the expedition team brought up a 17th century bowsprit from Lake Michigan's floor and sent the artifact to Otsego Memorial Hospital in Gaylord for a CT scan.

Legendary explorer Rene-Robert Sieur de La Salle built and commanded the ship on behalf of King Louis XIV.

During its maiden voyage in September 1679, the Griffin departed from the area near present-day Green Bay, Wis. Carrying a crew of six and cargo of furs, the ship was never seen again.

The Griffin was the first full-sized ship to sail on the Great Lakes, and its fate is one of the Great Lakes' most enduring mysteries. Among many theories are that the vessel sank in a storm, was scuttled by a mutinous crew or was captured and burned by Native Americans.

Libert has been studying and searching for the Griffin for nearly three decades, calling it "the Holy Grail" of Great Lakes shipwrecks. He hasn't disclosed the exact location he is targeting but says it's near a group of islands near the Wisconsin line.

While diving in the area in 2001, he came across a length of timber protruding from the lake bottom. He says it could be the bowsprit or another part of the vessel, most of which is buried in sand and mud.

He has assembled a team of archaeologists — some from France — and scientific divers who conducted their most thorough examination this summer.

Great Lakes Exploration Group reached an agreement with the state and the French government in 2010 to cooperate in an effort to identify the wreck. If it is indeed the Griffin, they will reopen negotiations about how to deal with it, including whether it could be salvaged and publicly displayed.

The Nov. 23 event is planned as a political fundraising event for state Rep. Greg MacMaster, who seeks election to the Michigan Senate next year. Libert said MacMaster was instrumental in obtaining needed permits for the expedition. All proceeds of the event will benefit MacMaster for Senate.

Finally, three new chamber board members were elected to three-year terms, including Dennis Halverson of Charlevoix Rotary Club, Michael Wojan of Wojan Industries, and Jodi Bingham of GaGa for Kids. Also, the chamber's board is being expanded in December to include permanent, non-voting members. umbrella of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, all funds are directed to Charlevoix Public Schools under the Charlevoix Schools Foundation designation.

Pam Barnes, who is stepping down as foundation chairwoman this year, will remain on the board as a trustee. She served on the board for the past 10 years, seven as chairwoman. Barnes made special mention of Bob Klein, a retired downstate attorney who summers in Charlevoix and has a passion for education. Along with other local philanthropists, Klein spearheaded a recent kick off campaign and was able to raise $130,000 pledged over three years to feather the endowment fund nest. Barnes calls the donors who answered Klein's appeal, the "Six Angels."

"Because of their donations, the board has been able to donate as much as $20,000 twice a year for worthwhile educational proposals. Without generous people that provided seed money in the beginning years when it was getting off the ground, like Betty Hoffman, and more recently donors like Bob Klein's 'Angels,' the Charlevoix Foundation would not exist today," she said.

This year Julie Voci, who served on the board for the past three years, will assume Barnes' position as chairwoman. She is excited about this undertaking and is eager to assume her new role.

"There are four main categories for which we receive applications," she said. "They are: health and wellness, science and math, fine arts, and language arts and the humanities. We award grants twice a year. The board screens applicants and decides which proposals will ultimately make the most impact on the most kids."

The foundation's grant money has funded a variety of projects over the years — supplying calculators, CD players, physical education equipment, special education materials, performing arts productions, snowshoes, books for the media center, funding for a robotics program and fees to set up a Model United Nations group at the high school.

"A more recent grant is a Smart Music Application for the iPad which will provides accompaniment for the practice of musical instruments by hand members," Voci said. "It is refreshing to serve with people who are committed and dedicated. We all agree that if our schools aren't strong, our community won't be strong."

The act basically says that a person may not simultaneously hold two offices in which there is a potential for a conflict of interest.

In their opinion, Graham and Young cited the city's use of the county's election equipment and services as one example of a way that Sullivan could face a potential conflict of interest if he held both offices.

Contacted late Tuesday, Sullivan said he had consulted two attorneys before filing to run for the office, both of whom advised him that they did not see a problem with holding both offices. He said he would now will be seeking an opinion from the Michigan Attorney General's office on the matter.

Sullivan said if the Attorney General's opinion comes back the same as Graham's and Young's, then he will have to chose between the two offices.

But he said it's a decision he won't take lightly and one about which he will be talking to people in the community.

"There are a number of people out there that I've talked to already about what I should do if I can only have one position," Sullivan said. "I want to talk to a lot of people about it."

"If it had been a close race, that might have played into my decision. Even though she ran as a write-in, and that probably factored into the votes, I've got a lot of respect for Carol."

Sullivan said the only reason he filed to run for the clerk's office at the last minute was because Ochs had said she didn't plan to run, no one had yet filed to run as the filing deadline approached.

Following a successful city council recall election in May, Ochs announced that she would not seek re-election. About a month later she resigned from her post, in both cases citing criticism she felt from some segments of the community in the way she was doing her job.

Hearing the results Ochs said she ran simply to give voters a choice to vote for someone who had experience in the position and did not face the same uncertainty as Sullivan.

"I'm sure Larry will do a fine job," Ochs said.

If Sullivan were to not assume the clerk's office, the city council would have to appoint someone to fill the role until a replacement can be elected.

ments.

Last week the city's planning commission unanimously voted to recommend approval of the project to the council with 11 conditions, some of which include:

— The developers must pay in advance for their portion of water main upgrade for Pine River Lane needed for the project. To accommodate the development, the old 4-inch main would be replaced with a new 8-inch main. The developers' estimated cost for the work is $22,000-$30,000.

— The developer must design and install a state- and city-approved water and sewer system on the site.

The developer must grant a permanent utility easement to the city on the property.

— The developers must provide a performance bond in the amount of $50,000. The bond would cover expenses the city could incur should the developers start the projected and then fail to complete it as planned.

— The steepest grade on the site may be no more than 13 percent, as recommended by national standards, to facilitate emergency vehicle access.

The city received a handful of letters about the project, a couple in favor of it and a couple with some concerns.

Kristin Jones, who owns the single family home immediately to the east of the property expressed concerns in letters and at the planning commission meeting last week about the density of the project, its lack of green space and how well it fit into the overall character of the street.

She did not speak at Monday's council meeting.

Spencer told the planning commission that the project meets with zoning regulations and did not require any variances.

The development will also likely generate some much-needed tax revenue for the city, and other taxing entities.

City treasurer Rick Brandi made a very rough estimate that the city alone could see an additional $20,000 in property tax revenue on the property once the development is complete. However, those tax revenues won't likely start rolling in until 2016.

The development will be built on a mostly-vacant 0.69-acre lot at 115 Pine River Lane. Pine River Lane runs west off of Petoskey Avenue (U.S. 31) just north of the Weathervane Restaurant.

The development would include seven single-family, 3,190-square-foot units each with three bedrooms, three bathrooms and a two-car garage. The units are proposed to be wood frame construction, 2.5 stories with gable roofs, 30 feet tall (measured from the finished grade to the midpoint between the ridge and the eaves) and have a stone veneer and shingle lapboard-style siding.

In a press release issued following Monday's approval, Mansfield wrote, "We are excited to be the first development team to undertake a project using the city's new ordinances which facilitate smart growth principals. This unique development fits with the vision for a walkable, sustainable downtown Charlevoix."

According to the developer each unit will include 2700 square feet of living space with a 2-car garage. Units are currently available for reservation with expected groundbreaking in spring of 2014 and project completion by summer 2015, company officials said.

"As both a top summer tourist destination in the state and an economic anchor in Northern Michigan, Charlevoix is a natural choice for this new luxury townhome development," Midtown Development's Tim Burden, project developer for Charlevoix Pointe said.

Midtown Development Inc. is a Traverse City-based company specializing in the development of downtown residential townhome properties. The company's projects throughout Northern Michigan include River's Edge, Midtown Centre, Fairway Hills, Traditions and Uptown Riverfront Townhomes. COUNCIL

Gibson said she was "very happy" that she and Porter were victorious in the election.

"We are going to keep the city going forward in a positive direction," Gibson said. She added that she is looking forward to working on initiatives to help stimulate the city's economy, such as the Michigan Main Street program.

Picha also offered her thanks to her supporters.

"I want to thank the people who believed in me," she said. "It's too bad that some people believed some of the had things that people said about me."

Perron will assume Campbell's seat on the council at its next regular meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 18. It will mark Perron's first time serving on the council. Prior to the election, Perron, who ran unsuccessfully as a write-in candidate last year, said he ran for council because he feels it is time for him to give back to the community.

On Monday, during what will likely be his final meeting on the council before Perron takes over, Campbell thanked those who supported him in the May election and wished the rest of the council well going forward.

Rayders to face rival Ramblers in district title match

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

A win, and now just a win away.

The Charlevoix High School volleyball team rolled past Mancelona, 25-16, 25-10, 25-12, Wednesday in a Class C district semifinal match at the Charlevoix High School gym.

With the win, the Rayders advanced to a district final match at 6 p.m. Thursday, at the Charlevoix High School gym against Lake Michigan Conference foe and rival Boyne City.

The Ramblers advanced to the district final with a 25-21, 25-15, 20-25, 25-13 win over Johannesburg-Lewiston in their semifinal match Wednesday.

"We are going to have to buckle down and play our game on our court Thursday," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "The last match up with Boyne was at the Lake Michigan Conference tournament in which we defeated them in the semifinals.

"If my girls play with that energy, they will perform well for the big final."

On Wednesday against Mancelona, Madeline Boss finished with 18 kills, three digs, and ace and was 100 percent serving, while Jennaca Holecheck added 10 kills, seven digs and an ace.

Also for the Rayders, Olivia Storm had 18 assists, three aces and was a perfect 14-of-14 serving, while Gloria Greene added eight assists and was 100 percent serving. Emily Zabawa had four kills and two assists, while Madi Carey added three kills and Yogi Hang added three aces and two assists.

Kelsey Pischner had two solo blocks and Kylee Scholten added one block.

"We really didn't know too much about Mancelona before meeting up with them, so I was proud the girls could play their game," Randall said. "In the first set their middle hitter had an interesting off pace hit which took us a few minutes to adapt to, but our strong net play kept us right there until our defense figured things out.

"The next two sets all the girls got playing time," Randall said. "I wanted each girl to realize they can be contributors to the game at anytime."

On Monday in a Class C district opening match at the Charlevoix High School gym, the Rayders swept Elk Rapids, 25-19, 25-19, 26-24, to earn a trip to the semifinals.

"The girls were all amped up about starting districts," Randall said. "We came out poised and ready for this day knowing we had never played Elk Rapids with all their players present, so we didn't want to play with any assumptions on the table because we had beaten them in season."

Randall was impressed with all three of the Rayders matches on the night.

"The first game we played with our energy high, the second game we were working our systems, but the third game we struggled a little bit with serve receive but were able to stay grounded and complete the match with a close win," Randall said.

Charlevoix was led by Madeline Boss with 17 kills, three aces and four digs and Holecheck who finished with 14 kills, 12 digs and one ace.

Greene and Storm each had 17 assists, while Greene and Madi Carey each had two kills, Scholten and Pischner each had a kill.

The Rayders were particularly good on the night with blocking the Elks' shots, led by Zabawa, who had four blocks and three kills.

"Our blocking at the net was exciting especially with Emily's energy," Randall added.

Holecheck and Scholten each added two blocks, while Boss had one block.

Way takes second at state

Trailed leader by 1.5 seconds

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

BROOKLYN — Every second counts took on a whole new meaning for Charlevoix junior Amber Way on Saturday.

With a difference of less than two seconds, Way placed second overall at the Division 3 Michigan High School Athletic Association girls' state finals at at the Michigan International Speedway in Brooklyn.

Way has made a habit of first place finishes in her years as a Rayder including this season as she had not lost a race she's competed in, but a time of 18 minutes, 4.2 seconds trailed winner and defending Division 3 individual state champion Gina Patterson of Macomb Lutheran North by one and a half seconds as Patterson finished at 18:02.7.

"It was a great race the whole way through," Charlevoix coach Mary Plude said. "Basically they were head-to-head from the beginning. It was just a great dual race.

"They just kept going back-and-forth over the last mile and Amber had a couple strides lead with about a half to go. Gina countered with about 200 to go and Amber couldn't respond to that one."

Plude felt Way was happy with her performance, but knows as great as a competitor as she is, talk of a first place finish next year has already begun.

"She was thrilled," Plude said. "She ran her race and she made challenges and it was a great competitor to race against. She already knows what she's going to do next and already talking about what we're going to work on."

Way's second place finish earned the junior standout her third-straight all-state medal.

Last season, Way placed fourth in 18:13.6, while as a freshman Way finished ninth overall in 18:55.0.

Way is also the defending Division 3 state champion in the 3,200-meter run, as this past spring she finished in a Division III meet record time of 10:48.48, beating the previous record of Nicole Bush in 2004 set at 10:57.16.

Joining Way at the finals on Saturday was teammate and senior Caroline Boss, who made the finals as an individual qualifier and finished 40th overall with a time of 20:09.0.

"It was a great way to end her career," said Plude. "She was only I think 20 seconds out from being all-state, 10 places.

"She (Boss) just ran an outstanding race. She got out there and she ran the way I always knew she could run. It was just a very impressive race."

The Shepherd girls won the Division III team title, finishing with 120 points, while Benzie Central was second, 136; followed by Macomb Lutheran Northern, 214.

The Charlevoix boys' cross country team advanced to the state finals with a third place finish at their regional at the Grand Traverse Resort and Spa, and placed 12th overall out of 27 teams with 349 points.

Benzie Central won the Division III boys' team state title with 111 points, while Stockbridge was second, 129; and Lansing Catholic was third, 189.

Lansing Catholic's Keenas Rehera won the Division III boys' individual state title as he finished in 15:31.0; while Mason Country Central's Chase Barnett was runner-up in 16:00.9.

Seniors Tristen Rudolph and Jackson Buday led the way for the Rayders with times of 17:10.4 and 17:31.5 respectively. Rudolph placed 56th, while Buday was 99th.

"Great leadership with Tristen and Jackson. They weren't vocal leaders, but their actions spoke for them," Charlevoix boys coach Ken Plude said.

Also for the Rayders Noah Jeakle was 115th, 17:47.7; Luke Buday, 117th, 17:49.8; Lucas VonLau, 148th, 18:12.7; Nicholas Plude, 158th, 18:20.0; and Shae Bearss, 207th, 19:10.8.

As a team the Rayders combined for a time of 88:32.1 and averaged 17:42.5.

"They ran a very strong race, made a few mistakes, but for not being ranked, they did extremely well I think," Ken Plude added. "We wanted to get top 10. I think if we would have had a perfect day, we would have done that. But it's kind of hard to have a perfect day."

While Rudolph and Jackson Buday will graduate this year, Plude likes the team he'll have hitting the course next fall.

"It's a strong unit. There's a lot of young guys that have been working hard and should drop time if they keep it up," Plude said. "We're going to have a good crew coming back."

Also, Harbor Springs junior Marcus Garrow finished just six spots away from an all-state medal as he finished 36th overall with a time of 16:54.6.

Bethany Pearson, Charlevoix's economic development director, speaks to forum participants about the importance of community members working together to create momentum.

Forum focuses on Charlevoix's economic dynamics

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier editor

Charlevoix's economic development forum Wednesday brought about 70 people out on a blustery evening to a community brainstorming session at Charlevoix Public Library.

"Tonight we're just going to be gathering information," said Andy Hayes, president of Northern Lakes Economic Alliance who managed the public forum.

The idea is to take suggestions from the public and organize the feedback for community leaders to review and consider while making choices about Charlevoix's future direction. The forum involved small group discussions and all participants shared ideas in a flurry of colorful sticky notes, each with a single idea or recommendation explained to the others in the group.

Wednesday's forum is precisely the type of group effort the Charlevoix community needs, said Bethany Pearson, the city's economic development

Council to consider future of clerk, marina, public safety

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix City Council will consider how it wants to proceed with some proposed changes to the city clerk's office, city public safety administration and the city's marina.

All three topics are on the agenda for the council's next meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 18.

First, the council will further discuss a proposal to change the city clerk's position from an elected to an appointed post. Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel proposed the idea earlier this year, shortly after then-city clerk Carol Ochs announced she would not seek re-election. At that time, Straebel noted that a survey by the Michigan Municipal League showed that of 127 reporting municipalities, 106 had an appointed clerk, 16 had elected clerks and five did not specify.

> "An elected clerk may or may not have the skill set for the job."
> — Rob Straabel, Charlevoix city manager

Straebel went on to write in his memo: "An elected clerk may or may not have the skill set for the job. The duties require strong administrative, written and verbal skills as well as knowledge about the Freedom of Information Act, drafting meeting minutes, archiving, issuing licenses, and a bevy of other professional skills. If the new clerk does not have these skills, they will need to attend training to learn the intricacies of running the clerk's office."

To make the change from an elected to an appointed city clerk would require modifying the city charter, which can be done only by a vote of the people.

Straebel said he plans to request legal opinions from city attorney Jim Young on what options are available for the city. One issue that he expects the legal opinions to address is if the ballot language can, or should be worded for the change to take immediate effect or if it would take effect two years from now.

Straebel said his initial goal would be to have the ballot question on the change to the charter ready to go in time for the next available election date, Tuesday, Feb. 25. In order for that to happen, the ballot language must be approved by the council and the Michigan Attorney General's office by Dec. 17.

The council also will consider a proposal to expand a portion of the city's marina, which would allow it to accommodate more large boats.

In September, the council gave city staff the OK to continue looking into the idea that could allow the city to reach some untapped revenue based on a high demand in recent summers for large boat slips — especially those in the 70-80-foot range.

Currently, the marina has just three 80-foot slips, two 65-foot slips, five 50-foot slips and three 45-foot slips. The rest of the marina's existing 70 slips range in size from 28 feet to 44 feet. Also, the end of Dock A can accommodate a 115-foot vessel, while the end of Dock B can accommodate a 96-foot vessel.

Rick-Biddick appeals for compensation

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

During the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners' regular meeting, recycling committee member Michelle Rick Biddick went before the commission to ask for payment for work she had done on behalf of the committee.

Each year for about 10 years, the recycling committee has organized tours of the Emmet County Drop-off Center for all Charlevoix County fourth-graders. Until the 2012 tours, a Charlevoix County employee called each school district and fourth-grade teacher to arrange dates and times of the outing. That year, however, Rick-Biddick took over those duties.

Rick Biddick also, as she has done each year, led the tours at the recycling center.

"As the education coordinator for the (Charlevoix County) recycling committee, I was given the task to implement and get started a program with all the fourth-graders in Charlevoix County and enable them to come up to Emmet County to see how the recycling process works," said Rick Biddick. "So every year I have done this, which has been a good 10 years. I have been tagged without question, without any written contract. I have submitted my bill and have been paid."

But this year, Rick Biddick says she has not been paid for the time she worked. Because she put in extra hours in order to organize the tour, she asked for more compensation. When the Charlevoix County employee realized she wouldn't have time to organize the trip, Rick-Biddick asked if the program would continue.

"It takes quite a bit of work to contact all the teachers and see what dates work best for Emmet County. There are four days of tours with two-hour intervals for each group," she said.

The program went forward, and Rick Biddick said she was told she would be paid — and she was, but only about a third of what she had requested — $300 rather than the $900 she submitted. Rick Biddick said she was paid for her mileage and given a $75-per-day stipend that is typically paid to committee members if they have to attend a meeting more than four hours long.

"The fact of the matter is that it was written into the budget to do this, and they don't want to do this, and it's an insult to Michelle," said Nancy Ferguson, who, along with Rick-Biddick is one of the founding members of the Charlevoix County recycling commit-

Ladies' Night benefits charities

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier editor

The Spa Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Elks on Tuesday sponsored the second annual Charlevoix Ladies' Night at the Elks lodge downtown.

"This year we have more than 20 vendors," said Brenda Lamb, who owns the sponsoring spa.

The recurring free admission event is designed to raise funds for local charities and provide some fun for Northern Michigan women. Door prize ticket sales benefit Charlevoix's Community Christmas program, non-perishable food donations go to Charlevoix Food Pantry, 50/50 raffle proceeds benefit the Elks lodge, which did not charge rental fees for the event. Finally, donations were collected for local Relay for Life.

Lamb said the night is meant to be a type of business exposition for businesses of interest to women. Vendors came from across Charlevoix County, as well as Traverse City, Petoskey and Harbor Springs.

"We are always accepting new businesses to participate," Lamb said.

Elks members Jodi Alger-Bergmann and Lori Mitchell, both of Charlevoix, sold raffle and door prize tickets at the door, as well as collected food pantry donations. They agreed that events such as Ladies' Night are important because of the charitable aspect of the event, but also because it's fun during the week when many hunters are in the woods. "It's also great for Christmas gift ideas," Mitchell said.

Lamb said many local businesses spend summers staying quite busy tending to the tourist population in the region, but can take this time of the season to focus on the local customers.

"We need to let them know they are very important to us," Lamb said.

For more information about future events like this, call Lamb at (231) 330-4469 or email brendalamb@yahoo.com

The Charlevoix Elks will again host the organization's Douglas Meredith McNabb Thanksgiving Veterans Memorial Swim in Lake Michigan.

The annual event began in 2001 as a friendly wager regarding the event's namesake, who is John McNabb's brother who died in Vietnam. The Elks organized the swim each year since 2009 and it is now in its 12th year. Money raised benefits local veterans and their families.

"There probably will be 75-80 swimmers and 300 people down at the beach watching and supporting them," said Ed Rogalla, event co-coordinator.

Anyone who wishes to participate should simply show up prior to 11 a.m. on Thursday, Nov. 28, at Charlevoix's Michigan Beach. Swimmers jump in promptly at 11 a.m and the action often doesn't last long.

"It's shocking. It's definitely a shock to your system," said Scott Ellis, the other event co-coordinator who annually participates. "Last year the water was 42 degrees."

Ellis said he expects colder temperatures this season.

No wet suits are allowed and successful participants must complete three swimming strokes. Most end up entirely submerged. Ellis also suggests swimmers wear shoes and bring a fresh set of warm, dry clothes to put on immediately after leaving the lake.

The event is free to participants, but the idea is to raise money for local veteran programs. Donations will be accepted at Michigan Beach on Thanksgiving Day and the goal is to collect $3,000.

Call (231) 459-8037 for more information about the swim.

Donations can be mailed to Charlevoix Elks Lodge No. 2856, 104 Mason St., Suite 105, Charlevoix, MI 49720. The lodge can be called at (231) 237-0200.

The event's namesake, Douglas Meredith McNabb, graduated in 1965 from Traverse City High School. He continued his education at Northwestern Michigan College and showed great promise as an artist. Doug married Karen Neal in 1967 and they had one son, Christopher Heath McNabb. Doug served in Vietnam and was a squad leader deployed on search and destroy operations. Doug was killed in action on Feb. 25, 1968, near Ngoc Tri, just six months shy of his 21st birthday.

Boyne City Woman injured in crash

ADVANCE — A Boyne City woman was injured in a one-vehicle traffic crash in Charlevoix County's Eveline Township Thursday.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider identified the injured woman as the driver, Sarah McBee, 26.

Deputies said the crash happened around 8:30 a.m. on Ferry Road near Worn Road.

Authorities said McBee was traveling northwest on Ferry Road in a 2012 Chevrolet Traverse when she left the road and struck a large pine tree causing airbag deployment.

Firefighters from the Boyne City Fire Department had to free McBee from the vehicle with extrication tools because her leg was pinned between the seat and the dash of the vehicle, according to the report.

McBee was transported by Boyne City Ambulance to McLaren Northern Michigan hospital in Petoskey. She was later transported to Munson Medical Center in Traverse City for treatment of multiple injuries including compound fractures and possible internal injuries.

The crash remains under investigation.

Sheriff advises hunting safety tips and precautions

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider offers safety tips for hunting season:

— Hunting license and the identification used to purchase it must be carried at all times while hunting.

— Hunters must wear an item of clothing in hunter orange that is visible from all sides; if camouflage, at least 50 percent of the garment must be orange.

— Hunting hours begin about a half-hour before sunrise and last until about a half-hour after sunset.

— Safety zones include all areas within 150 yards of an occupied building, house, cabin, barn or other farm building; hunting is not allowed in these zones without written permission from the property owner.

— It is illegal to drink alcohol or use intoxicating drugs before or while hunting.

The following precautions can help prevent injury or death:

— Hunters should familiarize themselves with the area they are hunting.

— Hunters should never assume they are alone in the woods.

— Hunters should never assume other hunters are behaving responsibly.

— Hunters sitting against a rock or tree should ensure it is wider than their shoulders to avoid being mistaken for a target.

— Hunters should be 100 percent sure of their target before shooting.

Many hands works, or not

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

The English proverb, "Many hands make light work" can either work or not work to your advantage.

There are no fast and hard rules on this. As with anything else in life there are exceptions that defy logic, case in point; doing the laundry. When my husband and I were newlyweds it took awhile to determine how tasks would be shared. Maybe because he went through more jeans than I and he loved working outdoors he decided to help with the laundry. Unfortunately for me, my clothes needed either to be dry cleaned or carefully placed on a delicate cycle and hung to dry. Knowing that darks and lights needed to be separated was a good thing, but cleaning all of our clothes together to save time and be helpful wasn't working. My clothes began to fit a young and very stylish child, but not my 5-foot-7-inch frame. It might have been his way of saying, "If I do this wrong, I might not have to do it again"; or maybe not. So as not to end up being hung out to dry, he stopped doing the laundry.

Fast forward 30 years. He does his. I do mine. Occasionally we share this activity, after all we are retired and are looking for things to do — not — and I wear more jeans now. My cute expensive denims still shrink if put on high heat in the dryer. I have to admit it was a good source of exercise doing knee bends trying to make them fit again, and who needs stretchy bands when you have jeans to stand on and stretch to get them back to their original length?

There are occasions when an extra pair of hands does help. This past weekend, friends gathered to move hay bales from one farm to another — and tried to do so before the next shower fell from the darkened skies. It reminded me of the days when family and friends would come together to raise a barn. Thank goodness it was just stocking up hay for the winter and not building. At least eight of the 16 hands available might have created more work for those who knew what they were doing.

Veterans Day has passed but I want to be certain to thank the many hands that have protected us on a daily basis. Strong and caring hands never taken for granted keeping all of us out of harm's way. I also want to thank the hands of many others who help us in our everyday lives. There are hands of skilled physicians, nurses and technicians, paramedics and aides when we are struggling with health issues. I want to thank the hands that hold our loved ones when they are in the care of someone other than ourselves whether it is hospice volunteers or caregivers we've encountered to be there when we are not able. Thank you to the teachers, whose hands guide our children and grandchildren and encourage them to raise their own hands to satisfy their questions. Thank you to the persons who deliver our mail and packages that seem to arrive on time and dry even on the worst of days. Thank you to the hands that help me check out at stores and are patient when I decide to help you pack them. Thank you to the police officers who keep everyone safe by stopping me now and then to remind me I am driving too fast.

Whether it's making a meal, cleaning a home, outside yard work, tending to children, parents or grandparents it always nice to have extra hands because it really does make the load less heavy plus the time passes quickly and there is joy created when individuals come together.

So I will finish with another proverb, "Too many cooks spoil the broth"; many think that adding another ingredient is necessary. It does not refer to the number of hands helping in the kitchen but if you're a control freak please feel free to use it. All in all good proverbs and the season for me to use them has just begun.

GUEST COLUMN:

Every November, Hospice of Northwest Michigan reaches out to our community to raise awareness about the compassionate care that hospice and palliative care provide patients and families coping with serious and life-limiting illness. This month of awareness provides an opportunity for us to remind people that hospice care and palliative care helps patients and families focus on living.

This surprises some people.

Those of us who have worked in the field have seen first-hand how hospice and palliative care can improve the quality of life. And research shows that families report a better quality of life under hospice and palliative care. To further the surprise, there's a growing body of research showing that hospice and palliative care may prolong the lives of some people who receive care.

The hospice team provides expert medical care to keep patients comfortable and able to enjoy time with loved ones. The hospice team answers questions, offers advice on what to expect, and helps families with the duties of being a caregiver. The team also provides emotional and spiritual support for the entire family.

With the help of hospice, patients and families alike can focus on what's most important — enjoying life together and living as fully as possible.

This important message lasts beyond the month of November and is important all-year round.

If you or a loved one is facing a serious or life-limiting illness, the time to find out more about hospice and palliative care is right now. There is more that can be done. For information, please call (231) 547-6092 or (800) 551-4140.

Signs of the signs

Editor:

Empty storefronts reflect a community's economic vitality, possible its overal long-term viability, decrease its visitors' pleasure, motivate its own residents to shop elsewhere, limit employment opportunities, lower real estate values, increase property insurance premiums because empty stores are a higher risk. What is being done to change this situation in Charlevoix? Is anyone trying to help landowners lease their buildings? Are the landowners doing more than putting small "for lease" or "for rent" signs in their windows? Is the size style of these signs dictated by the city's sign ordinance or by MDOT restrictions? Or by the owners not wanting to invest in more money in a building that is not producing any income? Some business people refer to the people responsible for enforcing the sign ordinance (in a derogatory way). Why? Because the ordinance's regulations are not evenly applied or consistently enforced. What needs to change? I'll leave that question to the people of Charlevoix.

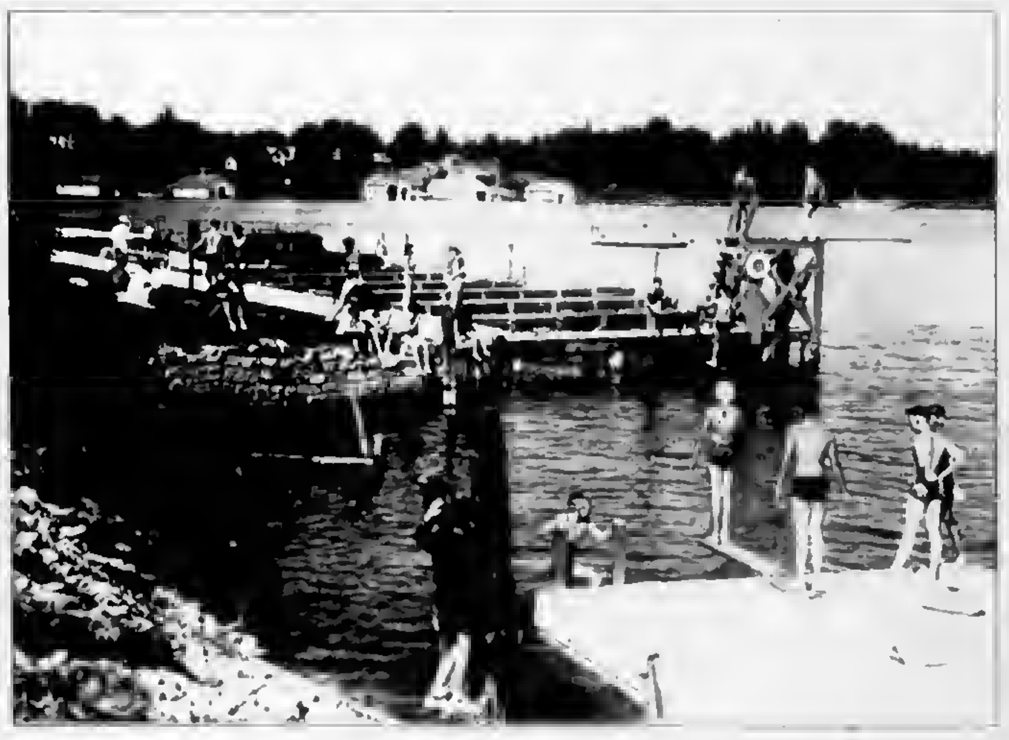
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…



When East Park was begun in 1937, this undeveloped, grass-rimmed jog in the waterfront appeared below what is now the flagpoles, clock and walkway area. The docks in the background were added to the five that had been installed between Mason and Antrim Streets in the late 20s. Now Charlevoix could offer much more needed space for pleasure boats. At the end of the southernmost new dock appeared a relatively high diving board; within the jog was placed a raft holding a low board. In the middle distance appears a second raft out in Round Lake. All these became immediately popular and well used, but not long after some swimmers and divers began to get sick. It wasn't until the 1940s that the city realized that the waste discharged directly into the water from all the boats, not into holding tanks as is required today, was the cause. Immediately swimming and diving in Round Lake were forbidden, the high board taken down, and the two rafts removed to the municipal beaches.

Quiz Bowl team to be on public TV

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL
Courier editor

Charlevoix High School's Quiz Bowl team will be on public television this weekend.

Central Michigan University's Public Television will broadcast "Quiz Central," the academic quiz show in which Charlevoix's team competed against other schools, such as Meridian, Whittemore-Prescott and Mio. The competition was recorded in October.

"They got beat kind of good," said Pete Scholten, the team's academic advisor. "The other team had one girl and she knew everything … They knew the answers to a lot of the questions, but you have to be fast on the buzzer."

Each of the Charlevoix team members contributed in these recent rounds of competition, Scholten said.

"They did great and it's a great group of kids. It's a lot of fun and it attracts the best of the best who excel academically," he said.

Theses new episodes of "Quiz Central" will air this week, the first already broadcast on Wednesday, with the next at 5:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 16. An encore presentation of the episodes will air at 2 and 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 17.

Teams compete in four divisions based on school size to earn scholarships to Central Michigan University. Each division's championship team will take home four $2,500 one-year CMU scholarships and four textbooks scholarships to the CMU Bookstore.

"We're excited to be able to showcase the best and brightest students from our small towns and our big cities," said Kurt Wilson, the show producer.

More information about the show and its competitors is found at www.wcmu.org/tv/quizcentral online.

Girl Scouts from Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and Petoskey collect food for area food pantries during a movie event at Charlevoix Cinema.

Girl Scouts descend on Cinema

Girl Scout troops from Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and Petoskey recently attended their third annual movie event and food collection drive at the Charlevoix Cinema.

Girl Scouts brought in boxes and cans of food for Thanksgiving dinners to give to the local food pantries in Charlevoix and Ellsworth. Charlevoix Cinema also made a donation of canned goods toward the effort. In all, more than eight boxes and bins of food were collected.

In addition, Charlevoix Cadette Troop No. 10253 recently participated in the Every Dress Has a Story community service project in connection with Goodwill. The troop donated 25 gently used dresses to be provided to girls and women in need. As part of this service project, donors submitted stories telling the reason a dress was special to the donor for the new owner to read.

Scouting encourages action, advocacy and service. Girls in kindergarten through 12th grade can join Girl Scouting at any time during the year, a great way for girls to build courage, confidence, life skills and make lifelong friendships.

There will be a $12 entry fee for individuals and a $30 entry fee per family, if preregistered before noon on Wednesday, Nov. 27. Entry fee will be $15 for an individual and $35 per family the day of the race. Register online at www.cah.org.

Toddlers in strollers and leashed, friendly pets are free to participate. The hospital asks for donations of non-perishable food items that will be distributed to local food pantries.

American Legion Auxiliary offers charity programs

Charlevoix's American Legion Auxiliary will offer two charitable programs in the weeks leading up to the Christmas holiday.

First, the auxiliary in a partnership with the Charlevoix Elks, will collect from now until Christmas men's socks and warm winter gloves for homeless veterans at the Patriot's Home. Donations can be dropped off at the Veterans Affairs office at the courthouse in Charlevoix or the Elks lodge.

Secondly, the auxiliary will host a bazaar titled "Help Us Help Them" from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 7, at the VFW Hall in Charlevoix. The fundraiser will benefit local veterans. Tables will be rented to crafters for $10 and various foods will be sold, such as chili, soup and hot dogs, as well as baked sweets. Additionally, there will be a baked goods raffle.

To make a reservation or learn more, call Birdie Whitley at (231) 547-6454 or Joan Coyne at (231) 547-6868.

Rotary Club donates $35,000

The Rotary Club of Charlevoix announced it donated more than $35,000 to community projects and programs during the past two years.

The nonprofit organization's main local focus is on the youth of the community and education. During the past two years, the club donated more than $15,000 to Charlevoix Public Schools. The grants supported the performing arts program, field trips and scholarships to enable at-risk children to attend preschool.

The Charlevoix Rotary Club also is the main sponsor of the Students Taking Renewed Interest in the Value of Education, or STRIVE, program at Charlevoix High School. STRIVE is designed to identify and provide a mentor to students who struggle in school. At the end of the program, scholarships and an additional $1 per hour pay premium for summer jobs are provided to those students who successfully complete the program. Other scholarships are provided to students who attend the Rotary Life Leadership Conference and middle school students in recognition of high achievement.

Charlevoix'a Rotary Club donated thousands of dollars to the community during the last two years.

The Charlevoix Rotary Club also distributed more than $20,000 to support local community projects and programs. That support includes contributions to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Camp Daggett, Top of Michigan Trails Council, Charlevoix Little League and Charlevoix Venetian Festival. The club also hosts an annual Thanksgiving dinner at Pine River Place to honor senior citizens who live there.

In 2014, the organization will again support these and many other projects including a total upgrade of Rotary Park, found next to the softball fields in Charlevoix.

The Charlevoix Rotary Club hosts several fundraisers each year to enable its philanthropic work. Its largest fundraiser is the annual St. Patrick's Day party at Castle Farms. The coming year's event will be on Saturday, March 15. Participants enjoy dinner, dancing and spirits, with the knowledge their attendance helps multiple worthy local causes.

The 38 members of the Rotary Club of Charlevoix will continue to make a positive impact in the Charlevoix community and live by their motto of "Service above Self."

Mona Doyle, 76

Mona Doyle, 76, passed away Oct. 31, 2013, at Charlevoix Area Hospital. She was born in Charlevoix, April 8, 1937, to Dean R. and Margaret (Johnson) Davenport. Mona graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1955. She attended Central Michigan University where she participated as a cheerleader, later attending Davenport School of Business.

In 1960, she married Gene Warren. Mona enjoyed her career as an executive secretary and later became a licensed Realtor while living in Charlevoix.

She is survived by her sons, Todd (Cindy) Warren of San Antonio, Texas, and Troy Warren of Santa Rosa, Calif.; brother, Dean (Joyce) Davenport of Charlevoix and Big Rapids; grandchildren, Nick (Alexandra) Warren, and Brittany Warren of San Antonio, Lindsey Warren of Santa Rosa; great-grandson, Ethan Warren; many nieces and nephews; her special friends, Gaye Billman and Laurie Randall, and her dear cat, Boo. She was preceded in death by parents; her husband, Jim Doyle; sister, Margot; brother-in-law, Karl Robinson.

She was an accomplished musician. After moving to California in the early 60s, Mona became a member of the Sweet Adelines Barber Shop Society. While living in San Francisco area, she joined the Metropolitans Quartet which in 1969, were crowned the International Queens of Harmony at the 23rd annual International Convention of Sweet Adelines. Shortly after touring the USA, the Metropolitans were sent by the USO to entertain our troops in the Far East.

Upon returning to her roots in Charlevoix, she was an active resident of Pine River Place. She created a monthly newsletter that contained information pertinent to seniors, called "The Link." She led a fitness class. She researched the need for a bus to travel to Petoskey so that seniors could shop, visit doctors, and see friends on a weekly basis. Mona was responsible for starting a project called "Ziplock for Kids," which sent school supplies in a ziplock bag to the military in Iran and Afghanistan so they could be distributed to needy children. She participated in a "Hope for Haiti" project which sent cards of hope to displaced children. In 2008 she was awarded the Charlevoix Rotary Club's "Service Above Self Award" for her successful projects.

Mona's life will be celebrated during a memorial service to be scheduled at a later date. Memorials may be directed to Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Michael Roth and his treasured Charlevoix

Michael Roth was a well-known local sailor.

Four years ago, my husband and I purchased a Charlevoix condo in the Harbour Club on Belvedere Avenue. Our first introduction was not with Michael. We met MICJAY, his 60-foot sailboat. She sits in her slip, directly in front of our large windows on Round Lake Harbor. I was, for the next few years, a voyeur. I had a front row seat to a marvelous and continuous show: Michael Roth and lots of company.

My first and best recollection of Michael is of a very tall, handsome, well-built presence making his way down the wooden walkway toward his boat. He was lugging a huge silver breathing machine with tubes in his nose. One will never accuse me of shyness and I said, "Hi, I'm Jennifer. We just moved in." I extended my hand. "I am sorry. I can't shake. I have a lung disease. I can't take a chance on germs. I'm on a list for a lung transplant," he replied. His voice was soft, yet deep and commanding. I believe we exchanged the usual pleasantries. He lived downstate with his wife Janie, daughter Julee, sons Jared and Jaimey, and as time passed, five grandchildren. He moved on toward the boat. Michael insisted on getting aboard solo. Decisive. Proud. "I have sailed throughout the world. There is no place more beautiful than Charlevoix." He inhaled everything CVX including its hill of feast. He met with his buddies most mornings in Juilleret's. Lunches at The Weathervane, Edgewater Bistro, The Villager, burgers from A Girl A Guy and A Grill in the harbor, or ordering from Scovies, "the best sandwich in town." Dinner at Terry's was a favorite. He was a polite diner, never impatient or demanding. The Grey Gables Inn was a local haunt for the Roths, especially for Tuesday night half-off burgers and beer, though Michael was a teetotaler. The table conversation always was lively. His viewpoint was fair, his ear always piqued for he was an excellent listener.

If life is a party, Michael's was a gala. He was a man of inclusion. He wanted people to like him so he could like them back, threefold. His official obituary proclaimed that he left "A world of friends" behind. It was almost impossible to count the number of people who came to play on MICJAY: Friends from around the world and men and women who grew up with him in Detroit. They all learned their tack and trim beside and with him. He was a world class sailor, but the pure waters of Lake Michigan were his home. He competed in many Mackinaw races, often with Jack Boyle, whose grandson Scott Boyer eventually became and continues to be MICJAY's dedicated captain, tending to her as she rests for the winter.

In October, Michael took his last breath with his family surrounding him. He left this planet with the same impact he infused into every aspect of his life. He didn't simply defy the odds, he defined them. Five years ago, he contracted a horrible lung disease. A grim canvas was painted for his future. True to form, he and Janie did not give up. Despite his age, he was put on a waiting list for a lung transplant. Three years ago, he travelled to the Cleveland Clinic where a team of surgeons, led by Dr. Marie Budev, whom he said "is the most incredible, brilliant woman — she gave me a second chance." The surgery was a success. Despite the fact he almost died in the ICU, twice yet surged ahead for two more summers on the lake. This past summer was his last. I watched while he struggled. My spirits picked up with the annual Roth family reunion — 32 Roths from around the country. His family descended every year, for a week, to share in his world. I chuckled as Scott blew up water toys of every shape and size for the kids. What a splendiferous five ring circus, with Michael as ringmaster and Scott as child tamer. It was bittersweet.

I envied those close with him, family and friends, the ones most intimate: Confidants, keepers of his trust. He was a professor of business success. His lessons were tough and honorable. We planned on a meeting at summer's end. I longed for the chance to talk one on one. A weighty request for a man with a constant audience. He fascinated and yet intimidated me. I yearned for the challenge to pick his brain or perhaps uncover a slice of his soul.

As the summer neared its close, time began to run out for Michael in Charlevoix. He had a great day by the Harbour Club pool sitting in the August sun. As luck would have it, many of the condo residents got the chance to visit with their friend. All of them wishing continued success with his health. He smiled impishly, his humor infectious, his laughter immeasurable. That evening he developed a fever. He was taken to the Charlevoix emergency room and admitted. He later returned my inquiring call with the message, "Thanks. I'm fine. I'll see you when I get home." Days later he was flown to the Cleveland Clinic. Tragically, there was no return flight.

I once mentioned to Michael that, "When you leave us, your funeral will be SRO — standing room only." I was wrong. There was no room to stand. The receiving line was out the door and down the sidewalk, as well-wishers kept coming until the Rabbi asked everyone to please find a place — any place — so the service could begin. It was a celebration, a congregation of unity filled with memories, eulogies, laughter, song and tears.

Michael: May warm breezes always be at your back. May you set your course for the horizon. May you, once again, breathe freely, the fresh air off of Lake Michigan and may you return to Charlevoix.

There is a hole in the bottom of the sea, and one in the bottom of our hearts.

WEDDING announcement

Johnson - Fisher

Amy Beth Johnson and Taylor Evan Fisher were married on July 6, 2013. The 4 p.m. ceremony took place in the Rose Garden at Stafford's Perry Hotel in Petoskey.

The bride is the daughter of Michael and Nancy Johnson of Petoskey, and the groom is the son of Tim and Sara Fisher and Tori and Bill Inglis, all of Charlevoix.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Carly Croskey as maid of honor, with sisters, Madeline and Kate Johnson, cousin Emily Johnson, and Laura Beck as bridesmaids.

Trilogy, a variety band from Detroit, and Ted Pall, solo trumpet player, provided the ceremony music. They played Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" and "Pachelhel's Canon in D" for the prelude and processional, and Jeremiah Clarke's "Trumpet Voluntary" for the bridal processional.

The best man was Tanner Fisher, brother of the groom. Matt Hamel, Mike Dupuis, Jordan Voice and Mike Rosen served as groomsmen. Doug Johnson, brother of the bride, and Logan Matter served as ushers.

The reception immediately followed the ceremony in the Rose Garden, where guests enjoyed live music by Trilogy. The bride danced with her father to "Take Me Out to the Ballgame" and the newlyweds enjoyed their first dance to The Beatles' "I Will."

The bride holds a bachelor's degree in English literature from The University of Michigan and a master's degree in education from DePaul University. She currently works as a substitute teacher for Chicago Public Schools. The groom holds a bachelor's degree in biology from Alma College and a master of science in education from Quincy University. He is a biology and anatomy instructor for City Colleges of Chicago.

After traveling through Costa Rica following the wedding, the couple returned to Chicago, where they live on the city's north side.

Yarn supplier takes an Olympic order

RYAN BENTLEY
Northern Michigan Review

EAST JORDAN — The vendor providing Team USA's uniforms for the 2014 Winter Olympics has knitted an East Jordan company into its mix of suppliers.

Debbie McDermott, owner of Stonehedge Fiber Mill, said clothing company Ralph Lauren enlisted her operation to provide 4,000 pounds of yarn in eight shades to be used for Olympic sweaters.

"It was very exciting to know that the yarn would be made into sweaters that would be worn by the U.S. athletes at the Olympics," said Chuck McDermott, Debbie's husband and owner of a companion business specializing in fiber milling equipment.

The McDermotts said the first step toward Stonehedge's involvement in the project occurred about two years ago, when a New York-based clothing designer working with Ralph Lauren saw a sign for the fiber mill and its yarn shop along nearby M-32 and decided to stop. She left with some yarn.

"It just goes to show you how many people come to Northern Michigan on vacation," Chuck said.

About a year and a half ago, Debbie said she received a phone call from a prospective yarn purchaser. After receiving the caller's contact information, she found herself a bit startled.

"My mouth kind of dropped open," she said. "I told Chuck I was talking to someone from Ralph Lauren. I couldn't believe it."

Stonehedge followed up with the clothing company by providing numerous samples over several months. Wool top, the raw material for the yarn, was to be provided by an approved supplier, North Carolina-based Burlington Industries.

Debbie said she learned that the softness of Stonehedge's yarn was the quality that had piqued the Olympic clothing supplier's interest.

Based on the red, white and blue color specifications for the yarn, Chuck said he and his wife had a hunch early on that it might end up in some Olympic-related products. But it wasn't until mid-2013 that Stonehedge learned the specific details of the order.

Stonehedge shipped the last of the yarn in Ralph Lauren's order to California in late summer for sweater production. Debbie said hundreds of sweaters were to be produced for coaches and athletes. Plans call for U.S. team members to wear the garments for the closing ceremonies of the February 2014 games in Sochi, Russia, she added.

Processing of the yarn for the Olympic sweaters took place at Stonehedge's location in East Jordan's Lake Street Center industrial complex. There, the company also produces its own line of yarn that's offered at wholesale and carried in about 250 retail locations internationally.

Stonehedge Fiber Mill was launched 17 years ago to provide custom processing of wool into yarn. The McDermotts, who operated a petting farm at that time, pursued the new business as a supplementary source of income, and originally used two rooms for the operation.

Stonehedge has since expanded several times, and now employs 14 people. The wholesale production site was added about three years ago, with the farm site still in use for custom processing services and retail sales.

Annual sales have stood at about $1 million for Stonehedge as of late, with the McDermotts' Stonehedge Fiber Milling Equipment generating sales of about $800,000 yearly. That business has developed equipment for about 40 U.S. mills plus some international clients.

Around the time of the 2012 Summer Olympics — for which Ralph Lauren also was a key supplier of U.S. uniforms — there was something of an outcry about the foreign sourcing of the clothing, made largely in China.

The Associated Press recently noted efforts by Ralph Lauren to line up U.S. sourcing and manufacturing for the 2014 Winter Olympics clothing order, with about 40 vendors enlisted.

"We have worked incredibly hard as a company to go across America to find the best partners to help us produce the Olympic uniforms at the highest quality for the best athletes in the world," David Lauren, the company's executive vice president of advertising, marketing and corporate communications, told the Associated Press for an October story.

Day spa to open boutique

The Well Being Day Spa will host an open house for its new spa boutique.

The open house and grand opening event will be 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Friday, Nov. 22, at the spa, 108 Mason St., Charlevoix. The business will offer a 10 percent discount on all purchases that day, including gift certificates.

Massage therapist Lindsay Lewis opened the Well Being Day Spa in 2006 and moved in 2008 to its current location on Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix. The business offers airbrush tanning, massage therapy, special event airbrush makeup and a newly renovated relaxation lounge.

"I'm so excited to bring another shop to downtown Charlevoix that offers gifts for everyone at an affordable price," Lewis said. "I'm proud to be supporting other small businesses and have chosen to carry these lines in my boutique because they are hand crafted using organic and recycled materials."

The new boutique element will offer a variety of gifts and spa products that use recycled or ecologically sound organic materials, including candles, diffusers, body products, jewelry, locally made soaps, artwork and more.

Barney Way, of Dry Harbour Marina in Charlevoix, speaks to other members of his small discussion group as part of the economic development forum.

PREVIEW

At Monday's meeting, Straebel said he will present the additional research and work that developed over the past two months.

He said in preliminary discussions that officials with the Michigan Waterways Commission have been receptive to the idea. However, he said the biggest hurdle the city might face in making the expansion a reality is coming up with a way to pay for its estimated $300,000 to $350,000 price tag.

Straebel said the city is not in a position to pay for the improvements up front or to borrow the money to pay for it. He suggested one option that might be available is to prelease the new slips for four or five years, which would likely raise enough capital to pay for the project.

In September, several council members noted that the large vessel slips not only could be a source of revenue for the city, but also bring in revenue for businesses in town.

The council also will hear a report from a consultant it hired to evaluate the feasibility of the city switching to a public safety model for providing its emergency services.

Currently, the city has separate police and fire departments, with the fire department also including its ambulance service. A public safety model would combine all three functions under one department.

Straebel brought up the idea earlier this year, arguing it was an ideal time to consider such a move with the expected retirement of the city's fire chief Paul Ivan in 2014.

director.

"You need to have teamwork to make success," she said, adding this community-wide focus on economic goals for the Charlevoix area is a way to create positive momentum.

Both Charlevoix area residents and business owners came to the two-hour forum, along with anyone else with an interest.

Charlevoix resident Amy Kurtz attended and said she recently returned to town and is now doing volunteer work with several area nonprofit organizations or efforts, including the Joppa House in Charlevoix, Women's Resource Center in Petoskey and an effort to establish a local college scholarship foundation. Her father suggested she might enjoy the public forum and its goals, she said — and it turns out she did.

"I am hoping to learn more about the economic community here," she said, especially as it pertains to her volunteer work.

Hayes corralled the multiple small group discussions around three topics: keeping businesses in Charlevoix, growing businesses in Charlevoix and recruiting new companies to the community. Results of the widespread input will be analyzed by the regional economic alliance and then presented to local elected officials for community planning purposes.

The report will be presented at a strategic planning meeting from 4:30-8 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 3, also at the library, 220 W. Clinton, Charlevoix.

More information is available by calling (231) 547-3257.

PAYMENT

tee, which was organized in about the year 2000, said Ferguson.

Both Ferguson and Rick-Biddick said Frank Shaler, maintenance supervisor and department head of recycling for the county, said Rick-Biddick would be paid for her time.

But during the board of commissioners meeting, the board reiterated that Rick-Biddick was compensated fairly for her time, and that the county couldn't pay Rick-Biddick because neither she nor Shaler had filed a contract with the county outlining how much Rick-Biddick's work would cost.

Bryan Graham, civil council for Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, said expenditures must be authorized before they are paid.

"It's my understanding that there was not a specific contract involved in terms of what specific services you were contemplating to provide," said Graham during the meeting. "It is my understanding that the committee never voted on a particular event and particular matter and the department head did not authorize the expenditures, but paid you as if you had gone to various committees. The law has been followed ... in the future, there can either be a contract or specific motion authorizing the expenditures that can be approved by the department head prior to the expense being incurred. If you just let individuals claim that the county owes them money and they perceive themselves as a benefit to the county and submit a bill, there's no budgetary control at all."

Rick-Biddick said the recycling committee budgeted for the cost of her work at the beginning of the year.

"Because you have money budgeted doesn't mean you can spend it," said Joel Evans, commission chair. "It is unfortunate an agreement wasn't made before the work was done."

At the beginning of the meeting, the commissioners began considering appointments to county committees. Commissioner Larry Sullivan moved to re-appoint Ferguson to the recycling committee, but without a second, the motion died on the table.

"We'll have further discussion before the end of the year about how we're going to proceed with the recycling committee," said commissioner Chris Christensen.

Sullivan, who serves as the commission representative for the committee, said the committee communicated to him that it was concerned the county would reduce the seven-member committee size.

Food pantry donation

More than $3,400 from the Charlevoix Knights of Columbus is donated to the Charlevoix Food Pantry from proceeds of the recent Hunters Banquet in Charlevoix. The Knights have hosted this annual event for 11 years with all net proceeds going to the nonprofit Charlevoix Food Pantry. The event featured a pig roast by the Whitley brothers, plus numerous food contributions from attendees. Birdie Whitley coordinated much of the food contributions, and also The Villager and Subway made food contributions.

Students of the Week

Charlevoix Elementary school students of the week are: (back) Jesse DeLaCruz, Adam Streeter, Patrick Sterrett, Troy Nickel, Braylen Phillips and principal Doug Drenth, with (front) Brayden Russell, Bella Pfander, Benjamin Culver, Matthew Jarema and Dana Brown.

Let the hunting begin

What should be in a hunter's backpack?

One of the most important pieces of equipment for hunters is a well-packed backpack or shoulder bag. Loaded with a few select essentials, it should be taken every time you go scouting or hunting. Be sure to choose a pack that is comfortable, weatherproof, and noiseless (doesn't make swooshing sounds as you walk). Waterproof camouflage fabric is preferable but not essential.

The extras you pack may depend on the distance you have to cover between your vehicle and your camp, but some articles should always stay in the pack. Here is a basic list of the items to be included:

- a multi-purpose tool with a blade and small saw;
- a survival blanket;
- a reliable source of fire;
- awhistle;
- a compasswith amap of the area;
- aGPSwith spare batteries;
- a flashlight;
- a small survival kit (sold in big box stores, the size of a tin of sardines);
- a small first aid kit;
- rope;
- brasswire (for building a shelter or a snare);
- an orange garbage bag;
- awater bottle;
- trailmarking tape.

If the weather is cold, bring along a small thermos with a hot drink, and don't forget a few energy bars or a snack. This pack should be with you every time you step out into the bush. Think of it not as your suitcase, but as your survival kit; you should always have with you the basics you'd need to stay warm and protected if you ever lost your way or got injured and couldn't walk out.

Every time you go hunting, tell someone where you are going and when you plan to be back. Ensure that you contact this person in case of delay, either by cell or satellite phone or with the new satellite messenger technology, called "SPOT". It is also recommended that hunters complete a first aid and survival course before venturing into the wilderness. Happy hunting!

A good hunter always carries a backpack that contains a few essential survival items.

Cleaning & Calibrating

There are many preparations to take care of before a hunting trip, but taking care of your firearm should definitely take priority. Don't go into the woods with your gun until you've cleaned it and calibrated your sights. This could be the decisive factor in a successful hunting trip.

Investing in a boresighter is always a good idea. This will allow you to adjust your scope before your practice shots and will limit the number of bullets you'll need for your final adjustments. If your scope ever goes out of focus during a hunting trip, this tool will allow you to make a temporary adjustment with enough accuracy to shoot big game. The best thing to do is focus your scope at a practice range so that your weapon is adjusted properly to your eye, your position, and your shooting technique.

Perhaps even more important than the adjustment of the sights and scope is making sure that your weapon is in good working condition. This is why it is always a good idea to have it checked and adjusted by a gunsmith. These experts are very busy in the weeks preceding the hunting season, so be sure to have your gun checked and repaired during the summer rather than waiting for the fall.

Don't head into the woods until your weapons have been cleaned and adjusted.

Drenth honored as Big Ten women's cross country Coach of the Year

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

EAST LANSING — Walt Drenth doesn't want all the credit.

He'd rather his accolades be a reflection of his group.

Drenth, a 1977 Charlevoix High School graduate and in his eighth season coaching the Michigan State University cross country/track and field, was unanimously named Big Ten women's cross country coach of the year last week, after his Spartans brought home their third Big Ten Championship title in four years.

"I feel fortunate. I have an incredible group of athletes. I get unbelievable help. I feel like I'm real lucky in that aspect," Drenth said. "Lisa Senakiewich, she's done an amazing job of not only recruiting but making sure everything is in order. I feel blessed."

The honor comes as his third Big Ten Coach of the Year recognition, as he also gained the award in 2010 and 2011.

"When you get an award like that, it's generally a reflection of a lot of people and a competitive program," Drenth said. "I'd rather win than get an award, I guess sometimes they go hand and hand. It's more fun to be successful than to get individual accolades."

With more than 25 years of coaching experience to his credit, success has been a part of Drenth's teams wherever he's been, particularly his latest stop at Michigan State, but a Big Ten Championship was a bit of a surprise for a young women's team entering the season.

Junior Leah O'Connor led the way for MSU, finishing as runner-up in the meet with a time of 20 minutes, 56.9 seconds at the Boilermaker Cross Country Course in West LaFayette, Ind. Katie Landwehr and Lindsey Clark, both sophomores, finished fifth and ninth respectively.

On the men's side, which finished seventh overall, Caleb Rhynard placed fourth overall.

"We were really young," he said. "We had only three people in our top nine that had contended for a Big Ten Championship before."

"Our goals to begin with were to stay within the top three of the conference and really just make progress."

Not overly complex goals, but every meet we had to up our standards."

It says a lot about the talent and coaching level of Drenth, as the Spartan women won the title without two of its best runners in seniors Sara Kroll, last year's Big Ten Champion, and Julia Otwell, a Traverse City Central graduate who placed sixth at the Big Ten Championships in 2011. Both were seniors being redshirted by Drenth, as he was fulfilling a promise from their freshman season.

"We had promised them that they could finish their eligibility with their class and we had a number of women on the team that redshirted that year," Drenth said. "So somewhere along the line we had to sit them out."

In his days as a Rayder at Charlevoix High, Drenth earned a great deal of his own success with four varsity letters in cross country and track and field. In the 1976 Class C state finals, Drenth placed third overall on his way to an All-State season.

He'd later go on to run for Central Michigan University, where he'd eventually graduate and return as an assistant coach.

His coaching duties would then move on to William and Mary, Arizona State and to presently, Michigan State. He'd gain two Mid-American coach of the year honors while at Central and two while at ASU to go along with his three at MSU.

While coaching has run Drenth across the country and throughout the state of Michigan, Charlevoix has always had that home feel.

"My wife and I try to spend as much time in Charlevoix as possible," he said. "We purchased a house there a few years ago and I feel like it's still home in a lot of respects."

With nearly a full team intact and returning for the 2014 season, another Big Ten title and possibly coach of the year honor may not be out of the question next season.

"We have two sophomores and two freshmen in our top five and we're returning two first-team All Big Ten people next year on the women's side," said Drenth. "The men are young, we don't graduate anyone on the men's side. I'm excited about the way it looks.

"The hard part about getting done with a championship is you start thinking what's going to happen next."

Charlevoix falls to Boyne City Ramblers in district final

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

> "Boyne started triple blocking our hitters and they had a difficult time adapting."
> — Audra Randall, Charlevoix volleyball coach

Rival Boyne City topped Charlevoix last week, ending the Rayder volleyball season.

The Ramblers earned their second straight Class C district title against Charlevoix in five sets, 21-25, 18-25, 25-14, 25-19, 15-6, at the Charlevoix High School gym. The Ramblers moved on to play in regional semifinals.

With wins of 25-21 and 25-18 to Charlevoix's credit to begin the night, Boyne City picked up their pace for sudden momentum and then came out with set three. Boyne grew an early 10-4 lead which then grew into a 25-14 win.

In set four, the Ramblers and Rayders fought back and forth from the 12th point on, with Boyne eventually taking the match on a 5-0 run, 25-19.

Playing to 15 in the fifth and final match, the Ramblers drew an early 12-2 lead, seemingly looking like the match was theirs. Charlevoix would put in their fight, clawing back to 14-6, but Boyne would eventually close it out at 15-6.

The district title is Boyne's second in a row and second in a row over the Rayders.

"It's always a mental thing with Charlevoix and us. It's been that way for years. It's just always this way with Charlevoix," said Boyne City coach Casie Parker. "My girls don't care who they lose to, but they never want to lose to Charlevoix. They did. They beat us in season and it was frustrating, but we got them back now."

For Charlevoix coach Audra Randall and her Rayders, the loss comes as a big blow after winning the first two sets.

"It was a heartbreaker," she said. "My girls have really proven themselves to be focused and dedicated through the season. Their drive has inspired me to commit back to the them every day, helping them to prepare, mentally and physically and we all love this crazy game."

Parker credits the play of her blockers as having a big part in the win, after she made a change to her lineup to begin the night.

"I would like to recognize Ali Johnson," Parker said. "I flipped my lineup and I've only done it twice this whole season, just so she could block Maddy Boss from Charlevoix. She came up huge for us tonight with the blocks."

Randall would notice the blocking change from the 6-foot Johnson, who finished with eight blocks, to make all the difference as well.

"Boyne started triple blocking our hitters and they had a difficult time adaping," added Randall.

Boyne was led on the night by Kylie Hicks with 21 digs, 21 kills and 11 blocks, Heather Nichols with 18 digs and 36 assists.

Paige Hornbeck added 25 digs, Erin Baker 30 digs and Ali Johnson eight kills. Nichols was also 100 percent from the serve line.

For Charlevoix, Madeline Boss had 28 kills, eight digs and one block, Jennaca Holecheck had 13 kills, 24 digs, two blocks and six assists and Olivia Storm had 18 assists and six digs.

Gloria Greene added 15 assists, five digs and a 100 percent mark serving.

Kelsey Pischner and Emily Zabawa each finished with five kills, while Yogi Hang added 12 digs and one ace. Zabawa and Kylie Scholten each had three blocks, while Alexis Trihfelner had six digs.

"I applaud the Boyne City girls and their play," Randall added. "They are a tough team and proved themselves this evening. It's always such a battle with these two teams and I enjoy the anticipation and energy that's created by this match-up. I just wish we were on the winning side this evening for my seniors and the team."

Nurse program hosts Fit-4-Life for Kids

STAFF REPORT

Obesity and high blood pressure among young people today is rising at an alarming rate. In 2010, more than one third of children and adolescents were overweight or obese. As part of Charlevoix Area Hospital's mission, community health and wellness are important initiatives for the betterment of the local communities. In an effort to help teach children the importance of healthy life-style habits, the Charlevoix Area Hospital Fit-4-Life for Kids program was created.

Fit-4-Life for Kids offers customized, hands-on activities that teach students the importance of understanding their individual health status, establishing healthy eating habits, and learning how to incorporate exercise into their daily lives.

On Nov. 8, Charlevoix Area Hospital hosted a day-long Fit-4-Life for Kids program at East Jordan High School. Throughout the school day, students had the opportunity to have a biometric health screening, including cholesterol and blood sugar levels. They participated in physical activities guided by a hospital physical therapist and learned more about nutrition and cardiovascular disease prevention with their school nurse.

"Fit-4-Life for Kids teaches students the importance of healthy life-style habits. Through our school nurse program, we have the opportunity to teach children about nutrition and chronic disease prevention while introducing them to varied and fun physical activities," said nurse Kathy Jacobsen, director of community health education. "The response we have received from the students is extremely positive. They have started asking for healthy food options and choosing to learn more about incorporating exercise in their daily schedules."

The Fit-4-Life for Kids program offers students the opportunity to learn healthy lifestyle habits that will last a lifetime.

For more information about Charlevoix Area Hospital and the school nurse program, visit www.cah.org online.

Charlevoix County sheriff sued on three counts

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Emmet County resident Dale Hull has filed a lawsuit against Charlevoix County's Sheriff Don Schneider, suing the sheriff on one count of violating the United States Constitution, one count of slander and one count of intentional interference with a business relationship or expectancy.

The lawsuit was filed on July 1 in the United States District Court Western District of Michigan.

According to the lawsuit, Hull was offered and accepted a job in January 2013 as executive director of the Charlevoix Area Humane Society — but that he was not given the job because, the lawsuit alleges, Schneider called Hull a liar.

The issue stemmed from a 2008 incident in which a Charlevoix student was accused of vandalizing a house that the high school's building and trades class built. After the incident, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office conducted a search of the Charlevoix High School. Hull called the search a "lockdown" and his lawsuit alleges that local media outlets quoted Hull as saying the search lasted for three hours.

Hull

Schneider

"Defendant (Schneider) claimed that the lockdown was only for approximately 40 minutes, and therefore, the Plaintiff was a liar," states Hull's lawsuit. "Defendant further stated to Plaintiff that by his statements, he had embarrassed Defendant and his department."

The suit claims this happened in two instances: first, when Schneider first heard of Hall's job offer from Karen Colburn, then president of the Charlevoix Area Humane Society. Schneider allegedly said to Julie Whitley, a member of the humane society board of trustees and now retired supervisor of the Charlevoix County Animal Control Department, that Hull was a liar.

The lawsuit also alleges Schneider said Hull's appointment as executive director of the humane society could cause a strain between the humane society and the county, as the humane society leases property from the county.

The lawsuit alleges that this constitutes a retaliation against Hull, violating Hull's freedom of speech and freedom of association under the First and 14th Amendments. Too, the lawsuit alleges that the supposed retaliation violated a law called 42 U.S.C. 1983, also known as "section 1983."

"Section 1983, part of the Civil Rights Act of 1871, mandates that a person in a state or governmental

Crisman arrested, extradited in 1994 sex crime case

Northern Michigan Review

Crisman

Charlevoix County law enforcement officials have arrested a man who has been wanted for nearly two decades on multiple criminal sexual conduct charges.

In a release issued last week, Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Allen Telgenhof said Lloyd Bernath Crisman, 60, was arraigned in Charlevoix County's 90th District Court on five counts of first degree criminal sexual conduct. The charge is a felony punishable by up to life in prison.

Telgenhof noted that Crisman is also facing another count of the same charge that he had previously been facing in 33rd Circuit Court and another one-year misdemeanor count of fourth degree child abuse that he had been previously facing in 90th District Court.

The prosecutor noted that Crisman was arrested last week in Scottsdale, Ariz., and he has since been extradited to Charlevoix to stand trial.

Telgenhof said the previous charges have been pending since 1994 when Crisman fled from the area and failed to appear for scheduled trials on both.

"It appears that he has been living in Arizona since that time," Telgenhof wrote.

Crisman is being held without bond on the criminal sexual conduct charges in the Charlevoix County Jail. A pretrial conference is scheduled on the matter for Nov. 19 and the preliminary exam is set for Nov. 26.

Charlevoix attorney Kraag Lieberman has been appointed by the court to represent Crisman.

"I have to give a great thanks to our victim advocate, Libby Mikulski, for never forgetting about this case and the victims, and also to (Charlevoix County Sheriff's) Det. Mike Wheat who tracked down Mr. Crisman and brought him back to Michigan to stand trial," Telgenhof said. "It was a complete team effort between my office, the sheriff's department and the Boyne City Police Department who investigated the original charges."

Planners to look further at park protection proposal

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix Planning Commission wants to do more research and take public input before it makes its recommendation on a proposal to use a conservation easement to protect at least two of the city's beloved parks.

The commission, which just barely had a quorum of five members present at its Nov. 11 regular monthly meeting, heard a presentation from city resident John Campbell and an official from the Little Traverse Conservancy about a proposal to protect the city's Mount McSauba Recreation Area and Michigan Beach from development by placing it under a conservation easement.

At the city council's July 1 meeting, Campbell renewed a request that the city council consider placing a portion of the Mount McSauba Recreation area in a conservation easement with the conservancy. Campbell brought a similar request to the council two years prior and that council was not interested in pursuing the easement saying it believed the area was protected well enough under the city's charter, which prohibits city parks from being sold without a vote of the people.

A conservation easement is a legally binding document, often granted to a nonprofit organization such as a land trust or conservancy, in which case the grantor — in this case the city — agrees in perpetuity not to develop or improve a property beyond a very limited scope allowed in the document.

Upon hearing Campbell's request in July, the city council referred the matter to the planning commission for further review and a recommendation.

At the recent planning commission meeting, city planning director Mike Spencer said Campbell's proposal had changed some to also include the city's Michigan Beach property.

Although the proposal for the McSauba property calls for only the portion of the property from the top of the hill to

Holly Daze returns

Annual event to focus on imaging, chemotherapy infusion chairs

BY MEGAN WILSON
Courier contributor

Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation will host its 22nd annual Holly Daze fundraiser on Friday, Dec. 6, at Castle Farms, on M-66 in Charlevoix.

"This year the proceeds will be going to the imaging department, as the hospital is hoping to raise $100,000," said Faye Parrish, director of annual support for Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation.

Last year the foundation raised $100,000, with 270 people in attendance at Holly Daze.

"This year we are hoping to have around 300 people," Parrish said. "Tickets are $100, but out of that, $60 is tax-deductible."

That ticket includes entry for the silent auction, which begins at 5:30 p.m. and closes at 7:30 p.m., and a gourmet dinner. Also, there will be a live auction.

"We've been very blessed with our donations this year, as we are every year," Parrish said. "We have got three trips in our auction, a trip to Las Vegas, a trip to Orlando, and a trip to Mexico."

Also included in the donations is a dream garage package, in which designers build the winner's dream garage, including flooring, cabinets, storage units and lighting.

"One of the other things that was donated was a 4-foot-tall oversized pot by Otis Pottery that is just wonderful. It will make a perfect addition," Parrish said.

Fundraising is well under way already, with more than $20,000 raised by sponsorships.

"Our main sponsors include Charlevoix State Bank, Associated Retinal Consultants, Burnette Foods, EJ USA Inc., and Blue Care Network," Parrish said.

This 4-foot-tall vessel donated by Otis Pottery is up for grabs at this year's Holly Daze event at Castle Farms.

The Gift of Love this year will be chemotherapy infusion chairs.

"Charlevoix hospital will soon have a chemotherapy infusion center, and these are chairs that people will be sitting in while they are having treatment," Parrish said. "These chairs will be in one of the hospital rooms with a view of Lake Michigan, so people can sit and relax while they are having treatment."

The Gift of Love is for donors who don't see anything in the auction, but still want to give to us," she said. "Historically, we raise around $10,000 for the Gift of Love, but we're really hoping that this item will bring more since this is something that is so close to so many people's hearts."

Local couple's up north island featured on TV

Paul and Georgeann Lindberg's home on an island in the St. Marys River will be featured on a Discovery Channel program.

A Charlevoix couple's island get-away recently was featured in an episode of a series titled "Epic," aired on Destination America, a Discovery Channel network. But those who missed it on Nov. 6 can set their DVR for the re-broadcast at 2 p.m. Monday, Nov. 25.

"We had a production company there for four days," said Paul Lindberg. "They were filming all the time, so you didn't know what the content was going to be."

Much of the program's focus on Paul and Georgeann Lindberg's isolated historic lighthouse home is about the historic restoration done at the Round Island Lighthouse in the St. Marys River. Even with the $2.5 million renovation, Lindberg said his was the least expensive property featured on the episode about amazing private islands.

"I was in really strong company," Paul said, laughing.

The most expensive property featured in the episode came in at $65 million, he said, but the production team seemed to like their "story about the restoration better."

Round Island was chosen by Discovery network officials to be among the six islands throughout the United States for the "Epic" show on private islands.

"Epic" focuses extravagant amenities and the people who create them. Mark Snyder, of Prudential Preferred Properties Network in Charlevoix, learned about the search for private islands and contacted the national cable network regarding the island the Lindbergs own.

"We go there in the summer," Paul said. "We make long weekends of it."

A full-time caretaker lives on the island year-round to keep up the now gorgeous home that had once fallen into disrepair. "It was not touched for 80 years," Paul said.

Paul is a developer and Georgeann is an interior designer whose permanent home is near Charlevoix on Lake Charlevoix.

The Destination America network can be found on channel 110 on Charter, 286 on DirecTV and 194 on Dish Network. More information about the network and the show can be found at http://america.discovery.com online.

Holiday fun to light up downtown Charlevoix

Santa Claus is coming to town in one week.

Charlevoix's annual tree lighting and holiday parade will descend on downtown the day after Thanksgiving, Friday, Nov. 29. Events begin at 3 p.m. and the holiday parade — including the arrival of Santa at 5:30 p.m., with events in East Park wrapping up by 6:30 p.m.

First up is ornament making from 3-5:30 p.m. at Charlevoix Circle of the Arts, 109 Clinton St., sponsored by the nonprofit and Northwestern Bank. Children can create ornaments for the community Christmas tree in East Park. Photographs with Santa also are available during that time at the nonprofit arts organization building, provided by Picture This.

Cookies and cocoa will be served by Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant and Subway from 4-6 p.m. around the community Christmas tree in East Park. City workers will then be adding the children's handmade ornaments to the community tree. Meanwhile, the holiday parade begins at 5:30 p.m. on Bridge Street between Hurlbut and Clinton in downtown Charlevoix. Music, cheer and lighted floats are expected, as well as Old Saint Nick bringing up the rear of the parade and arriving just in time to light the community Christmas tree promptly at 6 p.m.

New this year is the Charlevoix Ministerial Association's storytime event, when "Journey to Bethlehem" will be read immediately following the tree lighting in the performance pavilion in East Park. The planned storytime will be moved indoors to the United Methodist Church on State Street, in the event of inclement weather.

Trial set for child abuse case

BRANDON HUBBARD
Northern Michigan Review

A trial has been set for a 27-year-old Boyne City man accused of abusing and neglecting his infant daughter.

Steve Cronk is charged with second degree child abuse for allegedly causing physical harm to a 3-month-old girl July 12, at his home in Boyne City.

Cronk

The infant was transported to McLaren Northern Michigan hospital in Petoskey before being airlifted to DeVos Children's Hospital in Grand Rapids, where she was later diagnosed with having bleeding in the retinas and brain, a broken right arm, a broken right leg and a possible break in the left leg.

Doctors in Grand Rapids described the injuries as consistent with abuse.

Cronk is set to have a three-day trial starting at 8:30 a.m. Feb. 5, 2014, on the charge in Charlevoix County Circuit Court.

The defendant has until 9 a.m. Jan. 3, 2014, to enter a plea if the prosecution offers a deal for a reduced sentenced.

Telgenhof responds to campaign critics

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Bob Taylor and Roger Conway, both Charlevoix County residents, brought concerns to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners' regular meeting Wednesday over county prosecutor Allen Telgenhof's campaign finance violation.

The campaign violation stemmed from a campaign finance affidavit that successful candidates who spend more than $1,000 running for county office are supposed to file. Conway filed a complaint with the Michigan Attorney General's Office.

Telgenhof says he did not know about the need to file the affidavit, and so did not file the paper. He did so after learning that he needed to, and the form was filed on Oct. 29.

Telgenhof

"He admitted to violating the law. A crime is a crime," said Conway.

Conway objected to the salary paid to Telgenhof by the county during the time the affidavit wasn't filed.

Telgenhof said he filed a Freedom of Information request which showed that he was not the only elected official who did not file the paper.

"I wasn't aware of the affidavit, and the day that I found out about it by Rick Cunningham (chief of the criminal division) from the AG's office, I filed the affidavit," said Telgenhof in response to Conway. "I did a FOIA request and I'm not the only public official who didn't file one."

Telgenhof noted that former county prosecutor John Jarema did not file an affidavit in 2004.

"So the county is really going to be in the money if they ask every official who wasn't aware of this form to pay back the money that they received because they didn't file a piece of paper," he said.

The Attorney General's Office found that the matter did not warrant action.

A quote attributed to Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Allen Telgenhof on page A3 in the Friday, Nov. 15, edition of the Petoskey News-Review stated that Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider and Charlevoix County Clerk Cheryl Browe did not file a required campaign affidavit. They did not file the affidavit because the affidavit is not required from people who spent less than $1,000 during their campaign.

EPA looks for old sources of contamination in Charlevoix

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Wednesday and Thursday, the Environmental Protection Agency was in Charlevoix, sweeping five areas for points that might still be releasing contamination from several long-closed businesses.

Decades ago, a dry cleaners and a tool and die shop released contaminants — a degreaser called trichloroethelyne and a dry-cleaning chemical called percholoethelyne — into the soil which penetrated Charlevoix's drinking water supply. The EPA declared the area a Superfund site, prompting city officials to move the town's water intake system a quarter mile into Lake Michigan in the late 1980s.

The EPA has been cleaning the area beneath a triangular section of Charlevoix, near Garfield Street, since.

In 2012, the EPA samples showed the contamination wasn't dissipating quickly enough. In June, the EPA tested soil samples, and still found contamination at a rate that prompted a follow-up.

"We found levels in the soils that were high enough — they weren't at emergency levels, but we wanted to come back to look for where this contamination could be coming from," said Matthew Ohl, remedial project manager for the EPA, based in Chicago. "This site has been around since the late 1980s, and we wanted to follow up and see what's still the issue."

Ohl said old tanks and pipes buried and forgotten beneath the ground could still contain

Firefighters climbed onto the roof of a house in Norwood Township with a chimney fire.

Animals rescued, home saved from chimney fire

NORWOOD — Firefighters with the Charlevoix Fire Department were able to spare a home in Charlevoix County's Norwood Township from more extensive damage after a chimney fire broke out near Friday.

City of Charlevoix Fire Department fire chief Paul Ivan said firefighters were called to the Todd Warner residence at 18780 Gennett Road at about 11:30 a.m. to a report of a house on fire.

When firefighters arrived, they saw a small amount of smoke coming from the house from a fire at the base of the wood stove chimney on the first floor of the building.

Ivan said the fire burned through the floor, into a crawl space before firefighters were able to extinguish it. Ivan said the fire was caused by the woodstove and chimney. Firefighters were on scene for about 90 minutes. No injuries were reported during the incident.

Ivan said no one was home at the time of the fire, however there were several animals in the house, and most were evacuated safely. He said one cat was injured, "but was revived because of the quick action of Charlevoix EMS."

Ivan said because the fire occurred on the opening day of firearms deer hunting season, he called for mutual aid from the Charlevoix Township Fire Department. The Charlevoix County Sheriff Department also assisted at the scene.

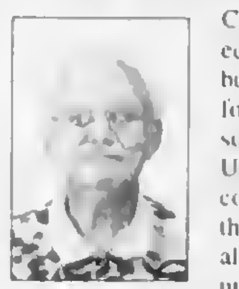
Guns and education?



EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

At a season of the year when gunshots can be heard almost any day and almost anywhere in our part of the world, and when school is in session, it might be well to think of the relationship of firearms to education.

We are all saddened by the occasions of mass shootings in schools, and argue about whether armed guards, teachers or principals or a total or partial banning of firearms is an appropriate response. I would suggest a closer connection of firearms to education by adding one additional sport to the extra-curricular programs.

It would clearly be impossible to add firearms training to the regular public school curriculum, but there may be another way. I believe the state boards overseeing athletic competition in the secondary schools sanction the addition of target shooting to the athletic possibilities for our high schools. Public education is both curricular and extra-curricular. I believe this is an extra-curricular opportunity.

You might well ask what is athletic about target shooting. Ask the Olympic athletes who participate. Target shooting requires a high level of patience and precision. It rewards not just strength, but control. It requires not force alone, but steadiness. Most would agree that control, precision, patience and steadiness are among virtues we should encourage.

What are the advantages of adding this particular sport? It would not be very costly. It would provide athletic opportunities to students who are not particularly tall or large. It could an activity for both male and female students at an equal level. Little girls could again emulate Annie Oakley. It could easily be a team sport, like golf or cross country, where individual effort is a part of a team's success. I am certain a number of volunteer coaches would be available in most communities.

Participation by additional school districts will spread as soon as the state championships are won every year by small towns in the Upper Peninsula. State level competition could be very popular.

What is to be accomplished by such a program? Change brought about by education is a slow process, but gradually some of the following might change our society in valuable ways. Using guns to demonstrate control and precision rather than craziness will eventually change our attitudes. We might get large parts of the next generation to a higher level of knowledge about guns. Regularizing and sanctioning gun use as a part of public education will surely change attitudes about guns. For participants, the irreversible nature of firing a gun might become crystal clear. Once a bullet has punched that small hole in a paper target, it is permanent. You can't say you are sorry and get it back. Better to learn that from paper targets than from wounds.

We could establish worthwhile values in young people by such an activity, without becoming a nation of organized militias. I think it is worth a try. After all, what are the downsides to such a sport program?

LETTERS to the editor

Fire victim grateful this Thanksgiving

Why do I love Charlevoix? Friday morning I received the phone call no one wants to get, "Your house is on fire!" Many thoughts ran through my mind. My sweet log home, full of a lifetime collection of artwork and mementos from world travels, but most importantly, my beloved animals; dogs, cats, a macaw, a toucan, a cockatoo, two cockatiels and two 80-pound African desert tortoises.

After the world's longest 8-mile drive, I was greeted by my friend and housekeeper, Molly Zipp, who saved the day by calling 9-1-1 and running the garden hose on already lapping flames. Molly somehow managed to get all three bulldogs outside. I was quickly followed by our wonderful volunteer fire department. I do not recall many names, but it seemed like every rescue person in the county was there. In addition, the EMS staff and deputy sheriff Nicole Smith were all extremely supportive, to say the least.

My employee and friend Alex King was indispensable in the rescue of each and every animal. He found my two cats, one of which was barely alive from smoke inhalation at age 21 years. The EMS crew allowed me to use oxygen to revive her. I will be forever grateful for their help and support. About this time, as I'm sitting there reviving my cat, I was tapped on the shoulder by my good friend and veterinary technician Debbi Drew. I asked, "How did you hear?" and she said she got a call from the Villager Pub, where she worked for years, proving it pays to have good friends. Debbi swung into gear, and she and Alex managed to shuttle two loads of animals to Lori and Rob at Charlevoix Animal Hospital, who also were major players in the wonderful outcome of this very demanding day. The whole time this was going on, my trusted assistant Edith Pair was running the gallery and keeping friends informed.

Now getting to our most impressive fire department -- these guys were so compassionate and concerned for me, my home and my animals. With each trip out carrying individual animals I heard "did you get them all?" I also was taken by their knowledge and thoroughness.

My deepest thanks to all who helped, stopped by, or called.

I truly love this town!

Respectfully and Thoughtfully,
Todd J. Warner, Norwood

LOOKING BACK…

In 1897-98, the Chicago & West Michigan Railway, which had brought the railroad to Charlevoix in 1892, built the gigantic Inn Hotel on the terrace above the depot at the far east end of Dixon Avenue along Mercer Boulevard. At 550 feet in length, with 250 rooms on four floors capable of sleeping 800 guests at full capacity, the Inn was the second largest hotel in Michigan after the Grand on Mackinac Island, and the wonder of its age. People arrived from all over the country to partake of its luxury. But eventually a major problem cropped up. The summertime-early fall hotel was built by the railroad mainly to service railroad passengers, and with the advent of competition in the form of the automobile, railroad passenger numbers began their gradual decline and the Inn had very little room to accommodate cars. By the 1930s, the effects of the Great Depression and the plain fact of no room to expand for parking space took hold. The handwriting was on the wall. At the end of the decade, the decision had to be made. 1940 would have to be the last season. The contents were auctioned off in late 1941, and the mighty Inn came down shortly after, board by board, brick by brick, its likes never to be seen again in Charlevoix.

COMMUNITY Highlights

Benefit planned for East Jordan man

EAST JORDAN — Community members are planning a benefit dinner and silent auction to help East Jordan resident Jacob Baier as he recovers from injuries he sustained in a traffic crash in northern Emmet County last month.

The benefit is scheduled for 6-8 p.m. today, Friday, Nov. 22, at the East Jordan Middle School cafeteria and will include a dinner of chili, hot dogs, chips and dessert, a silent auction, a 50/50 raffle, a raffle for children and a pop can drive.

The silent auction will begin at 5:30 p.m. and will include a wide array of items and services donated by individuals and businesses in the community.

Baier, who is an engineering technician at Northwest Design Group in Petoskey, was seriously injured in a one-vehicle traffic crash that took place on Oct. 19 as he was driving to a construction project near Levering in rain, sleet and hail.

Baier lost control of the vehicle, and the vehicle rolled on its side and struck a tree.

Organizers said Baier suffered several broken ribs, a punctured lung and spinal cord injury with lower body paralysis from crushed vertebrae. He underwent surgery that same day and is starting the recovery and rehabilitation process. He is currently at the Rehabilitation Institute of Michigan at Detroit Medical Center and is facing months of both inpatient and outpatient rehabilitation.

"Jacob's strength and positive attitude are inspiring and will serve him well on his quest to recover and hopefully walk again," Baier's friend and co-worker Lucas Porath said.

Boyne City wants to become 'Trail Town'

JORDAN SPENCE
Northern Michigan Review

The Boyne City commission has taken the first steps to becoming a "Trail Town."

With a vote of 4-1 the commission approved developing a trail town master plan, at the regular commission meeting Tuesday.

The Land Information Access Organization, will help Boyne City develop the master plan, said community planner with the organization, Harry Burkholder. The service will be free to the city, because of grants from the Frye and Charlevoix County Community foundations.

The organization is a nonprofit out of Traverse City, and helps communities and governments with community planning, application and database development, parks and recreations, trails and more.

Burkholder describes a trail town as a community where the trail system is used to spur economic development within the city.

"We look at ease and accessibility from trails to the town's amenities," he said. "How do you get people off the trail and into the town? We will act like the consultant, help Boyne City develop a trail town plan. We will do that through design analysis work with local businesses to do the program."

City manager, Michael Cain, said it will be a great tool to use, and won't only be about hike trails, but, equestrian, water and snowmobile trails as well.

Cain said at the meeting, the program is in some respects similar to the Mainstreet program, by using organization, promotion, design and publicity to ignite economic development based on trails.

Commissioner Derek Gaylord, voted against the measure because he didn't feel the program is necessary.

"I've heard many comments already from various folks who said we already have this and were already doing these things. I agree," he said. "We don't a need a stamp from trail towns or a brochure to show off what we have."

City manager, Michael Cain, said this is just the beginning phase of the project.

"We have to go through this master plan process," he said. "It makes sense to get involved. Especially with the number of new trails … it will be a great opportunity to give us a stronger economy in Boyne."

The city will also be forming a committee to develop the master plan. Applications to serve on the committee are due by noon Monday, Nov. 25, and are available, at City Hall, 319 N Lake Street or on the city's website, www.cityofboynecity.com, under "Forms - Permits & Applications."

An additional $1,500 is reserved for coming scholarships, for a total of $6,000 in donations to the community.

The club first formed in 1992 with about 35 people at the first gathering. The group annually hosts a summer car show that raises money for its annual donations.

Frederick 'John' Miller, 61

Frederick "John" Miller, 61, passed Thursday, Nov. 14, 2013, at his home in Somerville, Ind. He had worked at P.I.C., Inc., SMC and Styline.

John was preceded in death by his mother, Marilyn Anne Paul and his stepfather, David Eugene Paul, who were from Charlevoix, Mich.

He was born in Charlevoix, May 1, 1952, where he was known as Jack. He was as playful and mischievous as he was gentle and loving. As a child he loved with all his heart, those closest to him never misplaced a smile.

This delightful boy grew into a wonderful man who served his country in the U.S. Army and during his enlistment met, Sharon "Sue" O'Neal, who was also serving her country. On day one, he talked her into a date and on day 30 he changed her name. They have been married 30 years.

John was the kindest, gentlest and sweetest father to his only daughter, Julie Ann, and his son-in-law, Zachary Hudson. He also has a brother, Bill Duplessis. No matter what came up he found a way to help, advise or just laugh.

John had a heart of gold and no one knew this as much as his three grandchildren, Darik, Zaiden and Austyn. He loved all of us more than anyone else possibly could have; he was our greatest ally and our ultimate champion. We will always miss you and hold you in our hearts. You left us too soon.

Graveside funeral services were held at 3 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 16, at the Somerville Cemetery in Somerville, Ind., with Rev. Larry Meadows officiating. Burial followed the services. Probate Court selected for national pilot program for juvenile drug users

The 7th Probate Court in Emmet and Charlevoix counties was selected for national effort to help treat juvenile substance abusers.

The court was one of six court programs in the nation to participate in developing best practices for the treatment of juveniles who are involved with alcohol and other drugs.

"We are excited and flattered to be selected," said 7th Probate Court Judge Fred Mulhauser. "This is an opportunity to get better at what we do and a well-deserved recognition for all the hard work done by the members of our recovery program team."

The Charlevoix and Emmet County recovery teams operate under the direction of Mulhauser and were chosen to participate in the national effort by the National Council of Juvenile and Family Courts along with five additional courts. The other courts are from New Mexico, Maryland, Tennessee, Louisiana and Idaho and represent a mix of urban, suburban and rural communities.

Mulhauser said the local program's success is because of its non-traditional approach to recovery: It addresses all aspects of the minor's life to encourage behavior change. The program emphasizes education, treatment, family involvement and accountability in a supportive, incentive-based court structure

At any one time there may be 15 to 25 participants between the two counties with youth coming in and graduating at an individualized rate based on their own performance.

"Our team members meet weekly at noon to discuss every kid's progress and to tweak their individual program to recognize and support them. Then at 5 p.m., after normal court hours, we have a general review and accountability session with all the juvenile participants, their families, and all the team members," Mulhauser said.

The 7th Probate Court handles juvenile cases in both local counties. According to the judge, there is a separate recovery team in each county and although each is somewhat different, team members include a substance abuse therapist, probation officer, program coordinator, defense attorney, prosecutor, school representative, court administrator, mental health counselor, sheriff deputy and a physician.

Over the next several years, the national center will be studying the programs selected, provide input and technical assistance, and will share aspects of each program with other participating courts with the goal of developing national best practice standards and improving national performance.

Mulhauser said that even though the local program had the lowest recidivism rate for juvenile drug courts in Michigan at 8.3 percent, he and the teams still aim to improve as a result of participating in the project.

"I think we have a lot to contribute as a result of our experience, but we also stand to gain from working with other courts to learn and enhance treatment techniques and approaches that have a proven track record," he noted.

One direct benefit of the national effort will be the court's access to assessment tools that help focus on an individual's needs. "It is so important to identify individual issues early in treatment, and this is particularly critical for the young substance abuser," Mulhauser emphasized, "because we really don't have any time to waste."

Boyne City residents voice factory emissions concerns

JORDAN SPENCE
Northern Michigan Review

FILE PHOTO

Kirtland Products is a wood pellet manufacturing plant in Boyne City's industrial park.

Some Boyne City residents brought up questions of environmental safety at a hearing Wednesday regarding particulate matter emissions at Kirtland Products.

"Most of the talk was concern for the neighboring health," said Boyne City resident, Ryan Gient.

"There are 1,400 kids on the campus (of the schools.) So the proximity to the pollution is on people's minds. The concerns at the meeting were the health for the people who will be breathing in the stuff."

Around 20 people attended the informational meeting before the hearing, and about a dozen attended the hearing to make public comment, said Julie Brunner, Michigan Department of Environmental Quality permitting engineer.

The facility applied for a permit in April 2013 to modify the amount of particulate matter emissions from some of the equipment. The company changed particulate levels after the MDEQ found that they were in violation of air quality standards in January. In order to be within regulation with air quality standards, Kirtland has filed for a permit to raise a couple stacks' emission output, and lower output of others. This creates an overall lower output than what was originally created.

Co-owner of Kirtland, Tom Monley, said he was at the hearing as well.

"I went and observed, they said they have 29 days to make a decision, so I wouldn't want to speculate," he said. "Everything I heard last night I've heard before."

Brunner said the MDEQ will take the public comments into consideration in its decision.

"We have three choices from here," she said. "We do the permit as drafted, create a permit with amendments, or they could be denied. It will probably take a couple weeks to a month."

Toys for Tots campaign under way

Charlevoix Area Hospital, Fox Charlevoix collects gifts for children and teens

The Toys for Tots charitable giving program is celebrating 66 years of charitable giving and local businesses and volunteers in the Charlevoix County Area are working to keep the rich tradition alive in Northern Michigan.

Under the direction of the Marine Corps League of Northern Michigan, the mission of these volunteers is to collect unwrapped toys during October, November and December and distribute the toys to children in need in the local community. The goal being to "deliver a new toy for Christmas, a message to the less fortunate youngsters that will assist them in becoming responsible, productive, patriotic citizens."

Ross Bolt is the local coordinator for Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan counties with his main focus on the Charlevoix area. He coordinates the efforts of 50 local volunteers in the collection of food, clothing, coats, wrapping paper and unwrapped toys. Bolt and his volunteers have distributed 30 collection boxes across town to collect toys and gifts for the project. He also coordinates the gift collection and distribution with Bev Boss, administrator of the Charlevoix Christmas Project, and the HERO Club from Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Charlevoix Area Hospital created the HERO Club that helps to provide Toys for Teens. HERO stands for "Hospital Employees Reach Out." A committee of 10 volunteers represents each of the departments of the hospital and then works together to gather donations from hospital employees through payroll deductions, providing collection boxes in the hospital, as well as a collection container in the cafeteria to gather funds that will be spent on teen gifts such as sweatshirts, hats, gloves and personal hygiene items.

Additionally, Fox Charlevoix will collect unwrapped toys at the dealership along U.S. 31 on the south side of Charlevoix. Participants will receive two free tickets to a Traverse City waterpark with a donation.

Great Lakes Energy restores power to 5,560 in Charlevoix County

A whopping two-day storm system screeched across Northern Michigan early this week, knocking out power for thousands in Charlevoix County and wreaking havoc on city stormwater drains.

The National Weather Service reported hours and hours of heavy rainfall and thunderstorm conditions across the county on Sunday afternoon, with a confirmed tornado touching down in neighboring Otsego County. Reports included standing water in yards and streets in Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City. Then intense winds in excess of 40 mph whipped off of Lake Michigan on Monday to make the storm damage even worse.

Boyne City-based Great Lakes Energy reported more than 36,000 members lost power across the 26 counties it services, including 5,560 in Charlevoix County. The combination of the Sunday thunderstorm and the Monday wind storm made power restoration a challenge, said Dave Guzniczak, the rural electric cooperative's spokesman.

Most Charlevoix County co-op members received restored power service by Monday night, he said, with just three homes that remained down Tuesday morning.

City council approves ballot language for clerk office change

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix City Council is moving forward with its effort to ask voters to change the city clerk post from an elected to an appointed position.

By a 5-1 vote at its regular semi-monthly meeting Monday, the council approve ballot language that will now be sent to the governor's and attorney general's offices for approval.

If that approval comes in the next couple weeks, the city will conduct a special election on Tuesday, Feb. 25, during which city voters will decide if the change will take place. If the approval is delayed, the vote would likely take place on Tuesday, May 6, instead. The estimated cost of a special election to put the question before the voters is about $4,800.

The election is necessary to make the change because the city's charter sets forth that the city clerk's post is to be an elected position. Modifications to the city's charter must be approved by the voters directly.

Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel proposed the idea earlier this year, shortly after then-city clerk Carol Ochs announced she would not be seeking re-election. At that time, Straebel noted that a survey by the Michigan Municipal League showed that of 127 reporting municipalities, 106 had an appointed clerk, 16 had elected clerks and five did not specify.

Straebel went on to write in a memo: "An elected clerk may or may not have the skill set for the job. The duties require strong administrative, written and verbal skills as well as knowledge about the Freedom of Information Act, drafting meeting minutes, archiving, issuing licenses, and a bevy of other professional skills. If the new clerk does not have these skills, they will need to attend training to learn the intricacies of running the clerk's office."

The consensus among most of the council was to move forward with persuing the vote, and the sooner, the better.

At least some of the eagerness to have the matter change made as soon as possible stems from uncertainty over who will be in the post come Jan. 1. Although city resident ing date," Golovich said. "It's been a long haul and we are really excited."

This is the culmination of years of work, she said.

The township intends to maintain the park, which will be open to the general public.

"We anticipate putting a boat launch, a swimming area and picnic pavilion," Golovich said, adding there are tennis courts and cabins may be updated for possible future rental use.

Even bigger ideas are down the path, literally.

"Eventually when the bike path gets there, we want to be a trailhead," Golovich said.

That could include a parking lot, restrooms and such.

Funding from Michigan's Natural Resources Trust Fund will cover about $3.3 million of the cost. The remaining $1.1 million was raised by the township through $500,000 in township general fund money and $625,000 in donations and pledges. Golovich said letters calling for the pledges to be submitted go out this week.

Funds from the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund provides grant money to local units of government and the state Department of Natural Resources for the purchase of land for outdoor recreation and protection of natural resources. The money in the fund comes from the proceeds of the sale of mineral rights on state land.

Lake Michigan to be included in the easement areas, city officials continue to voice concerns that the easement is not needed and could tie the hands of city officials in the future who might seek to somehow modify the recreational uses at the park.

Spencer said at some point in the next few months, the planning commission will conduct a public hearing on the matter before rendering a recommendation to the city council.

In a recent memorandum, city manager Rob Straebel noted in addition to the city charter prohibiting the city council from selling off any park land without a vote of the people, he pointed out how not only is the city bound in its use of the property by Charlevoix Township's "scenic reserve" zoning of the property (the city owns the Mount McSauba property, but it is located in Charlevoix Township), but the dunes and shoreline area are further protected by a state designation as "critical dunes" areas.

In fact, Straebel noted how city attorney Jim Young opined that the same prohibition in the charter against selling or "disposing" of park lands without a vote of the people, would also require a vote to enact the conservation easement.

Young said that's because giving away some of the city's rights to control the property would amount to "disposing" of a portion of the city's park.

Straebel said he's concerned about giving away some city control of the property and potentially tie the hands of future councils.

"The thing that I struggle with is how can we crystal ball what's going to happen on the back side of that hill 20 years from now," Straebel said.

Campbell agreed with Straebel on the notion of it being difficult to predict the future, but his concerns center more around possible future changes in government entities, such as the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality or even among future city councils that might be less concerned about conservation.

"Government used to protect us from nature, now government needs to protect nature from us," Campbell said.

Campbell hinted that his renewed effort to seek the easement for the property may have been prompted, at least in part, by the recent East Park fireplace controversy.

In a letter to the council about the easement, Campbell wrote, "As we have learned recently in Charlevoix, political winds can blow in different directions and they do not always carry us in the right direction. Government needs a certain amount of flexibility, but it also requires discipline."

He added: "The creation of such a conservation protection should be viewed not so much as a restriction on the property (but) as the appropriate exercise of visionary leadership. It would exclude the developed area of the property, leaving plenty of room for the ski hill and other developed recreational uses. Flexibility would thus be retained."

Larry Sullivan soundly defeated write-in candidate (and former one-year city clerk Carol Och in the November General Election, the city's and county's attorneys have opined that because Sullivan also serves on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, he is prohibited by law from holding both offices at once.

Sullivan has said he wants the Michigan Attorney General's office to weigh in on the matter.

Sullivan spoke to the council Monday and said he is still seeking additional legal opinions and that he has not yet decided which post he will keep and which he will relinquish if he is forced to chose come Jan. 1. However, he did say that the council's discussions about the future of the clerk's position could weigh into which route he might choose.

The version of the ballot language approved by the council would make the switch to an appointed clerk effective immediately following the election. The council could have chosen another version that would have made the change effective at the end of the two-year term to which Sullivan was just elected.

Not everyone at Monday's meeting was supportive of the route the council is taking on the proposed change in the city clerk's position.

Perron, who cast the sole "no" vote, said he doesn't see what the rush is to get the matter on the ballot. Monday was Perron's first meeting since being elected to the council earlier this month.

"I have a problem with February special election date," Perron said. "I don't think there is a reason to push it that fast. I think we should put it to the November General Election. You're going to have more people voting and it won't cost the taxpayers extra for a special election."

In an email to the News-Review on Wednesday, Perron clarified that he supports the change to an appointed clerk, he just want to wait until next November for the vote.

Perron wasn't the only one who bristled at the council's move. Several audience members also weighed in, but their concerns were more centered on the fact that the proposed ballot language makes the change immediate and not at the end of the term.

Gabe Campbell, who Perron just replaced on the council, said the language aught to make the change at the end of the clerk's next term in December of 2016 in deference to the vote that just took place in favor of Sullivan.

June Cross said she wanted to let the council know that "a lot of people in the community are upset" that the council is considering putting a ballot measure to the people that could remove Sullivan from the post to which he was just elected (if he ultimately assumes the office).

Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. quickly countered that the council's actions are not aimed at Sullivan, but rather grew out of discussions that came up after Ochs announced in May that she would not seek re-election and then a few weeks later resigned from her post.

"This is not a bait and switch," Carlson said. "It's not anything against who was elected. I want to make this clear ... crystal clear: This is not anything against Larry Sullivan."

Now, city officials must wait, both to see if the governor's and attorney general's offices will sign off on the ballot language in time for the February election date and to see if Sullivan will ultimately take the clerk's post.

position is liable for actions that may be determined to be outside of his or her authority, or, as the lawsuit alleges, Schneider "acted under the color of state law when he retaliated against Plaintiff (Hull) by interfering as aforesaid with the hiring of Plaintiff by (the Charlevoix Area Humane Society) and threatening the relationship between the (humane society) and the County of Charlevoix if Plaintiff were hired."

Schneider's lawyer, Gretchen Olsen of Plunkett Cooney of Petoskey, filed a response in August, acknowledging that some of the incidences occurred, but denying most of the allegations as untrue. The response also denies that any of the incidences were unconstitutional.

"It is admitted Ms. Colburn called the Defendant (Schneider) and that he told her some of the things Plaintiff said were not true and that if Plaintiff was hired by the (Charlevoix Area Humane Society), there could be some difficulties," reads Olsen's response to the lawsuit.

Later, the lawsuit states, "It is further admitted that Sheriff Schneider and Undersheriff (Chuck) Vondra explained to Plaintiff (Hull) that he made several statements to the press about the (Charlevoix High School) incident that were not accurate and which had the effect and were intended to embarrass the Defendant and his department."

The response to the complaint says Schneider and his department don't know why Hull's offer of employment was withdrawn, and denies that unconstitutional retaliation occurred. It also denies the slander and interference counts.

H. Rhett Pinsky of Pinsky, Smith, Fayette and Kennedy of Grand Rapids, is representing Hull. Neither Pinsky, Olsen nor Schneider could comment on the ongoing litigation. Hull could not be reached as of press time.

contamination and could still be slowly releasing it into the ground."

The officials tested sites contained in an area one third mile square, north of Garfield Avenue and bordered by Bridge Street, just west of Grant Street.

Jim Ursic, geologist with the EPA, was sweeping the ground over a driveway near McCleod and Garfield on Thursday with a device called a "ground penetrating radar." The radar shows a picture of what's beneath the surface of the ground. He showed a picture of a difference in pattern in the soil — what could be an old tank. Ohl said they mark those spots and will come back with a different device to try to determine what might be buried there.

"A lot of these tanks were removed, but pipes could have been left behind, and as businesses change, that knowledge is lost," said Ohl.

The EPA was not taking soil samples that day, but plan to come back during the winter to take soil samples at that time.

"We'd like to see what the levels are like then. The frozen ground can put a cap on vapors, and they can behave differently in the winter than in the summertime," said Ohl.

Michigan Department of Environmental Quality was on hand to work with the EPA.

"We're just here to help and assist in any way we can," said Nic Dawson, project manager for the DEQ's Superfund Program. "We're just doing follow up and like the opportunity to see what (the EPA) comes up with."

The Charlevoix site was removed from the National Priorities List — EPA's list of the most hazardous sites in the United States — in 1993.

Zach Hankins signs with Ferris State

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

Simply put, he's grown.

Charlevoix senior forward/center Zach Hankins, who stands at roughly 6-feet-8, has grown into a solid force over the past three seasons for the Rayders.

It hasn't gone unnoticed.

Hankins, who today, Monday, officially starts his senior season as the first day of boys' basketball practice begins across the state, signed a National Letter of Intent to play at Ferris State University Friday at the Charlevoix High School gym.

Hankins, an All-Lake Michigan Conference first-team selection last season who last year averaged 12 points and eight rebounds a game in helping the Rayders to a 14-6 season, will join a Bulldog team next fall which is now coached by former McBain boys' basketball coach Andy Bronkema.

"It's a huge relief," Hankins said. "It's a relief because you get so worried about what college you want to go to and if you're going to get a scholarship and once you get a scholarship you decide which one you want.

"It's a huge relief because now I can just focus on basketball and focus on getting better for this year."

Getting better is all Hankins has done under former coach Adam Wood — who now serves as athletic director and boys' basketball coach at Harbor Springs — and new Charlevoix boys' basketball coach Bret Erskine.

"I'm thrilled for Zach and he deserves everything that comes his way," Wood said of his now former big man. "It was nice that Ferris kind of jumped on him early, that says a lot.

"Zach over the last two years has come along further than I've seen any player come in the past 10 years around here," Wood said. "He has really committed himself, but more importantly he's a great kid. Ferris is going to get a great player and I know he's going to give everything he's got.

"It will be a benefit for the both of them."

Hankins is coming off a solid summer travel AAU season playing for the Parallel 45 program.

"I got looked at a little bit during the travel season with Parallel 45 and in the beginning of the summer we (Charlevoix) went to a team camp with coach Wood at Ferris and their new coach (Bronkema) was there and he watched me play."

Hankins said he was considering NIAA and Division III schools, but was excited about the opportunity to play at Ferris and for Bronkema, who over the past decade-plus had plenty of memorable contests against Charlevoix in the Class D regional tournament.

Hankins is the first recruit to sign for Ferris under Bronkema.

"I've heard a lot of good things about Ferris and they've been pretty successful, plus I have a good friend down there who plays volleyball," Hankins said. "I was really excited to have the opportunity to play there."

The Bulldogs, which have captured two of the last three Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (GLIAC) divisional crowns and have more conference wins (42) than any other team over the last three years, finished 14-13 overall, 13-9 GLIAC.

The Bulldogs have reached the GLIAC tournament five consecutive years and have more conference wins than any other school in the North Division in the last three years.

"They've been really successful the past few years," Hankins said.

"They have a new coach and he's (Bronkema) a really good gym. He is very similar in philosophy and beliefs as my dad (Scott Hankins) and I so we really clicked when we were talking to him.

"He's (Bronkema) really excited for this year and I'm excited to be playing for him."

With his height and ability to run the floor, Wood said Hankins will be a nice fit at Ferris, and would be for nearly any program.

"The biggest thing is his size, being 6-8, and being able to run the floor," Wood said.

"His conditioning is phenomenal and he's one of those big guys you can play the entire 32 minutes. He's a kid who can go all day, he comes ready to practice every day and pushes his teammates.

"I know those are the types of things Ferris likes."

Hankins said he's happy now to be able to focus solely on having a strong senior season for the Rayders.

"I don't have to worry about playing for a college and I can focus now on my senior season and impressing my coaches at Ferris even more," Hankins said. "I just want to be more aggressive on the court."

Hankins' aggressiveness is something Erskine, who takes over the helm from Wood this season, has noticed.

"To watch him grow, literally, watch him grow has been something," Erskine said. "We've had a lot of big guys here who've taken a long time to grow into their body, but with him playing AAU he's really developed into a good player over the summer."

Erskine recalls getting Hankins as a freshman as a tall kid who was really passionate about band.

"He plays all kinds of instruments and he's great on drums and he had that passion for band," Erskine said. "Once he started getting good at basketball, that became his passion and it's gone into a scholarship at Ferris. That's great to see."

Erskine was also glad to see Hankins sign with Ferris and play for Bronkema, a coach who understands what Northern Michigan boys' basketball is all about.

"I know Andy (Bronkema) was looking for a player like Zach and they were happy to pick him up," Erskine said. "Plus Zach wanted to go somewhere where he could play and it's close, it's just a couple of hours down 131."

Erskine added Hankins' size, fitness level and desire should carry him onto his Ferris State University career.

"He's got a desire for the game and he works hard to improve his game," Erskine added.

"He's kind of falling into that mold of Rob Boss, Scott Parrish or Jimmy Shepherd kind of kid, always in the gym. It's gotten into his blood and at his height, it's nice to have a scholarship."

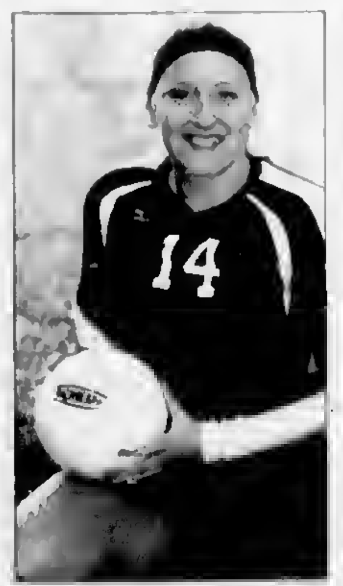
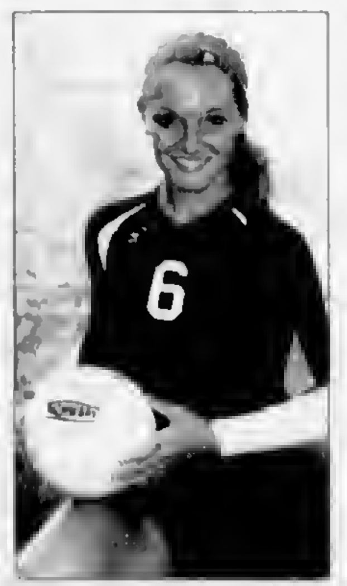
Charlevoix trio earn All-Regional honors in volleyball

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan review

Boss



Holecheck



Greene

Three Charlevoix High School varsity volleyball players were selected to the Michigan Interscholastic Volleyball Coaches Association Region 3 All-Region team.

Senior Jennaca Holecheck and juniors Gloria Greene and Madeline Boss all were named to the team as selected by Region 3 coaches, while Boss was also selected to the All-Regional Dream Team.

Boss, a Rayder captain and outside hitter who is also a full rotation player, finished the season with 717 kills and in four tournaments finished with 61, 76, 73 and 80 kills, respectively. Boss, who last season earned Class C All-State third team honors, averaged more than 20 kills per match in all of her conference matches this season and earned team most valuable player at two tournaments and was selected to the All-Tournament team at the Suttons Bay Invitational.

"She is very dynamic and ultra competitive which makes for a great athlete like Madeline," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said of Boss. "She is a very coachable player and has really become a team player this year."

Boss also had a 94 percent serving accuracy with 75 aces this past season. Responsible for serve receive and defensive work in the back row, Boss earned 302 digs.

"She plays her best when playing higher competitive teams," Randall said. "You can gauge that by obvious intensity she carries on the court."

Holecheck was one of four Rayder seniors on the team this season and was a middle hitter who also played full rotation.

On the year, Holecheck accumulated 243 kills, 71 aces, had 358 digs and was 85 percent on serve receive.

"A large part of this is kills she accumulated in the last half of the season," Randall said. "Everyone was very excited at the level of play Jennaca demonstrated on the court. Each match seemed to be a new high for her. She was very creative with her serving, always changing tempo and moving along the serving line and changing the speed and type of serve."

Holecheck also had a season-high 14 kills in a district match, and her 13 kills in a second district match clearly demonstrated her consistent improvement throughout the season.

"I have coached Jennaca all four years and have always enjoyed her combination of intensity for the game, team player and sense of humor," Randall said.

Greene, a junior setter/right side hitter and team captain along with Boss, was one of two Rayder setters and earned 545 assists, had 49 aces, a 92 percent serving percentage, 183 digs and 35 kills.

"She (Greene) really focused on her role as a setter and I have recognized her maturity as the season progressed," Randall said. "She's very dependable at the serving line. Gloria had a great season and I really look forward to her return for her senior year. She always was very composed during big matches. I really saw huge growth in her skill set of setting in the last half of the season.

"She really understands her role on the team and she has become very disciplined to increase her skill and contribute to her team."

Alternative holiday gift fair Dec. 7

Gifts with a Purpose: An Alternative Gift Fair is an event that focuses on helping the community and people in need, just in time for the holiday season. Gifts with a Purpose will be noon-3 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 7, at Charlevoix Public Library. The fair, which focuses on Charlevoix organizations, is an opportunity for community members and businesses to shop non-profit organizations, making donations in honor of their friends, loved ones, teachers, and other hard-to-shop-for people.

When a shopper comes into the fair they will be greeted by an organization representative and receive a list of suggested giving levels. Then the shopper may go around and learn about the organizations and how they help the community. Each organization will have suggested gift donations, and how those donations specifically help. For example, a $50 donation to the Outreach Food Pantry will provide meals for a family of four for one month or a $10 donation to the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library will purchase one book for the youth department. Credit cards will be accepted this year and used at the collective check out station, thanks to the generosity of Charlevoix State Bank.

Once the shopper decides what to purchase, they will receive a gift card that can be mailed or given out to their loved ones.

"My children love buying their holiday gifts for their teachers and grandparents at the Alternative Gift Fair," said Valerie Meyerson, library director and event co-organizer, "and the teachers truly appreciated the gift that kept

Explorer announces French confirmation of shipwreck

Artifact pull up from Lake Michigan's bottom is bowsprit

SHERI MCWHIRTER O'DONNELL
Courier editor

Charlevoix's Steve Libert on Saturday announced how French archeologists confirmed the wooden artifact divers this year brought up from the floor of Lake Michigan is, in fact, a bowsprit from a ship the size of La Salle's Griffin and possibly from the same era.

Even though, evidence doesn't show for sure that it's the famed and long-sought shipwreck. But Libert still believes and intends to continue to prove it.

So is it the Griffin? Libert can't say so for sure, but he remains convinced.

"I wish that bowsprit would have read 'Griffon' on it, but it didn't," he said, laughing.

About a dozen history and shipwreck enthusiasts gathered Saturday, Nov. 23, in freezing, blowing winter weather at Charlevoix Public Library to listen to Libert discuss all the details of his efforts to locate and identify the 17th century shipwreck. The Griffin, or Le Griffon in French, was a wooden vessel built by legendary explorer Rene-Robert Sieur de La Salle, who commanded the ship on behalf of King Louis XIV. The Griffin sank in 1679 somewhere in the Great Lakes — long thought in northern Lake Huron — while on its maiden voyage to gather supplies for La Salle's planned Mississippi River exploration.

A team of both American and French archeologists in June investigated and brought up from 60 feet down a wooden beam with wooden nails, or pegs, and sent the 680-pound artifact to Otsego Memorial Hospital in Gaylord for a CT scan. "We imaged about 4 feet at each end," Libert said.

Information gathered through this process proved inconclusive, but three sets of carbon dating tests showed the artifact

Results of the recent economic development forum at Charlevoix Public Library are compiled into a report that will be reviewed and considered by community leaders at a coming public meeting.

About 70 people came out during terrible winter weather to participate in the public forum on Nov. 13. They brainstormed for hours and their ideas are now compiled into a single report created by Northern Lakes Economic Alliance. Elected and appointed city officials will gather 4:30-8 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 4, at Charlevoix Public Library to go over the results and discuss how they can collectively move forward.

Organizations expected to be involved with the next session include Charlevoix Area Convention and Visitors Bureau, Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority, Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, City of Charlevoix and the economic alliance.

"Our game plan is for all of these

Bergmann Center mixed media exhibit at Charlevoix library

Bergmann Center hosts third annual show

BY CAROLYN SHERK
Courier contributor

The Bergmann Center of Charlevoix is celebrating its third mixed media art exhibition at Charlevoix Public Library through the end of the year

More than 25 clients from The Bergmann Center worked during the past year to create works of art for this annual art event. A wide variety of sculptures, three-dimensional art pieces, as well as paintings, watercolors and photographs are on display in the community room foyer and the Michigan Room display cases at the library.

Many of the artworks are sold and the artists financially benefitted from the sales. However, there are still a few pieces that are for sale. The already-sold items remain on display and will be picked up after the exhibit closes.

Coordination of the exhibit was this year provided by Robin Ames and Martha Sufridge from the Bergmann Center and Audrey Shapiro from Charlevoix Public Library. More than $500 in artwork sales so far went to the local artist participants.

The Bergmann Center provides adults with mental and physical disabilities help with life skills and opportunities to build self esteem and foster growth. The program facilitates employment opportunities with on the job training at the resale shop and through sub-contracted work from local industries and businesses. The center also provides a community program that develops social and recreational activities, volunteerism and daily living skills.

Clients also have instruction in art and photography and their works of art demonstrate the aesthetic elements of free expression, creativity and inspiration.

"I would like to thank the Charlevoix Public Library personally. Because of their generosity, our clients are able to see what great artists they really are," Ames said. The art exhibition profits the aspiring artists as they develop their talents and gain recognition.

A donation by Vickie and Chip Emery and family made this exhibit extra special this year. The Emerys picked up the tab for all of the artists' work to be professionally framed at The Camera Shop in Charlevoix, fulfilling the "Picture This" theme this year.

"The Emery Family made the quality and happiness of the exhibit come alive ... of all the programming I do at the library, the Bergmann Art Exhibit has a deeper sense of satisfaction because of the joy exhibited at the opening," Shapiro said.

The Bergmann Center Art Exhibit fostered one client into becoming a well-known professional photographer, Rayden Miller earned third place this year in the Farm to Table Art Exhibition with her "Cabbage" photo that is now on display at the library. Miller launched her own career and now runs her own business in photography, a success celebrated by the Bergmann Center.

Susan Krull, a part-time employee at the library, was the founder of the idea to launch the exhibit featuring work from the Bergmann Center. The exhibit quickly grew into a great success and this year's show will remain on display through the end of December. The exhibition is free to see during open library hours.

Jordan River Arts Council hosts annual holiday show

MICHAEL KADE MORROW
Courier contributor

The Christmas spirit is in full swing with the Jordan River Arts Council. The nonprofit's current exhibit is Gift Shop, a collection of nearly 500 pieces, each sure to be a special item for friends, family and loved ones.

Gifts range in price from $3-3,000, most on the lower end of the range. Each item is made by a member of the Jordan River Arts Council, so that means not things you will find at a typical retailer.

"This year we also feature a children's corner, with gifts that are $3, so a kid can purchase something for their parents, or a favorite teacher," said Nancy Carey, Jordan River Arts Council treasurer.

"This is a big fundraiser for Jordan River Arts, with some members even donating their pieces to help fund our operating costs. One of the best reasons to buy at this event is the money goes to support your local artists, people and art center," Carey said.

The show, now in its 12th year, has become a huge annual success for Jordan River Arts Council.

"Some of the artists are doing some different things for this year's show. Many of the artists have made ornaments just for this show, and a lot of them this year are very nature-oriented," Carey said. "This show is very festive, and it always puts me in the mood for Christmas. Margaret Thompson donates her time to play the piano. It helps us make sure to keep a very spirited atmosphere."

Outside of traditional Christmas items such as the décor and ornaments, there are a plethora of useful year-round stocking stuffers. Some of the items include wooden toaster tongs, hand made cards, custom crafted notebooks, pieces of pottery, clothing, and a perennial favorite — one of a kind jewelry.

The show will be open from 1-4 p.m. every day but Monday through Friday, Dec. 20, at Jordan River Art Center, 301 Main St., East Jordan.

More information is available by calling (231) 536-3385 or visiting www.jordanriverarts.com online.

Second Sundays offer family fun at Martha Wagbo Farm

MICHAEL KADE MORROW
Courier contributor

Wagbo Farms plays host to an innovative way to get families with young kids out of the house, into the fresh air, for some fun and enjoyable times in the natural world.

The playgroup is called the Northwoods Family Nature Group and it's all about unstructured fun and a chance for kids to be kids. Jen Lewis of Wagbo, and her friend Keith Kintish, founded the monthly playgroup on the concept of simply getting their kids together to play in a more interesting environment, as compared to parks and playgrounds.

"When a child is playing in a non-structured environment, it gives them a chance to develop fun for themselves, and use muscles they would not in most playground settings," Lewis said.

The age range of the group encompasses toddlers to preteens.

"We practice shadow leadership, monitoring from the background, but not being an active participant. We want the kids to have a great time, and just are there to act as their safety net," Lewis said. "Our concepts for the group were simple: we want the kids outside in a natural setting. We didn't want something very structured, and we don't need experts to guide the kids. Just get them outside for the experience."

The Northwoods Family Nature Group also offers adults some much-needed time to hang out with other adults.

"I love it as just an excuse to go outside, be somewhere different, and it gives me a way to hang out with other adults," Lewis said. "Our default meeting location is here at Wagbo, but we have met at different locations several times. We have met at the Antrim Creek Nature Area, went fishing last year, and we are planning a visit to the Jordan River National Fish Hatchery."

The events often prove really fun for the children.

"One of the more entertaining activities we had was fort building for the kids. They built the forts on the ground, nothing in the trees or anything like that," said Doug Bedell, of Wagbo.

The group's future events are not yet planned, but the group meets on the second Sunday of every month. More information about upcoming Northwoods Family Nature Group sessions is available by emailing info@wagbo.org, calling (231) 536-0333, or visiting www.facebook.com/marthawaghofarm/events online.

Walloon Lake to consider purchasing water system

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

After a petition drive in Walloon Lake found most water system users in support of purchasing the Walloon Lake Water System, the township will have to determine what's next.

A group called Concerned Citizens For Walloon Lake Water led the petition to buy the Walloon Lake Water System. Its current owner, Dennis Hass, was arrested in 2011 on charges alleging he required the water system customers to pay extreme and unjust costs to access water.

Vern Goodwin, township supervisor, said a petition to buy the water system wasn't required, but was recommended. The petition lets the township know the majority of the system's water users supported buying the system. There are 204 water hook-ups in the system, with 178 established users of the system, said Bunny Marquardt of Walloon Lake. She, along with 10 other Walloon Lake residents, led the petition drive.

Eighty four percent of the users signed the petition, though not all were in support of the $1.3 million cost requested by Hass.

"Everyone thinks $1.3 million is too much — it's not worth that," said Marquardt. "If we want the people of the township to own the system, then that's what we have to do. We're at a catch-22."

In September, Hass settled with the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office. He paid a restitution of $7,500 in exchange for the dismissal of three counts of felony extortion and two counts of encumbering real property without lawful cause.

In order to own the water system, the township must draw up a special assessment district, which Marquardt said would be determined by the residents who have water hook-ups to the system. To purchase the system, users will pay a special fee through their water bills. This might not lower the cost of their bills, but it will put the township in control of the system. Too, those who have their own wells and do not use the system will not have to pay for it.

"It will be transparent. We'll see what's going on. The people who use the water will be in charge," said Marquardt. "It's been very difficult in the past many years. This is the way to go."

Once the township's purchase agreement is drawn, the water system users may be eligible for a grant from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality's Drinking Water Revolving Fund, said Marquardt.

Before the township can purchase the system, it must have a public hearing. In advance of the hearing, papers showing the plans for purchasing the water system, the estimates of cost and the proposed special assessment district will be available for viewing from 9 a.m.-noon Monday through Wednesday, Nov. 25-27, and Monday, Dec. 2, at the Melrose Township Hall, 04289 M-75 North, Walloon Lake.

The public hearing will take place 7 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 3, at the hall. The township board and the public will be able to discuss the resolution to purchase the water system.

City moving forward with marina expansion, public safety study

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix City Council is moving forward, although slowly, with its consideration of two other proposed changes in the city — expanding the city's marina to accommodate more large boats, and changing the city's emergency services departments to a public safety model of operation.

In September, the council gave city staff the OK to continue looking into an idea which could allow the city to reach some untapped revenue based on a high demand in recent summers for large boat slips — especially those in the 70-80-foot range.

Currently the marina has just three 80-foot slips, two 65-foot slips, five 50-foot slips and three 45-foot slips. The rest of the marina's existing 70 slips range in size from 28 to 44 feet. Also, the end of Dock A can accommodate a 115-foot vessel, while the end of Dock B can accommodate a 96-foot vessel.

At a recent meeting, Straebel presented the additional research and work that has developed over the past two months.

He said that in preliminary discussions, officials with the Michigan Waterways Commission were receptive to the idea. However, he said the biggest hurdle the city might face in making the expansion a reality is coming up with a way to pay for the estimated $363,000 price tag.

Straebel noted the city is not in a position to pay for the improvements up front or to borrow the money to pay for it. He suggested one option that might be available is to prelease the new slips for four or five years, which likely would raise enough capital to pay for the project.

The council generally supported moving forward with the idea.

In fact, council member Jeff Porter suggested that given the expected return on investment period of just four to five years, the city might want to consider dipping into its roughly $1 million in cash reserves to front at least some of the project costs.

However, soon-to-retire city treasurer Rick Brandi cautioned the council against such a move. Brandi pointed to uncertainty in property tax revenues and possible upcoming changes in the personal property tax law.

"One million dollars sounds like a lot, but we've got a lot coming at us," Brandi said.

A few of the council members expressed concerns about the additional space in Round Lake the proposed 150-foot dock extension would use. A few council members asked to see an aerial view of all of Round Lake with the proposed dock expansion superimposed on it to give the council a better sense of the impact on the overall lake area.

The council referred the matter to the planning commission for further study, and in the meantime, asked city harbormaster Hal Evans to research within the boating community about how much demand there might be for such slips.

The council also heard a report from a consultant Lynn Harvey hired to evaluate the feasibility of the city switching to a public safety model for providing its emergency services.

Currently the city has separate police and fire departments, with the fire department also including its ambulance service. A public safety model would combine all three functions under one department. Exactly how that would work is one of the many facets of the proposal that would have to be worked out.

Straebel brought up the idea

Four hurt in rollover

Four people sustained minor injuries in a one-vehicle rollover crash in Charlevoix County's Charlevoix Township Friday.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider identified the injured as the driver Kiley Nowlin, 20, of Petoskey, and passengers Priscilla McFall, 29, Khloe Nowlin, 2, and infant Luvaya Smith, all of Petoskey

All four were transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital where they were treated for minor injuries and release.

According to sheriff's office officials the crash took place at about 9:30 a.m. on U.S. 31 near Old 31 South.

Authorities said Nowlin was traveling south on U.S. 31 when she lost control of her vehicle on slippery roads, ran off the road and upon emerging the ditch, the vehicle rolled several times coming to rest on its roof.

Deputies said all occupants of the vehicle had seatbelts or child restraint systems in use when the crash occurred

The Charlevoix Township Fire Department also assisted at the scene.

Reflections of Thanksgivings past

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Step back in time to 1949. On a chilly fall morning in late October, I came into the world at Women's Hospital in Detroit, Mich. An unplanned pregnancy for a young, vibrant, single mother who made the difficult decision to give me the gift of life and make arrangements for my adoption. Her own holiday that year was saddened by her loss but there was comfort knowing I was embraced into a new loving family by Thanksgiving Day. Little did I know this holiday was about to take on the tradition of thankfulness for years to come.

Many years later when I married and I was hopeful to begin a family of my own I was told that I would have new little one to hold by the holidays. She arrived happy and healthy and I was forever thankful. More than 40 Thanksgivings whisked by and my father asked that I seek out the woman who gave me life and forever changed his. He wanted to personally thank her for the baby girl who brought added joy to their family. The search ended successfully. As new leaves were added to the family tree they were also added to the dining room table. We welcomed my birth mom to our Northern Michigan home to celebrate Thanksgiving. Our thankfulness continued as a few more years passed and our daughter announced that she and her husband were to become parents and she was due right around Thanksgiving. They blessed us twice with twins making the season beautiful and bright.

In years past, nieces and nephews found their way to our dining room table and the Thanksgiving feast grew to encompass the living room as family and friends shared the tradition of stories, games, and making ornaments for the city Christmas tree downtown.

Thanksgiving also provided somber moments that will be forever etched in my memory. Especially the year we took our father into the emergency room on Thanksgiving morning as we feared he had contracted pneumonia. We said our thanks to the kind and caring medical staff who watched over him as we visited and shared stories; he knew he was missed. A few years later dinner was quieter as we took turns visiting dad and sharing our Thanksgiving dinner with him at the nursing home.

Fast forward to today and our holidays still have family and friends just fewer ones but we're still thankful as four grandsons ages 6 and under have a way of adding life to any day of the week not just the holidays.

If this Thanksgiving you were experiencing a change in your life that has created some sadness, pause and realize your situation may be better than some else's. For some of us who have experienced the loss of a parent, spouse or good friend, it's helpful to change up your holidays by doing at least one thing different. It makes the sorrow a little less overwhelming. The change can be as simple as eating a holiday meal at a different time of day, adding new friends to sit at your table or changing the locale where you usually eat.

To end on a brighter note; this Thanksgiving I dedicated myself to making it through the holidays without clogging my sink or setting off the smoke alarm. I will relax and enjoy those I am with and not feel the need to rush around refilling drinks or picking up empty plates. I will take the time to enjoy those I am with and thankful for. By the time this column is read most will have already celebrated Thanksgiving and I am hopeful yours was one filled with new memories that you'll reflect upon for years to come.

LETTER to the editor

Indian Trails supports bus seat belt availability

Editor:

As the Associated Press recently reported, the federal government is finally going to require seatbelts in large buses used for tours, charters and inter-city travel — 45 years after seatbelts were first mandated for passenger cars.

Bus riders can rest assured that each of the 42 highway motorcoaches purchased since 2010 by Indian Trails and Michigan Flyer is equipped with three-point seatbelts. Because of our ongoing commitment to passenger safety, all of these vehicles are also equipped with GPS, and most include electronic stability, fire suppression, and tire monitoring systems, as well.

Besides the fact that bus travel is one of the safest modes of transportation, readers should know that Indian Trails and Michigan Flyer are subject to many more inspections than the average bus company because we contract with the Michigan Department of Transportation and provide transportation for the U.S. Defense Department.

We strongly support the seatbelt requirement and urge passengers to use seatbelts.

LOOKING BACK…

An All-Dixie quarterback at the University of Chattanooga, Detroiter Bill Ratigan went on to become one of America's most respected radio journalists and an author of Great Lakes-based fiction and nonfiction. He rose to the position of supervisor of the Far East listening post of NBC News during World War II, and later became managing editor of the company's Western News Division in Hollywood. Much of the war news from the Pacific Theater that went out over the national airwaves was edited by Ratigan. When the fledgling United Nations held its formative conference in San Francisco, he was assigned duty as a scriptwriter, and had a front row view of the great statesmen of the time. His abilities caused Radio Life magazine to declare him "the best all-around radio newsman in the world." After the war, Ratigan returned with his family to his native state to fulfill a long dream of professional writing. They ended up in Charlevoix because Earl Young was the only realtor who replied to his many enquiries regarding a rental availability with a water view along the Lake Michigan shoreline, that being 300 Park Ave. Ratigan went on to publish several books, including "Great Lakes Shipwrecks & Survivals," which has never been out of print. Many Charlevoixites still remember his maritime-themed used book store, the Dockside Press, which he opened on Belvedere Avenue in 1954 and kept in business well into the 1970s.

Foundation makes a move

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently moved into a new building on Water Street in East Jordan.

EAST JORDAN — The Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently moved into a new home in East Jordan. The foundation's new building at 301 Water St., in East Jordan, previously housed The Quilt Cottage.

The foundation, which started in 1992, has supported more than $1,400,000 in grants and scholarships to community organizations and students this year alone.

The new building provides additional resources for the foundation to carry out its work. The achievements of the foundation are also detailed in the latest annual report, titled "HOME," which is being mailed this week.

"In the past few years, we've talked about becoming owners rather than renters," Chip Hansen, foundation president, said. "Some donors came forward and the land became available. Everything came together at the right time, and we knew we should proceed."

Over the past year, designs were finalized and construction began. The final result is a newly renovated facility, equipped to help the foundation fulfill its goals to meet community needs.

The facility consists of private office spaces for staff members as well as a small conference room and a larger conference room that can accommodate foundation board and committee meetings. In addition, the foundation plans to make the meeting space available for other area nonprofit organizations.

"The space not only facilitates our work, but allows us to invite more people through our doors and provide an additional service to area nonprofit agencies. We hope that the building will be an additional community resource, just as we try to be in our grant-making endeavors," Hansen commented.

"We couldn't be happier to be here. We feel fortunate to be able to set down permanent roots in the county. We truly feel at home in this new place, and we are so thankful for those who made this project possible."

Supporters of the project include the Frey Foundation, the Malpass Foundation and The Herbert H. and Grace A. Dow Foundation.

The idea of building a new home for the foundation inspired the current 2013 annual report, which features articles about the many aspects of Charlevoix County that make it a wonderful place to live, work and raise a family — to call home. The report documents many of the projects the foundation has supported in the past year including projects that encourage youth, sustain our environment, make public spaces accessible for people with disabilities, and more.

To view a copy of the report, contact the community foundation at (231) 536-2440, or visit the foundation's newly updated website, www.c3f.org.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a public charity dedicated to improving and enriching the lives of people in Charlevoix County. The organization holds various funds, all established by local donors. Some funds are earmarked for specific causes, while others are open-ended to meet changing needs. The funds are held in permanent endowment so they can continue to grow and generate income to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix County now and for generations to come.

Lights of Love raises money for hospice

'Tis the season for giving and the Boyne City Eta Nu Women's Charities will once again offer the opportunity to make a difference by hosting the annual Lights of Love Christmas Tree Lighting in Boyne City.

Participants are invited to purchase a light or a heart in honor or memory of a person or group, with all proceeds going to support hospice patient care through the Hospice of Northwest Michigan. Lights range in price from $5 to $25. A "heart of love" ornament can be purchased for $35, and the name you request will be inscribed on the heart which will be placed on the tree for the ceremony. Hearts may be picked up at Country Now and Then between Jan. 1-31, those remaining will be sent to the donor.

Festivities will begin at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 4, at Boyne River Inn in Boyne City. Following caroling and the tree lighting ceremony — in the courtyard between Country Now and Then and Up the Lazy River — a dinner will be served at a cost of $14.50. Space is limited so reserve early.

Orders for lights or hearts must include the name, address, and phone number of the donor, and whether the order is in honor or in memory of a person. For additional information contact Mary Whitlock at (231) 582-9798. Make checks (for lights, hearts and dinner), payable to Eta Nu Charities and mail to P.O. Box 133, Boyne City, MI 49712.

Donation forms are available at Boyne Area Chamber of Commerce, Boyne Senior Center and various other local merchants.

Hestia Giving Circle accepting grant applications until Feb. 1

The Hestia Women's Giving Circle is welcoming applications from organizations in Emmet or Charlevoix counties that help local women and girls. Applications are due Feb. 1, and grants will be announced in May and awarded in mid-June. Organizations applying for grants must have 501 (c) 3 nonprofit status, be a school or government agency, or have a fiscal agent with nonprofit status.

The Giving Circle is a donor-advised fund of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation which also assists the Hestia Giving Circle in grant making and distribution. Applications are available on the foundation's website at www.c3f.org. Potential applicants should call Maureen Radke at the foundation, (231) 536-2440, prior to filling out an application.

The Hestia Women's Giving Circle was formed in 2005 by women in Emmet and Charlevoix counties. Its mission is to promote the economic self-sufficiency and well-being of women and girls in Emmet and Charlevoix counties. The circle is named for the Greek goddess Hestia, who expresses her love and concern for others through thoughtful acts. The giving circle provides an opportunity for women to pool their donations to make a significant impact and to educate themselves about issues facing women and girls in our community.

Earlier this year, the Hestia Women's Giving Circle awarded $33,100 in support of local programs that serve women and girls. Grant awards for 2013 include Big Brothers/Big Sisters, for a new school based program for girls who otherwise could not be involved; Child and Family Services of Northwest Michigan, for pregnancy counseling services; First Tee Program, teaching life skills; North Country Kids, child care scholarships; Northern Lakes Economic Alliance, reduced cost services to women-owned businesses; Northwest Michigan Habitat for Humanity, Financial Peace University scholarships; Planned Parenthood of West and Northwest Michigan, health care for low-income women; Women's Resource Center, education and employment service program.

The Hestia Women's Giving Circle is actively seeking new members. The annual membership fee is $1,000, which can be shared by two women. All of the funds received are distributed directly to local organizations serving women and girls. The giving circle is especially interested in supporting smaller organizations that may have limited access to other sources of funding.

OBITUARY

Charles E. 'Charlie' Winn, 70

Charles E. "Charlie" Winn, of Cadillac, passed away Monday, Nov. 18, 2013, at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor. He was 70.

Charlie was born May 1, 1943, in Hamilton, Ohio, to William Harden and June Carolyn (Hathorn) Winn Sr.

Charlie was the consummate "people person" and salesman. He was funny, charming, warm-hearted, positive and "un-filtered." Charlie genuinely loved his family and friends: old, new and yet-to-be-made. You could count on his loyalty to all those he loved and to any cause he believed in. He was a dear husband, father, grandfather, son and brother. We are sad to have lost him and he is greatly missed.

Charlie was a founder of Four Winns Boat Company, as well as Lakeside Charlie's Restaurant and Pheasant Ridge Estates, all in Cadillac. He was also a founder of the Charlevoix Country Club and, long ago, a sales manager at Investors Diversified Services (IDS) in Lansing.

Charlie had a passion for water, antique boats and boating in general. He was a member of various yacht clubs in Florida and Michigan, as well as a member of the Antique and Classic Boat Society, Great Lakes Cruising Club and the Pine River Association.

Over the years, he collected and restored various antique wooden boats. His enthusiasm for boating led him to explore harbors and marinas throughout the Great Lakes, North Channel and Florida waters, where he particularly liked taking day trips to out-of-the-way spots. He and his wife, Janna, have also had many wonderful years living and loving at their home on the Pine River. "It is our little slice of heaven and we appreciate how lucky we have been."

Besides boating, Charlie was an avid fan of nice cars and motorcycles. As member of the Porsche Club of America and BMW Motorcycles Owners of America, he enjoyed many driving adventures around the countryside. It was always the journey rather than the destination to Charlie … unless, of course, the destination was a restaurant. If ever there was an out-of-the-way or new restaurant to be discovered, he would find it.

Charlie was an avid reader with a special interest in current affairs, human interest stories and politics. He really liked the feel of a newspaper between his hands. He always appreciated a good political discussion and, no doubt, would be very disappointed that he is unable to vote in 2014!

He was a generous man, compassionate and fair. He was quick to lend a hand to anyone in need and encouraged all to value themselves and others. His strength and encouragement will live on in our hearts.

On Sept. 11, 1977, in Lansing, he married the former Janna Kay Hendricks. She survives him along with three daughters, Wendy (Bill) Taylor of Haslett, Heidi (Kevin) Hall of Cadillac and Amy (Sean) Smith of Dewitt; nine grandchildren, Jeff Taylor, Morgan Taylor, Brad Hall, Bryant Hall, Brock Hall, Sean Smith Jr., Mitchell Smith, Ian Spry and Hannah Smith; his parents, William H. and June C Winn, Sr. of Naples, Fla.; brothers, William H. Winn Jr. of Naples, Fla., and John (Zita) Winn of Charlevoix; nephews, George (Connie) Winn of Fort Myers, Fla., and Billy (Melissa) Winn of Fort Myers, Fla., Kenny Anderson of Baton Rouge, La.; and niece, Zita Anderson, of Traverse City, Mich.

He was preceded in death by two nephews, Trent Winn and Taylor Winn.

A memorial service will be 11 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 3, at the United Methodist Church in Cadillac. Friends may meet the family 2-4 p.m. and 6-8 p.m. Monday, Dec. 2, at the Peterson Funeral Home in Cadillac.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions can be made in support of the leukemia research efforts of Dr. Moshe Talpaz at the University of Michigan Comprehensive Cancer Center. Contributions should be sent to: University of Michigan Comprehensive Cancer Center, c/o Office of Health System Development, 1000 Oakbrook Drive, Suite 100, Ann Arbor, MI 48104-6815; or online at http://victo.rs/1b0m13p); or the Michigan Chapter of the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society.

Schools' credit ratings downgraded

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

The Public Schools of Petoskey and Charlevoix Public Schools are two of 53 districts that had their credit ratings downgraded by Moody's Investor Service thus far in 2013.

According to Petoskey schools Chief Financial Officer Kent Cartwright, Moody's has been reviewing all governmental agencies, including cities, counties and school districts, using their own credit rating formula that takes into account the unfunded pension liability as a factor in the ratings.

"There is a funding gap between the pensions promised to school employees and the money available to pay the pensions, so the state of Michigan is working on a formula that will divide the unfunded liability costs among the 550 districts and the state. We expect to know that formula within the next couple of years," Cartwright said. "Moody's has gone ahead and devised its own formula for credit rating purposes, which may or may not ultimately match the state formula."

Cartwright received a draft report concerning the proposed downgrade last April. Petoskey's rating dropped from Aa2 to Aa3 as of June 27.

To put the downgrade in historical perspective, Cartwright said that in 2005, Moody's rated Petoskey schools at an A1 level. Then, in May, 2010, Moody's upgraded the Petoskey rating two levels to Aa2. The recent adjustment to Aa3 is higher than Petoskey traditionally had been rated until 2010.

"The district's rating was placed on review for downgrade due to its large adjusted net pension liability relative to its rating category as part of our new approach to analyzing state and local government pension liabilities," Moody's wrote in a draft report sent to the district in April.

The report detailed Petoskey's strengths as a "relatively stable enrollment that supports predictability of operating revenue;" and "modest direct debt burden, supported rapid retirement, and absence of further borrowing plans." The challenges Petoskey schools face that are detailed by the agency include "projected declines in financial reserves to a level below Aa median" and "exposure to a considerably underfunded statewide cost-sharing pension plan."

"An Aa3 rating is still very good compared to other districts in the state," Cartwright said.

On the list of the 53 schools that were downgraded, only Ann Arbor Public Schools and Gross Pointe Public Schools, both downgraded to Aa2 ratings, had higher ratings than Public Schools of Petoskey.

"The credit rating doesn't mean anything until we issue another bond. Then, the higher the credit rating, the lower the interest rate we pay for people to buy the bonds," Cartwright said.

Right now, Petoskey has no such proposals on the horizon. Usually, when districts decide to float a bond, their rating is re-evaluated. The common practice is then to buy insurance, which drives down the interest rate. How much insurance a district has to buy is impacted by the credit rating. District CFOs do calculations to figure out the cost of the insurance and the cost interest at various credit rating levels to determine how much insurance to buy.

"For example, for the 2012 technology bond, we bought insurance to upgrade from the Aa2 rating to triple A rating, which made it easier to market the bonds," Cartwright said. "The difference in insurance cost for a district with an Aa2 or an Aa3 rating would be negligible in comparison to the total amount of the bond."

"We will see more downgrades, not just of schools but also of other governmental agencies, as Moody's works through each organization with their new homegrown formula applying this unfunded pension liability," Cartwright said.

Charlevoix Public Schools credit rating dropped from Aa3 to A1 as of Oct. 7.

Moody's noted that Charlevoix's strength was a "modest debt burden." Listed as weaknesses included, "History of declining enrollment," "narrow general fund reserves and limited liquidity," and "exposure to an underfunded cost-sharing pension program."

Superintendent Bob Gendron noted that Charlevoix County's devaluation of properties was a major cause, but the district is still in an excellent rating category.

BUSINESS

Rebuild to help local business with growth

RYAN BENTLEY
Northern Michigan Review

Market Technologies, a company whose offerings are geared toward the retail and consumer products industries, is rebuilding one of its two Charlevoix locations to accommodate growth.

Dan Yenglin owns the company with his wife, Barb. He said additional workload expected in the coming year, along with the facility expansion, have Market Technologies on track to double its company-wide employment to about 40 people, with a majority of the new positions to be located in Charlevoix.

The company got its start in Grand Haven in 1994, with the headquarters moving to Charlevoix the following year. Following the move, the company initially operated from a Ferry Avenue site, and acquired another Charlevoix location along U.S. 31 South in 2004.

Market Technologies' products and services are focused in three main groups, Yenglin said.

One involves assurance services and engineering of products such as store fixtures.

Another, the information services group, is Market Technologies' largest. It provides custom business applications geared mainly toward retailers. Mobile coupon systems, mobile point of sale solutions, and tools to help retailers formulate effective placement of products on their shelves are examples.

"The engineering (business) has slowly, steadily increased, but the (information technology) has been a real push as far as our growth goes," said Yenglin.

Market Technologies' third business group produces custom lighting fixtures for use mainly in commercial, educational and hospitality settings.

The Market Technologies site at 211 Ferry Ave. is undergoing reconstruction. The previous building, with 5,000 square feet on one level, was largely demolished. The structure replacing it has a slightly smaller footprint but adds a second floor, and will offer total floor space of 8,000 square feet.

"Our information services group is growing so fast we needed more space, but secondly we need a secondary data housing facility," Yenglin said.

Yenglin said the reconstruction project began last year. Operations at the rebuilt Ferry Avenue site are expected to start by the end of 2013, with the site expected to be fully operational by mid-2014.

Along with the Charlevoix sites, Market Technologies also has an office in Richmond, Va., which helps it to serve East Coast clients.

Arts center hires new employees

Charlevoix Circle of the Arts' board of directors last week named two co-executive directors for the nonprofit arts organization.

Both Steve Overton and Glory Wood were chosen to fill executive director positions.

"In our planning sessions this fall, the board determined that it is now time for the CCA to move from an all-volunteer organization to one that draws upon the services of a full-time executive director to coordinate our activities," said Gary Stutzman, board president. "We are really fortunate to have found Steve and Glory. Teaming together, they bring us a range of competencies and experience much broader than we could find in a single person. Steve has a proven track record in establishing and bringing to maturity a nonprofit organization and Glory is an artist who has owned and managed art galleries. They are both dedicated to helping the CCA advance its mission to support the arts in our Charlevoix community."

Steve Overton is a West Point graduate with five years of commissioned service in the U.S. Army, is Airborne and Ranger qualified and is a Vietnam veteran. He practiced law for 17 years before leaving the practice to launch Concord Academy in Petoskey, where he served as director for seven years, then moved on to Concord Academy Antrim for another seven years.

Glory Wood is an accomplished artist with years of experience managing her own art galleries. She has a degree in pastoral counseling and has owned and operated her own counseling service.

Steve and Glory will immediately start their assignments. Bart Rypstra, who has been serving as the interim executive director said it is the fulfillment of a recent goal.

"One of my main goals when I agreed to serve on an interim basis was to help the CCA be in a position to start to build a full-time professional staff. The CCA has had great success in its five years of existence using only volunteers, and volunteers will continue to be essential to its continued growth. It is this very success, however, that has fostered the need to move to an organization that is supported by persons who will make the activities of the CCA their full time responsibility," Rypstra said. "We have more opportunities than ever before to make experience with the arts available to our community."

The group's board expects to elect Rypstra to an open seat at its December meeting.

"I am excited about the energy we have right now," Stutzman said. "The CCA's Finance Committee is implementing a fundraising plan that allows us to engage Steve and Glory. We already have commitments from key donors who will provide challenge grants to assure success in our fundraising. In the coming months our co-executive directors will assemble a team that will provide the CCA and its volunteers with the leadership and support we need to provide the even higher level of programming in the cultural arts that the Charlevoix community needs and has the right to expect."

The search committee received seven applications for the executive director position and interviewed four strong candidates.

Wood said she's looking forward to this new position.

"The arts have always been a part of my life. I know already about great programs the CCA is providing for Charlevoix and I want to be involved in helping the CCA move forward," she said.

Overton also said he has no fear about there being two leaders at the organization.

"We're not worried about difficulties that could result from our being co-executive directors," Overton said. "Our individual strengths complement each other. We are both dedicated to the importance of the arts and we are excited to have the opportunity to be involved with the Charlevoix Circle of Arts at this important moment in its history."

Mark Greyerbiehl, owner of Charlevoix Ace Hardware presents a $500 check to Cheri Hoffman, executive director for Hospice of Northwest Michigan. In the past year, hospice served both of Mark's parents and the father of his wife, Vicky. Mark and Vicky wanted to do something to give back to hospice, so Charlevoix Ace Hardware hosted a tailgate party on the day of the Michigan vs. Michigan State game. Participants enjoyed free hot dogs, pop, popcorn and other goodies, then voted for their favorite team. The result was $500 raised for Hospice of Northwest Michigan.

Dock and lift maker moves to roomier quarters

RYAN BENTLEY
Northern Michigan Review

BOYNE CITY — A move to a new Boyne City site gives a Northern Michigan boat lift and dock maker more than double the space it previously had to operate in.

Bulmann Dock & Lift moved in recent months from Boyne Falls to the former site of Great Lakes Motor Works, located just off M-75 South in Boyne City.

Steve Bulmann, who owns the company with his wife, Becky, said the new site offers 22,000 square feet of floor space, compared to 10,000 at the old location.

The Boyne City building offers room to showcase some of Bulmann's products, and also to pursue sales of outside product lines such as outdoor furniture. The Boyne Falls location lacked a showroom.

The new site also gives the company needed additional production space.

"We've been growing 10 to 20 percent a year for the past five years," said Bulmann.

Bulmann estimates that 80 percent of the company's business is generated within 200 miles of its home base, although six dealers help it reach customers in several neighboring states.

The company got its start at Bulmann's home in 1998, and had been operating from the Boyne Falls site since 2001.

"I'd say the reason that we've grown is our reputation for service," Bulmann said, adding that a good team of employees has helped in that regard as well.

Bulmann Dock & Lift currently employs 10 people. Although the company's boat lifts ranging in capacity from 1,300 to 26,000 pounds — and maintenance-free vinyl dock systems tend to be used mainly in the warmer months, Bulmann noted that manufacturing needs help keep workers employed in the off season as well.

The company is open 9 a.m.-5 p.m. on weekdays through the winter months. The move to Boyne City brought a new phone number for Bulmann Dock & Lift, (231) 582-5020.

Great Lakes Motor Works, which previously occupied Bulmann Dock & Lift's site at 175 Magnet Drive, recently had been focusing on service for classic cars. Mike Stowe, the owner of Great Lakes Motor Works, said he intends to reopen it once he finds a suitable location.

St. Mary School Builders Club helps with Eliminate Project

The co-chairs of the St. Mary School Builders Club's Eliminate Project and the club officers recently attended a Charlevoix Kiwanis Club meeting. The students collected $177.75 toward this project which focuses on eliminating neonatal and maternal tetanus in the next two years. Dave Garland, chairperson for this project, was pleased to include this donation and grateful for their teaming up with UNICEF and educating others about this cause. The new club officers also delivered a banner patch to Kiwanis Club president, John Young, thanking them for sponsoring their club.

earlier this year noting that it was an ideal time to consider such a move with the expected retirement of the city's fire chief Paul Ivan in 2014.

Harvey still had some numbers to compile for his report, but said the public safety model could work in Charlevoix. However he noted that one thing that is different for Charlevoix than most municipalities that have a public safety department is the city's ambulance service.

Harvey said he interviewed 11 municipalities similar in size to Charlevoix from around the state that switched to a public safety model of providing emergency services. He said he found a wide array of methods are used for running the blended departments — ranging from the police and fire departments remaining separate except that they are overseen by one person (typically called a public safety director) to complete integration where all personnel are cross-trained as police officers, firefighters and sometimes with emergency medical training.

He said Charlevoix's situation is unique because the city also provides advanced life support ambulance service and none of the other municipalities he looked at offered such services. He said that doing a complete staffing integration that would include the ambulance service could be difficult because of the extensive training demanded for emergency medical certification.

He further suggested that the city could consider a phased switchover that would start with the administration being consolidated and proceeding from there.

Straehel noted the city attorney has opined the switch to a public safety director would not require a change in the city charter. He said although the charter does not contemplate a public safety director, there is nothing in the charter that prohibits the same person being appointed as both the fire chief and the police chief.

The council chose to appoint a committee comprised of council members Shane Cole, Shirley Gibson, Greg Stevens and Jeff Porter to further study the matter.

Finally, the council gave its blessing to the organizers of the New Year's Eve Bridge Drop event to host the event again this year.

Calling last year's inaugural Bridge Drop a success, organizers hope to expand and somewhat modify the festivities this year. Further details about this year's Bridge Drop will be forthcoming soon, but one major addition that organizers hope to offer is a low intensity fireworks show over the Pine River Channel close to midnight on New Year's Eve. Bridge Drop officials plan to come back to the council for its approval for the fireworks permit at its first meeting in December.

likely could be from as far back as the 1670s — the era of the Griffin. Also, French archeologists reported the construction is from a sailing vessel, plus erosion on the timber showed a section remained buried in the lake's sediment for a long time, at least 100 years and perhaps even several hundred years.

That means the French believe it's a shipwreck, most likely from the same time period as La Salle's adventures in North America's inland freshwater seas. Reports from the American archeologists on the expedition remain pending.

And will the site be excavated further in an effort to find more ship parts?

"Oh, yes. I'm sure I know where to go look now," he said. "And guess where it is? It's right in the backyard of Michigan."

Underwater archeologists this summer dug through 17 feet of sediment on the lake bottom, but failed to find any other parts of a ship. But that doesn't mean they didn't find anything at the undisclosed location Libert has said is near a group of Michigan islands not far from the Wisconsin line.

"We did recover some other objects," Libert said, which he said are being tested.

SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL/COURIER

Steve Libert, president of Great Lakea Exploration Group, shares the findings of this year's underwater exploration for an historic 17th century shipwreck.

The Griffin was the first full-sized ship to sail on the Great Lakes, and its fate is one of the Great Lakes' most enduring mysteries. Among many theories are that the vessel sank in a storm, was scuttled by a mutinous crew or was captored and burned by Native Americans.

Libert said he remains confident about searching an area with shallower depth that has deeper sediment levels around 27 feet. And he discussed long range plans, too.

"If this turns out to be the Griffin," Libert predicted. "It will be pulled up. It's too important to leave it down there."

A new round of permits will be needed for further sediment probing and other archeological activity at the Lake Michigan bottomlands, he said.

The evening's presentation raised political campaign funds for the State Senate run by state Rep. Greg MacMaster, who helped obtain needed state approval for the underwater excavation.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

organizations to come up with three areas that we all want to focus on as a collective group," said Bethany Pearson, the city's economic development director.

The idea is for the collective group to plan out how to address multiple topics and divvy up tasks and goals.

"We have to work together as a community, so what that means is being positive and better at pooling resources. We need to come together and have a more collaborative effort in our community," Pearson said.

The listed topics the public forum collectively created include 44 various headings, including shopping local, rent rates, taxes and permits, education, business cooperation and practices, events, advertising and marketing, infrastructure and public spaces, youth, health care and housing, leadership, arts, agriculture and more.

Anyone interested in learning how elected and appointed officials in Charlevnix intend to address these vocalized public concerns and suggestions may attend the public meeting, though the session will follow the same rules and procedures as required by the Open Meetings Act.

Also, officials previously announced the event for a day earlier than the actual meeting date, so those interested are encouraged to ensure they have the correct time and date marked on their calendars.

The public meeting will be 4:30-8 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 4, at Charlevnix Public Library, 220 W. Clinton.

Bret Erskine, who's spent more than 15 years in the Charlevoix basketball program, takes over as the Raydera boys' varsity basketball coach after the departure of former coach Adam Wood. Erskine has been a part of both the girls' and boys' programs at Charlevoix, coaching the Rayder girls' team to two district championabip from 2007-2010. He led the Rayders to back-to-back 20 win seasons in '08-'09.

Stepping up

Erskine evaluates transition to head coach

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

It's been a smooth transition so far.

Having spent more than 15 years in and around the Charlevoix basketball program, both the boys' and girls' teams, how could it not be for Bret Erskine.

Erskine steps into his first season as the Rayders head varsity boys' basketball coach, filling the vacancy left by former head coach Adam Wood, now the athletic director and head boys' basketball coach at Harbor Springs.

"It's been a pretty easy transition. I know all the kids. I've been there with Adam the last couple of years so it's been a pretty easy transition," Erskine said.

And for the players, many of whom Erskine has been around as an assistant to Wood the past three years, just the same.

"I think it's been pretty easy for both of us," said Erskine. "I've watched the kids grow up and through the program for as many years as I've been there. It's been pretty easy for both of us."

Erskine spent three seasons as the head coach of the Charlevoix girls' team, with his last year coming in the 2010-11 season. Before that he spent 10 years as an assistant boys coach under long-time coach Keith Haske — now the head coach for the Traverse City St. Francis boys' team — and was a girls' team assistant three years before that.

The only position in the Charlevoix program Erskine hadn't held before recently was head coach of the boys' team, something he's happy to finally call his own.

"I've coached with two great guys in Keith and Adam and it was just nice that they asked me to help out and take it over," he said. "It means a lot."

In three years as the Rayders varsity girls' team coach, Erskine went 48-20, which included two district championships in 2008 and 2009 and two straight trips to the Class C regional finals in those seasons.

Those expecting a change in the way he coached his girls teams to now can think otherwise, as an adjustment in philosophy and style for Erskine won't happen.

"There's really not much adjustment from me. Of course it's a different type of basketball, but it was a pretty easy transition," he said.

"I had great girls' teams, they were really good. But I was with the boys for 10 years with Keith before I took the girls over and I helped him coach the girls for three years before that, so it's been pretty easy."

The Rayders head into the 2013-14 season looking to replace nine seniors from last year's 14-6 team, but at this early in the season and with cuts yet to come, it's too early for Erskine to say who they'll be.

"They're just feeling out how I want them to play and I'm feeling them out," he said. "Hopefully, like everyone else, at the end of the year we're at our strongest point and playing our best basketball."

Charlevoix will return two of their big men, in 6-foot-8 senior Zach Hankins and 6-foot-5 senior Matt Mackenzie. Hankins recently signed a National Letter of Intent to play for Ferris State next year

"They've both improved," Erskine said. "Zach signed with Ferris and Matt went to a lot of camps this summer."

"He's really improving too," Erskine added on Mackenzie. "He's put on some strength and worked out a lot this summer. He's just working on being a better basketball player and he's doing a great job so far."

With both Harbor Springs and Traverse City St. Francis in the Lake Michigan Conference along with the Rayders, Erskine will have a pair of chances to bring in wins against former colleagues Haske and Wood this season. Perhaps even develop a new rivalry.

Erskine, however, doesn't want any part of a coaching rivalry, he's just happy to have the chance to coach against his friends and hopefully come away with some wins in the process.

"Not really, they're both great guys and I wish them both the best of luck," said Erskine. "I always have, and hopefully we'll get lucky and split with both of them."

Erskine will take to the sidelines of the Charlevoix High School basketball court for the first time on Monday, Dec. 9, when the Rayders host St. Ignace to open the season.

While they'll obviously look to improve upon last season, the ultimate goal goes beyond wins and losses for Erskine.

"If they're working hard and having fun, I think that's the most important thing," he said. "If they're having a lot of fun, a lot of things fall into place and if you're working hard a lot of things fall into place that way too I believe."

"You can go by wins and losses for a successful season, but I think if the kids are having a great time that's a big part of that too."

Inaugural fun run to benefit Toys for Tots

The inaugural Bay Harbor Holidazzle will be on Dec. 14 featuring a Santa Fun Run 1K followed by a lighted parade on Main Street with a float competition among the area schools' clubs, team, classrooms and organizations.

The run route will be along a short, mapped out area in the Village at Bay Harbor. Participants are encouraged to wear Santa suits, elf hats or even Grinch gear for the fun run. All runners will receive prize bags with goodies inside from local merchants. The route is just less than a mile and is perfect for all ages, with all proceeds from the event designated to the local Toys for Tots Program in Emmet, Charlevoix and Cheboygan counties. For more information and to register, visit www.villageatbayharbor.com/santafunrun online.

Following the Santa Fun Run at 5:30 p.m., there will be a lighted parade on Main Street. A special performance by the Petoskey Steel Drum Band Double-Decker Bus is planned.

Contact Chelsea Cannon at ccannon@bayharbor.com or (231) 439-2024 for more information. Parade watchers are encouraged to bring an unwrapped toy to the collection sleigh courtesy of Fox Motors Charlevoix that will be on display during the Santa Fun Run and lighted parade.

Not too late to ask for help

The sharing and giving during the Christmas season can be experienced through several programs that benefit the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project and those who participate in the program.

The Mitten Tree Program sponsored by the Charlevoix State Bank provided the Christmas Project with new knitted items for a number of years. The employees of Charlevoix State Bank will have their special Mitten Tree up in the lobby and will collect donated items until Dec. 13. After that, Joan Balch, chairperson of the mitten project will have a team of volunteers on hand at the Bethany Lutheran Church on Dec. 20 to hand out the donated items to area families who have signed up for the program.

At the Christ Episcopal Church and St. Mary's Church, a Christmas Angel Tree and a Giving Christmas Tree are set up in the vestibules to be used for the Christmas Project's Adopt-A-Family Program. Angel tags and ornament tags decorate each tree representing the child waiting to be adopted for Christmas by the members of the each of the churches. After the wishes are fulfilled, the items are brought back to the designated churches to be transported to Bethany Lutheran Church where they will be given out on distribution day, Dec. 20.

Director Bev Boss made the announcement that it is not too late to sign up for the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project and encourages anyone who is in need to go to the Charlevoix Food Pantry and enroll. For more information on the program, contact Boss at (231) 547-2078.

To make a donation to the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project, send it to John Coolman, treasurer, 12044 Detars Court, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Man to face 1994 charges for sexual assault of minor

BRANDON HUBBARD
Northern Michigan Review

An Arizona man extradited back to Michigan on five sexual abuse felony charges is headed to 37th Circuit Court in Charlevoix County.

Floyd Bernath Crisman, 60, waived his right to a preliminary examination last week in 90th District Court on five first degree counts of criminal sexual conduct. Each felony has a maximum penalty of life in prison.

According to a statement by Charlevoix County Prosecutor Allen Telgenhof, another first degree criminal sexual conduct charge is pending in the 33rd Circuit Court and another one-year misdemeanor count of fourth degree child abuse is being charged through the 90th District Court.

Crisman was arrested Nov. 13 while homeless in Phoenix for five counts of sexual assault of a person under 13 years old from 1990 to 1993 in Boyne City. The charges were made against the defendant in 1994, but he fled the state before his scheduled trials.

Crisman waived a preliminary examination on Aug. 3, 1993, after writing a confession for the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, admitting to having forced a female minor to perform oral sex on him at a home in Boyne City, according to the court affidavit. The defendant later filed a motion to suppress the confession, but it was denied on Sept. 21, 1993.

Crisman

He then failed to appear in court and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest on Feb. 17, 1994. The misdemeanor abuse charge was added in the spring 1994 and a second bench warrant was issued when he did not show for court.

"It appears that he has been living in Arizona since that time," Telgenhof said in a statement following Crisman's arraignment.

Although there is a six-year statute of limitations such alleged crimes can be prosecuted in Michigan, time accrued while the accused is not residing in the state does not count toward the time limit.

A warrant was issued Aug. 12 for the arrest to be made in Arizona and the extradition back to Michigan.

Telgenof called the case a "team effort" between victim advocate Libby Mikulski, Det. Mike Wheat, of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, and the Boyne City Police Department.

Crisman is being held without bond in the Charlevoix County Jail, and attorney Kraig Lieberman has been appointed to Crisman's defense.

The 33rd Circuit Court has a scheduling conference set for 8:30 a.m. today, Friday, Dec. 6.

Sailboats are among the most commonly seen vessels on Lake Charlevoix.

Association releases watercraft counts

MORGAN SHERBURNE -
Northern Michigan Review

Another year, another 200 paddlers on Lake Charlevoix.

At least, that's what the Lake Charlevoix Association found in its annual watercraft counts, released recently.

Each year, the Lake Charlevoix Association counts the number of boats it sees on Lake Charlevoix.

"There is a trend," said Paul Witting, vice president of the Lake Charlevoix Association. "It's interesting. I think we are all aware of these paddleboats and kayakers and smaller boats and how they've increased in popularity — more than 50 per year, each year, on average."

In 1998, when the boat survey began, the association counted 648 boats powered by oar or paddle. In 2013, the association counted 1,356.

Other surprising categories are on the upswing as well. Over the life of the survey, the number of sailboats has stayed about the same — starting in 1998 with 692, peaking in 2010 with 760, and back down to 656 in 2013. But there are about 38 percent more power boats longer than 20 feet, about 686 this

Not too late to ask for help

The sharing and giving during the Christmas season can be experienced through several programs that benefit the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project and those who participate in the program.

The Mitten Tree Program sponsored by the Charlevoix State Bank provided the Christmas Project with new knitted items for a number of years. The employees of Charlevoix State Bank will have their special Mitten Tree up in the lobby and will collect donated items until Dec. 13. After that, Joan Balch, chairperson of the mitten project will have a team of volunteers on hand at the Bethany Lutheran Church on Dec. 20 to hand out the donated items to area families who have signed up for the program.

At the Christ Episcopal Church and St. Mary's Church, a Christmas Angel Tree and a Giving Christmas Tree are set up in the vestibules to be used for the Christmas Project's Adopt-A-Family Program. Angel tags and ornament tags decorate each tree representing the child waiting to be adopted for Christmas by the members of the each of the churches. After the wishes are fulfilled, the items are brought back to the designated churches to be transported to Bethany Lutheran Church where they will be given out on distribution day, Dec. 20.

Director Bev Boss made the announcement that it is not too late to sign up for the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project and encourages anyone who is in need to go to the Charlevoix Food Pantry and enroll. For more information on the program, contact Boss at (231) 547-2078.

Man to face 1994 charges for sexual assault of minor

BRANDON HUBBARD
Northern Michigan Review

An Arizona man extradited back to Michigan on five sexual abuse felony charges is headed to 37th Circuit Court in Charlevoix County.

Floyd Bernath Crisman, 60, waived his right to a preliminary examination last week in 90th District Court on five first degree counts of criminal sexual conduct. Each felony has a maximum penalty of life in prison.

According to a statement by Charlevoix County Prosecutor Allen Telgenhof, another first degree criminal sexual conduct charge is pending in the 33rd Circuit Court and another one-year misdemeanor count of fourth degree child abuse is being charged through the 90th District Court.

Crisman was arrested Nov. 13 while homeless in Phoenix for five counts of sexual assault of a person under 13 years old from 1990 to 1993 in Boyne City. The charges were made against the defendant in 1994, but he fled the state before his scheduled trials.

Crisman waived a preliminary examination on Aug. 3, 1993, after writing a confession for the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, admitting to having forced a female minor to perform oral sex on him at a home in Boyne City, according to the court affidavit. The defendant later filed a motion to suppress the confession, but it was denied on Sept. 21, 1993.

Crisman

He then failed to appear in court and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest on Feb. 17, 1994. The misdemeanor abuse charge was added in the spring 1994 and a second bench warrant was issued when he did not show for court.

"It appears that he has been living in Arizona since that time," Telgenhof said in a statement following Crisman's arraignment.

Although there is a six-year statute of limitations such alleged crimes can be prosecuted in Michigan, time accrued while the accused is not residing in the state does not count toward the time limit.

A warrant was issued Aug. 12 for the arrest to be made in Arizona and the extradition back to Michigan.

Telgenhof called the case a "team effort" between victim advocate Libby Mikulski, Det. Mike Wheat, of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, and the Boyne City Police Department.

Crisman is being held without bond in the Charlevoix County Jail, and attorney Kraag Lieberman has been appointed to Crisman's defense.

The 33rd Circuit Court has a scheduling conference set for 8:30 a.m. today, Friday, Dec. 6.

Sailboats are among the most commonly seen vessels on Lake Charlevoix.

Association releases watercraft counts

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Another year, another 200 paddlers on Lake Charlevoix.

At least, that's what the Lake Charlevoix Association found in its annual watercraft counts, released recently.

Each year, the Lake Charlevoix Association counts the number of boats it sees on Lake Charlevoix.

"There is a trend," said Paul Witting, vice president of the Lake Charlevoix Association. "It's interesting. I think we are all aware of these paddleboats and kayakers and smaller boats and how they've increased in popularity — more than 50 per year, each year, on average."

In 1998, when the boat survey began, the association counted 648 boat powered by oar or paddle. In 2013, the association counted 1,356.

Other surprising categories are o the upswing as well. Over the life o the survey, the number of sailboats ha stayed about the same — starting i 1998 with 692, peaking in 2010 wit 760, and back down to 656 in 2013. Bu there are about 38 percent more powe boats longer than 26 feet, about 686 this

Eagle Scout's project receives continual updates

Connor Currier stands next to the "World's Largest Cherry Pie" monument in Charlevoix, which he assisted to improve.

Parents Kim and Vince Currier of Charlevoix are proud of their son, Connor. Connor, now 18 years old and attending college at Grand Valley State University, earned his Eagle Scout rank in August 2009, and as a result actually saved a Charlevoix monument.

Longtime residents of Charlevoix may have noticed that "The Biggest Cherry Pie in the World" pie pan found along U.S. 31 South near the St. Marys Cement Plant entrance, had been slowly and surely deteriorating up until a few years ago.

"Four years ago, in the summer between eighth and ninth grades, Connor decided to take this project on, the saving of the crumbling icon, for the completion of his Eagle Scout ranking. He had been overhearing township conversations about problems with upkeep for the monument," said Kim Currier. "He knew that one of the options on the table was to basically get rid of it."

No one could have been more invested in the outcome of this decision than the man behind the cherry pie, Dave Phillips.

"I have been involved in scouting for 50 of the 100 years it has been a national organization," Phillips said about the Boy Scouts of America.

Phillips, an Eagle Scout himself, has a vested interest in both scouting and the large pie pan, said he could not have been more grateful for Connor's decision to take on the project which involved painting the pie, landscaping and irrigation of the land around it, revamping the signage and property illuminating it with a new light.

"Everyone has dreams," Phillips wrote of his vision for his pie. "While owning and operating the Grey Gables Inn Restaurant in Charlevoix, Michigan, I had a dream of making the world's largest cherry pie. And I did just that."

In 1976, the year of America's Bicentennial, his pie project became one of the top 20 bicentennial events in the United States. Phillips' pie took a year of planning. It was 14 feet in diameter and 3 feet deep, baked in a specially made stainless steel pan.

"The oven," Phillips said, was designed and calculated so that I would know the inside temperature in all areas, at all times. It was made of brick, it measured 20 feet around, and was heated by propane ... the pie crust was mixed in a cement trough, shoveled into a wheelbarrow, poored onto a platform and rolled out with a garden lawn roller and then placed into the pie tin. The cherry pie filling was dumped into the pie tin by a new 3/4-ton dump truck. A helicopter hovered above and sugar was sprinkled onto the top crust. A huge crane lifted the pie in and out of the oven."

The project was all done with the inspection of the health department. And the planning, calculation, time spent, labor hours and ingredients were all completely donated by various companies and individuals as a community event. The pie took five hours to bake and fed thousands of people who had gathered for the finale. It was recognized by the Guinness Book of World Records as the first "World's Largest Cherry Pie."

To advance to the level of Eagle Scout in the Boy Scout Organization, 21 merit requirements must be achieved. Merit badges are earned by learning life skills, accomplishing merit badge goals and by performing community service activities; they are centered on the Boy Scout principles of "Be Prepared" and "Do a Good Turn Daily." To reach the final stage, a scout must achieve the mandatory completion of "a significant community project" as part of the process. Only a handful of scouts reach this goal. Connor's project was presented just before he entered high school and was recently updated this past summer, four years later.

Connor's project, as originally presented, was to execute improvements to the historic landmark located at fire station No. 2 in Charlevoix Township. He would paint the pie display and surrounding sign, add a sitting area for visitors, add a flagpole to the area for the U.S. flag to be displayed, landscape the overgrown area, arrange for irrigation, and add lighting for the displayed flag.

Connor completed his project with the generous help of several benefactors, including his father's landscaping business, electricians and plumbers, and St. Marys Cement. He continues to make improvements. Last sommer, the sign was fitted with stainless steel letters and the lighting improved.

"Last winter we put on some Christmas lights," Connor said on a recent visit home. "I used to drive by the cherry pie every day on my way to school. I knew I wanted to do something about it," he said.

Dave Phillips had this to say about Connor:

"I think he was an outstanding scout. He exemplified the organization at its best and the scouting model to 'Do a Good Turn Daily' with his project."

Mentors key in reading program

Volunteers welcomed

ANNE KELLY
Courier contributor

A volunteer mentoring program at Charlevoix Elementary School is making a significant difference in the lives of volunteers and the children with whom they work. Although some tutoring is given in math skills, the emphasis is on reading.

"We currently have about 15 mentors who have come forward from the community. They may be retired teachers, but that is not a prerequisite," said principal Doug Drenth. "We welcome parents, grandparents, community members and retired business people — anyone who enjoys working with kids in small groups or one-on-one."

Mentors are matched with students at the age level in their comfort zone. The teacher then provides books or materials for the volunteer to use during a session. Days and times are arranged between the teacher and the mentor, usually once or twice a week for anywhere from 30-60 minutes. Many enjoy the experience so much that they take on more than one student.

"These people are a treasure in our building," said Stephanie Carey, kindergarten teacher. "Volunteers come into the building and may or may not have students here but they give their time, and most importantly, love to many of our students that don't have many people in their corner. Real relationships are developed and I appreciate the insight my volunteers give me about the students they work with."

Second-grade teacher Krista Jarema uses these volunteers to both remediate reading and work on some accelerated reading.

"The students get very excited when they know that one of my volunteers is coming. Some of them crave individual attention from adults and some just love the chance to get to work on reading at a level that is appropriate for them," Jarema said. "I truly appreciate their dedication to my class and willingness to come in every week."

And she's not the only teacher who thinks so.

"I have had wonderful volunteer readers through the years," said Shelly Novotny, fourth-grade teacher. "When volunteers come into our school and work one on one with students, it always boosts academic achievement. Students also become more excited about reading."

As for the volunteers, the rewards are many, according to

Charlevoix new year to come in with a bang

Fireworks display added to Bridge Drop event, U.S. 31 to shut down at bridge for 20 minutes

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

Organizers working on the second annual Charlevoix Bridge Drop New Year's Eve event are adding some significant extra pop to this year's version of the celebration.

At Monday's regular semi-monthly meeting, the Charlevoix City Council unanimously approved a permit to allow organizers to shoot off a fireworks display starting moments before and lasting minutes after the new year arrives.

During its previous meeting in late November, the council approved other elements of the festival including allowing exemptions from rules regarding city park closing times and noise regulations.

Conceived last year by Rick Randall and convention and visitors bureau director Amanda Wilkin as a way to bring people and business to the community during a typically slow economic time, the Bridge Drop event was a multi-day event that started with businesses in town offering specials and culminating on New Year's Eve with a party atmosphere in the area of Memorial Bridge and the Weathervane Restaurant.

This year organizers wanted to kick it up a notch with a fireworks display over the Pine River Channel.

As Bridge Drop planners considered expanding the event and adding fireworks, the natural person to put on the task was Venetian Festival Board of Directors President Dan Barron who for the past 14 years has helped coordinate the festival's signature two nights of fireworks in late July. Barron, of course, went to the same company that has put on the Venetian fireworks since 1999 Colonial Fireworks.

Barron said Colonial Fireworks' lead pyrotechnician Frank Loffredo Jr. has come up with a display tailored specifically for Charlevoix and the Pine River Channel.

The display will be shot in two sections. The first section will be located on the north side of the channel west of the Weathervane Restaurant. These fireworks, which Barron said are the same as those often used in sports stadiums, will arc over a roughly 400-foot section of the channel. The second section will be farther west and on the south side of the channel closer to the south pier light. Those fireworks will be similar to the low altitude, high intensity pyrotechnics that have been fired from a barge in Round Lake on the second night of Venetian Festival fireworks in recent years.

The addition of the fireworks means Memorial Bridge will play a slightly different role in ushering in the new year this time around. Last year the bridge was raised just before midnight and lowered to coincide with the arrival of the new year — something akin to the well-known ball drop in New York's Times Square — this year the plan is a little different.

Barron said plans now call for the bridge to go up around 20 minutes to midnight. It will then go back down immediately. This, he said, will serve as signal to event-goers, that the new year and the fireworks are close at hand. Barron said organizers are making arrangements with Michigan Department of Transportation officials to then shut down U.S. 31 at the bridge for about 20 minutes. This will allow people to gather on the bridge, which will serve as a viewing platform for the fireworks.

Then, about 20 seconds before midnight, the stadium-style fireworks will start as the final seconds of the old year tick away. And and the stroke of midnight the bigger display farther west on the channel will join in for show that is expected to last several minutes — just long enough for the chilly temperatures that usually are upon Northern Michigan on New Year's Eve.

The cost of the fireworks, which will come with a roughly $10,000 price tag, will be paid for through a combination of downtown development authority money and business sponsorship contributions.

The display will also mark the first land-based fireworks display in downtown Charlevoix since the 1997 Venetian Festival fireworks accident that took one man's life and caused serious injuries to others.

Barron noted that the shells and equipment being used for the Bridge Drop display won't be anything like those used 15 years ago. He said the largest shell that will be used in the New Year display will be 2.5 inches compared to the 12-inch shell involved in the Venetian accident.

Barron said the show will be shot "weather permitting." He said wind is the biggest factor that would impact whether the display can take place. He said the fireworks can go on if snow is falling, but the intensity and clarity of the display could be diminished some.

The event will also be expanded in other areas including numerous downtown restaurants offering entertainment, and several attractions being offered in Bridge Park including food vendors and camel rides.

Commission asks for ownership of proposed Beaver Island garage

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

If all goes according to the Charlevoix County Road Commission's plan, the institution would be partial owners of the not-yet-built county garage on Beaver Island in 20 years.

The road commission's Keith Ogden brought an offer before the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners during its regular board meeting, moved to Tuesday morning because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

The offer asked the board of commissioners to approve a rent-to-partial-buy of the proposed building, which the county agreed to pay for during a February meeting. At that time, the board of commissioners also voted to own the building, which is projected to cost $1.5 million.

"The road commission would pay rent of $6,000 per year for 20 years," reads the offer from the road commission. "We would still pay the utilities and provide maintenance starting at day one when the building is occupied and continuing after the 20-year rent, into perpetuity."

The road commission would also assume the 10 and 20 year periodic costs of building maintenance. The road commission estimated utility costs to be approximately $22,000 per year and about $30,000 for periodic costs over 20 years.

At this time, according to the road commission, the county would be paid back for half its contribution to the building of the Beaver Island facility and at the end of the 20 years, the road commission would own a certain percentage of the building.

That would allow the road commission to insure the building under an insurance policy owned collectively by 78 road commissions throughout the state of Michigan, called the Michigan County Road Commission Self-Insurance Pool. The policy covers insurance for the building. Ogden said if the road commission owns its building, it can insure the building under the road commission policy.

"The premiums our self-owned company charges are a squeak more than average, but through the years, we've gotten 50 percent of our premium returned," said Ogden.

How science works

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

In most people's thinking, science is about discovering and proving things concerning our world. It is not quite that simple.

Karl Popper, a philosopher, has provided a definition that is much more revealing. Popper is not a scientist, that is, one who does science. He thinks rather about what science is. Science, he says, is not about proving something to be true, but rather about proving something to be false. Science cannot prove something to be true.

As a lifelong botanist, for me the best examples of how this definition of science works comes from the history of botany as a science.

The Greek philosopher Aristotle is credited with having provided the first answer to the question of how it was possible for plants, which did not seek food as animals did, to grow and flourish. The question he asked was, what is the source of plant substance? Aristotle thought about it for a while 2,000 years ago and concluded in an unscientific fashion that plants made themselves out of earth. It was well known that after constantly growing plants for some time on a single patch of ground, the earth seemed to be used up, and plants in it or on it grew less well or not at all. That was not science. It was simply logical thought.

There the matter rested until 1648, when one of the first experiments in science was performed by J.B. van Helmont in Holland. He planted a willow twig in 200 pounds of earth in a pot, watered it for five years and watched the tree flourish. Not counting the annually falling leaves, he found there were 170 pounds of trunk, root and branches after five years of growth. He carefully removed the soil from the plant and found it weighed 199.8 pounds. Some say he proved that plants need only water to thrive, but he actually proved that Aristotle's idea was wrong. He suggested that plants must make themselves out of water alone, but his experiment did not prove that.

By 1727, experiments were all the rage, and Steven Hales, a British pastor, measured the water taken in by plants and also measured the water perspired away by the same plant. They were very close to the same. He did not prove that plants only used air to make themselves. He proved that van Helmont's idea was false.

Looking at what science experiments disprove is a revealing way of seeing the function of science with new eyes.

What did Darwin's idea of species creation by natural selection disprove? What does the developing climate science of our time disprove?

Experimental science cannot prove something to be true, it can only prove a previous idea to be false. Understanding the nature of science is essential in a world that is driven by science.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds a master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

Charlevoix Courier plans open house

New editor to host meet-and-greet event

McWhirter-O'Donnell

The public is invited to visit the new editor of the Charlevoix Courier at a coming open house.

Sheri McWhirter-O'Donnell, Courier managing editor, will host an open house from 4-7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 12, at the Courier office, 112 Mason St., in downtown Charlevoix. It is an opportunity to meet the new editor and discuss the newspaper's content and coverage, possible future stories and also share information about newsworthy local businesses, organizations and residents.

McWhirter-O'Donnell, a Southern Illinois University Edwardsville graduate, started in early October as the Courier's managing editor. Before that, she worked for more than a year as the niche publications editor for Northern Michigan Review, which owns the Petoskey News-Review, Gaylord Herald-Times and Charlevoix Courier. McWhirter-O'Donnell edited multiple newspapers and magazines for the company, including HomeLife, GoodLife, the Petoskey News-Review's Saturday edition, Graphic, Summer and Winter Guides, plus more. Prior to that, she worked as the Charlevoix County reporter for the Petoskey News-Review.

Coffee, tea, cider and cookies will be available at the Courier's open house, and participants are encouraged to bring their own mugs to reduce waste.

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…

Toward the end of the 1950s, a rural electric plant was constructed in the village of Advance a few miles northwest of Boyne City on the Lake Charlevoix shoreline. It was powered by coal, which had to be shipped in, so for the following four decades Charlevoix endured the entry and exit of the behemoths of the Great Lakes, the great freighters that could extend more than 600 feet in length. Eight to 13 times a year, they came in sometimes so loaded their keels scraped the channel bottom, thus slowing them so much they had to inch past the bridge. This passage might take half an hour. It could tie up traffic on U.S. 31 so badly that during the height of the summer season cars were known to line up along the golf course on the north and across the M-66 intersection on the south. Drivers in stalled vehicles on Bridge Street were reported undergoing steering wheel-pounding primal scream therapy. Going out, the empty vessels could take as little as seven minutes. Average time: 15 minutes. But for those thousands of drivers caught over the years, being stopped for the coal boats always felt like an eternity. The Advance plant closed in the late 1990s, and Charlevoix heaved a huge sigh of relief.

Parents invited to join leadership council

The Great Start Collaborative of Charlevoix, Emmet and northern Antrim counties invites parents to join the 2014 Parent Leadership Council, comprised of parents of children 12 years and younger, that helps strengthen families and supports optimal development of young children.

"The authentic voice of parents is vital to community planning and growth," said Maureen Hollocker, director for the Great Start Collaborative.

Parent Leadership Council members will gain personal and professional development, said Raeann Dunlop, parent liaison and leader of the 2013 council.

"They will build personal leadership skills, increase understanding of family strengths and the community, as well as have the opportunity to network with parents, community leaders and other professionals – all while serving as the voice of parents of young children throughout the region," Dunlop said.

Members will participate in community outreach by representing Great Start and sharing materials with others as a parent voice at community meetings. They will also help plan and facilitate events and projects hosted by Great Start, as well as share child development materials and community resources with other parents.

Parents within the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District who are interested in becoming a part of the Parent Leadership Council must have a child or children aged infant to 12 years, commit five hours per month from January-December 2014, and attend the Great Start Parent Leadership Council Orientation. To eliminate barriers to participation, parents will receive a monthly honorarium of $50 upon completion of hours and the monthly Leadership Council reporting form, and transportation assistance via fuel cards.

Application and additional information can be found by visiting www.greatstartforkids.com online. Application deadline is at 5 p.m. Friday, Dec. 20. Completed application forms can be mailed to: Great Start Collaborative, 08568 Mercer Boulevard, Charlevoix, MI 49720; faxed to (231) 582-8082; or emailed to gspc@greatstartforkids.com.

The Great Start Collaborative is currently made up of more than 30 different participants and organizations from around the community. Representatives from business, health, education, human services, legislative, higher education, nonprofit, court systems, and parents are committed to creating a movement in our area that seeks to involve the entire community in supporting families as they raise their young children to succeed in school and in life.

Box of books event promotes reading, learning

ANNE KELLY
Courier CONTRIBUTOR

"Every Child. Every Parent. Every Day." This was the theme of an evening book-a-thon on Nov. 19 at Charlevoix Elementary School. Orchestrated by Jamie Warchol, the event was part of a nationwide program to increase awareness for literacy and for putting books in the hands of young children. Warchol has taught young children in both Charlevoix and East Jordan, and became aware of the program called "Big Boxes of Books" while in East Jordan where she participated as a station presenter.

"It was a 90 minute reading party for kids and their families. I knew I had to bring it to Charlevoix," Warchol said.

Proponents of the program suggest reading aloud to young children is the single most effective thing parents can do to help prepare their children to succeed in school. Yet, fewer than half of U.S. children 5 years and younger are read to every day, placing them at risk for reading delays and school failure, according to the website www.readaloud.org.

The program partners with schools and day cares to put books in the hands of families and to provide parents with the tools needed to make the most of the reading aloud experience. Parents are asked to pledge to read aloud to their K-2 child for 15 minutes a day. A natural time to do this is bedtime, but many children never experience this shared moment with their parents.

Why read aloud? Language development, literacy skill building, knowledge gained and shared, brain development, bonding, the love of reading are all positive outcomes that can be gained by reading aloud for just 15 minutes a day. During a "Big Boxes of Books" evening, teachers, librarians and other volunteers demonstrate reading aloud and the best way to interact with books. Presenters read an age-appropriate book to a small group of children, then, following a craft activity, the children assemble with all those in attendance and are given a box of books to take home. There are usually four or five books in each box.

"About 70 students signed up," Warchol said. "We hope to repeat 'Big Boxes of Books' in the spring so that all the K-2 families are reached. The program is funded in part by a generous gift of books from the Disney Publishing Group. The additional $2,500 necessary to fund the costs involved in participating in the Read Aloud Program can be realized through the writing of grants or donations of books and materials. Warchol raised $2,500 in private donations to make it all happen for this event.

Many staff members attended the event to make sure the evening and the distribution of books went smoothly. Others worked behind the scenes preparing the boxes and getting the materials ready for the craft projects which accompanied the reading of books in small groups.

"It was awesome to have the kids be able to receive all the books and be really excited about reading," said principal Doug Drenth, whose own young children, Oliver, 2, and Maxwell, 4, were the recipients of one of the boxes of books distributed to all participants that night.

"Overheard by one of our teachers," Drenth said, "was a comment made by one little kid to another after receiving his box of books: 'Let's go read a book together.' That's what this evening was all about. Getting kids excited about reading."

Walloon Lake restitution:

compensation for criminal or civil?

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

NEWS-REVIEW FILE PHOTO

Some Walloon Laka Water System users aren't happy with the amount of restitution they received in the settlement of a criminal case. However, Charlevoix County prosecutor Allen Telgenhof said the citizens have not waived their rights to file a civil suit against Dennis Hasa, current owner of the system.

WALLOON LAKE — A group of three Walloon Lake residents gathered at Junction Inn aren't happy with the amount they received in an agreement that Walloon Lake Water System Inc. owner Dennis Hass pay restitution, or how the number was determined.

Hass paid $7,500 in restitution in exchange for dismissing a criminal complaint against him that included five felony counts: three counts of extortion and two counts of "real property — encumbering without lawful cause."

Judy and Al Reeves and Lena Carlile questioned how the $7,500 restitution amount was determined because their claim forms were due Nov. 1, after the restitution agreement was signed on Sept. 10.

"It seems like (Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Allen Telgenhof) was putting the cart before the horse," said Carlile.

But how the amount was determined and how the money was distributed to users of the water system was determined by whether their claims were part of the criminal complaint against Hass, or whether their claims were civil in nature.

Telgenhof said, even if the case had gone to trial and had been successful, only those listed on the criminal complaint — six residents who were alleged victims of the criminal complaints — would be subject to restitution. And the restitution may not have added up to the $7,500 Telgenhof negotiated, likely accumulating to about $5,000.

"I wanted to be able to recover some money for some of the people who weren't victims in the criminal case, but still felt they had been wronged by Mr. Hass," said Telgenhof. "... That's where I was trying to strike a balance between worrying about the people who were technically considered the victims, then all the people involved with the water system."

Telgenhof noted that 21 users filed a claim form, and that while Hass' business practices may not have been unfair, he was not criminally charged with some of those practices. The six victims in the criminal complaint were allegedly subject to threats of injury to their person or property unless they paid a fee to Hass, or Hass was alleged to have placed a lien against their properties unless they paid a water bill owed by prior occupants of the property.

"For example, one person had to pay a bill for the prior owner — it wasn't even his bill. That was one of the extortion counts, so I wanted to make sure that victim got 100 percent of his money back," said Telgenhof.

One of the victims listed in the criminal suit was Kyle Lieberman, who no longer uses the Walloon Lake Water System.

"I understand that he (Telgenhof) can only prosecute as far as the criminal law allows, and in the end I am satisfied with the amount I received from the settlement," said Lieberman. "I don't have a strong opinion on the future of the water system since I am no longer a user, but I understand why others would be concerned about continuing to do business with Hass."

The users of the Walloon Lake Water System recently completed a successful petition that advises Walloon village council they would like to buy the water system. Hass is looking for an offer of $1.3 million.

Hass was never convicted of the crimes because he agreed to pay the $7,500 restitution to the victims in exchange for dismissal of the charges. Telgenhof said deciding the amount prior to receiving the claims is similar to a class action lawsuit in which attorneys negotiate settlement amounts, after which plaintiffs submit claims.

That's the rub for people who feel they were affected by the way Hass ran his business. Carlile is one of them.

She filled out a complaint form that included $10,000 in restitution based on an incident in which she had to repair damage to a water main.

"Hass came to my house — I was in the process of building a house and I phoned him to turn the water off. He turned the water off at the main across the street, part of his water system," said Carlile.

Carlile said Hass broke the main when he was trying to turn the water off.

"I had to get an excavator and plumber," said Carlile. "He charged me for what he had done."

Carlile received $326.80 in restitution from Hass' agreement.

Al and Judy Reeves are owners of the Junction Inn in Walloon. They have two hookups, but only use one — and say they are charged for both. But if they use more than the monthly allotted 6,500 gallons of water per hook-up, they are charged for the overage.

They received $318 from the agreement.

"It sounds like the case is closed and what we got is what we're getting," said Judy Reeves.

But Telgenhof said the 204 users of the Walloon Lake Water System have not waived their rights, and can file civil action against Hass — including the Reeves and Carlile.

— Otsego County Child Welfare Alliance, Gaylord: $1,300 for car seats, lice kits and home health kits that are provided to families in need.

Since 1999, more than $2.3 million in grants have been awarded to charitable and community organizations throughout Great Lakes Energy's 26-county service area, which stretches along the western side of Michigan.

"Through the People Fund, Great Lakes Energy members can do the most good for a very small amount of money," says president/CEO Steve Boeckman. "When members round-up their bill to the nearest dollar, all of the money goes back to the local communities."

Great Lakes Energy members can enroll in the People Fund by calling (888) 485-2537 or visiting www.gtlakes.com.

Nonprofit organizations in the Great Lakes Energy service area can apply for a grant through the People Fund by calling Great Lakes Energy, (888) 485-2537, ext. 1313. The next grant application deadline is Feb. 1.

Annual merchant open house set for Saturday

It's the season for the holiday festivities to begin. On Saturday, Dec. 7, merchants will be armed with entertainment, samples, refreshments, special sales, raffles and more during the annual Charlevoix Merchant Open House.

Shoppers can go into the season well prepared by taking advantage of the special event: it's the perfect place for inspiration and acquisition of all your holiday needs from local businesses.

In addition to the great sales, Santa will arrive downtown at noon to spread some holiday cheer for the children. Santa will be downtown from noon-1 p.m., courtesy of the Charlevoix Township Fire Department.

After Santa departs, children are invited to watch a free full-length holiday movie at Charlevoix Cinema, sponsored by Charlevoix State Bank and Charlevoix Cinema III. This year's free movie is "The Polar Express," a motion capture computer-animated fantasy film based on the children's book by Chris Van Allsburg. For entry, please bring a canned-good to benefit the Charlevoix Food Pantry. While children enjoy the movie, parents are able to relax, sample and shop without interruption.

Also on tap is Charlevoix's 2013 Hot Cocoa Contest. Area restaurants offer tasty samples and participants vote on their favorite hot-cocoa. Cocoa stations will be set up at participating downtown stores. Taste-testers should look for "Cocoa Trail" posters in the store-front windows to stop in, sample and vote for their favorite cocoa creation.

The 2013 Cocoa Trail includes:

— Halfway To The Top to sample cocoa by the Edgewater Bistro

— Charlevoix Harbor Wear for cocoa by Shanahan's Prime

Edgewater Bistro won last year's hot cocoa contest with this white hot cocoa.

— The Man Cave for cocoa by Pigs Eatin' Ribs.

— Round Lake Book Store for cocoa by Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant.

— Elements for cocoa by The Landing's Restaurant

— Scovie's Gourmet for their own cocoa recipe

Voting boxes will be available at each of the in-store cocoa stations, so organizers encourage participants to sample them all and vote for their favorite.

The Charlevoix Merchant Open House also is an opportunity to take advantage of the new shop local holiday promotion sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. The chamber will be giving away a $500 chamber check gift certificate to a lucky shopper. Those who wish to be included should save their receipts from purchases made at Charlevoix stores. For every $100 in receipts turned into the chamber, shoppers will be entered to win $500. Organizers allow shoppers to add up smaller receipts to total $100, and participants may turn in as many as they like to increase winning chances. Purchases must be made between Nov. 15-Dec. 23.

For additional information or a complete list of participating stores and associated activities, visit www.charlevoix.org online or call (231) 547-2101.

GRANTS

city of Charlevoix

— $4,688 to Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, for a water quality and economic health research project

Also included in this grant cycle, were grants totaling $25,388 awarded to East Jordan Public Schools, and another $21,923 in awards from the Youth Fund to various local nonprofit organizations providing services and programs to benefit Charlevoix County youth.

The grants represent distributions from a wide range of donor advised, field of interest and unrestricted community foundation funds. "The endowed funds provide a healthy base from which the grant dollars initiate, and our donor advised funds finish the grantmaking work. All in all, many generous donors partner together to meet a vast array of community needs. Once again, our donors have responded to leverage the dollars that work so well through the community foundation," said Maureen Radke, program officer.

A charitable organization dedicated to improving and enriching life in the area, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation accepts gifts from individuals, families, businesses, and civic groups and manages them as permanent endowments. Every year, a portion of the investment income is used to support programs in education, the environment, the arts, human services, health and wellness, youth activities, community development, and various civic projects. The principal of the endowment continues to grow, providing perpetual charitable capital to benefit Charlevoix County's residents and nonprofit organizations.

Since it was founded in 1992, the foundation's net assets have grown to more than $27 million, and grants and scholarships totaling more than $13.7 million have been distributed for the common good. The foundation welcomes inquiries and grant requests. The next deadline for submitting a grant request is March 1. For more information about grantmaking opportunities, or the community foundation, call (231) 536-2440, or visit the foundation's website at www.c3f.org online.

But, he said, if the county owned the building, the building couldn't be insured through the road commission's policy.

Some commissioners were concerned that the proposal would slow the building of the Beaver Island facility.

"We can negotiate down the road what the right thing is to do. Let's get the building under way," said commissioner Rich Gillespie.

Commissioner Ron Reinhardt serves as the board's liaison to the road commission.

"In the end, it comes out better if you're self-insured, so that's basically the only reason I know of that they would want partial ownership," he said. "Taking care of the sheriff and making sure that when the deputy opens the door, he's plowed out and it's taken care of and the heat's on and they have the mail they need. To me, I think that's a good move."

Commissioner Chris Christensen voiced concern over the estimated costs, including the $6,000 per year in rent, which equates to about $500 per month.

"If you loaned them $750,000 at one percent interest and amortize that over 40 years, less the bills, that would be $706 a month," he said. "They're at $500 a month now."

He also questioned the cost estimate of utilities, which may be lower some months than others, allowing the road commission to save the difference between what it estimated to the county the monthly utilities would cost and what they actually cost.

"Any time we save money, we put it back in service," said Ogden.

"The county is getting their money back in 20 years," said Howard Haselschwardt, engineer with Northwest Design Group. "If you want me to re-run the numbers, I can do that anywhere, any time."

Haselschwardt ran an economic analysis for the road commission that showed, in 20 years, that the road commission would pay back half the amount of the $1.5 million building.

The county provided a counter-offer, with commissioners George Lasater, Larry Sullivan, Gillespie and Christensen supporting a deal that would give half ownership to the road commission building after 40 years rather than the road commission's proposed 20. Commissioners Reinhardt and Joel Evans supported giving the road commission half ownership after 20 years.

The board of commissioners also approved a two percent raise for Charlevoix County employees. Reinhardt, Evans, Sullivan, Lasater and Christensen supported the raise and Gillespie voted against it.

The raise request came because Charlevoix County employees will begin paying 20 percent of their health insurance starting in January.

COUNT

summer versus 454 in 1998.

The association and its volunteers gather the boat count information in the same way each year. On the first Saturday of August, volunteers with the association check the perimeter of the lake — either by foot or by boat, and count the number of boats they see moured, at docks, in marinas, on trailers, on shore, moving in the water or at boat launches.

"In the example of a marina, the volunteers go on shore and walk the docks of the marina, counting the boats in the slips," said Witting. "We'll go on shore and count the boats in somebody's front yard or backyard — any boats around there whether they're in the water or not."

The count take place early in the day — the counters begin at 7:30 and end by about 11 a.m. — in order to begin counting boats before they begin moving for the day.

"That's not to say we count a boat out on the water at 8 o'clock and it runs down to another section unbeknownst to us," said Witting. "It's far from perfect, but because we're doing it the same way every year, we think things pretty much balance out."

The total amount of watercraft has increased from 4,172 in 1998 to 5,351 in 2013.

Dan Myers, water resource specialist with Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council in Petoskey, says the researchers don't use the information in the water quality testing he and monitoring and research coordinator Kevin Cronk compile for specific research yet. But the information is included in the Tip of the Mitt's Lake Charlevoix Watershed Management Plan.

The management plan is aimed at helping Lake Charlevoix townships and the county protect water quality.

"(The boats) are listed as a non-point source of pollution," said Myers.

According to the management plan, boating can cause water quality problems by discharging hydrocarbons, nutrients and other pollutants. Big engines can wash out bottom sediments, releasing nutrients and toxins.

"Large wakes can cause accelerated shoreline erosion, especially in the South Arm or protected coves or bays," said the management plan, which also notes boats' ability to transport invasive and exotic aquatic invasive species.

Even so, Witting doesn't think Lake Charlevoix is overcrowded.

"Because of the expanse of the lake, the water area of the lake, we don't think we're even close to having too many boats use the lake," said Witting. "Even on the Fourth of July, it doesn't seem to be overcrowded by any means."

retired teacher Diane Priess. Teaching young children has always been a passion for this longtime former Charlevoix Elementary kindergarten teacher.

"Volunteering for one morning a week at school is fun and something that I look forward to. I help the kindergarten children in Mrs. (Jessa) VanGuilder's room with reading and writing skills, as well as with art and cooking projects," Priess said. "I really appreciated all the volunteers who worked in my classroom over the years I can't stress how much my students gained from the extra one-to-one and small group contact provided by parents, retirees and community members."

Tom Rex is enthusiastic about his volunteerism in the mentoring program. A retired businessman from Detroit and Chicago, Rex is an invaluable resource for second-grade teacher Nicole Sterrett. He visits Sterrett's classroom four or five afternoons a week, sharing his time and love of children while helping them with their reading skills. "Sometimes I just walk around the building with them, pointing out things they may never have noticed (for awareness and identification purposes). We make a game of it. Then I have them show me their artwork so I can praise them for their efforts," he said.

Rex is not a newcomer to volunteerism. While working in both Detroit and Chicago, he spent evening hours with teens in a program called Midnight Golf. The program got troubled kids ages 15 to 22 off the streets and into a safe place where they could be fed, be taught simple life skills and be given golf lessons.

"I think the program awarded over 200 scholarships to deserving participants during the time I was part of the program," he said. After moving to the area in 2008, Rex noticed that the Junior Golf Program was running successfully with many helpers, and sought another outlet. His quest led him to Charlevoix Elementary School.

This is the third year that retired sixth-grade teacher Kathy Gowell volunteered to mentor reading on an entirely different level than during her teaching career. She is working once a week with kindergarten teacher Stephanie Carey reading stories in a small group and also tutoring one-on-one.

"I am excited because they seem to enjoy reading so much when I am with them. I see them sparkle," Gowell said.

She is constantly thinking about what the children need and what she can do to facilitate the process. "It really opened my eyes to work with students who have not had the opportunity to have had books being read to them by an adult," she said.

Perspective volunteers are welcomed to contact Doug Dreath at Charlevoix Elementary School at (231) 547-3215. Mentors are welcome to volunteer on any grade level, but are needed especially in grades four, five and six, in which many students can use remedial help on assignments and reading.

As Diane Priess put it, "If you love children, please consider being a volunteer at the school."

It was a season to remember for Madeline Boss.

As a result, the junior outside hitter Boss earned Michigan Interscholastic Volleyball Coaches Association All-State second-team Class C honors, after leading her Rayder team to a second straight district finals appearance.

Boss recorded 717 kills on the season, including 63 in the last three post season matches alone.

Boss also had 302 digs, 75 aces and was 94 percent on serve receive on the year.

"I am so proud of Madeline and her volleyball achievements," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "She is a really good person and deserves this recognition."

"Maddie amazes me on the court sometimes. She can play in the moment and can make the big plays when needed and everyone can see that about her. She strives to be one of the best," Randall added.

Boss had a knack for coming up big when it mattered most for the Rayders, saving her best appearances for tournaments and post season matches, averaging 20 kills a match in conference and post season contests.

According to Randall, the defensive part of the game has been a focus of Boss as well.

"I really think she has gained a new love and respect for the defensive game of volleyball and I enjoy her challenging herself in that part of the game too," she said. "She wants to be the full package, and I applaud her drive and hard work to accomplish just that."

Last season, Boss earned Class C All-State third-team honors as a sophomore.

Rayder girls' basketball team opens season Saturday

BY DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

A focus to get better in the off season for the Charlevoix girls' basketball team has transitioned to what looks to be an improved and dedicated team for head coach Liz Shaw.

The Rayders will need to replace four key seniors, but have a group willing and able to do so.

"The girls are working hard and we keep improving every day in practice and really jelling as a team, it's a great start so far," Shaw said. "We had a lot of growth over the summer as a team and individuals. I think the girls are trying to fill the void."

The Rayders return junior honorable mention All-Conference selection Madeline Boss, who proved to be a do everything player for Charlevoix as a sophomore.

Senior Gabby Gray, along with junior Courtney Putman and sophomore Kelsey Engstrom will also be key contributors for Shaw.

"Kelsey being pulled up as a sophomore last season and getting that experience, she's a different player this year and it's pretty exciting to see her growth over the course of a year," Shaw said.

Overall, Shaw has liked the hard work of everyone so far this season.

"I think all the girls have stepped up their game. Every player has really improved and have a year playing with each other," she said. "I think everyone is working toward a common goal and working hard and making each other better in practice."

Juniors Olivia Storm and Leah Davis are also expected to compete for playing time for the Rayders, who will open the season on Saturday, Dec. 7 at Kalkaska. The Rayders first home game will come against Gaylord on Tuesday, Dec. 10.

"We definitely are striving to be in the top and the girls are working and you can see their commitment in practice and their hard work," Shaw said. "I'm excited, I think the girls are excited and we have a positive atmosphere, so a lot of great things can happen in that kind of environment."

First week of firearm season dampened by rainy weather

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

FILE PHOTO
These Michigan Department of Natural Resources employees work a deer check station on a prior year's opening day of firearms season.

Opening day for Michigan's firearm season was beautiful: clear, sunny and warm.

Then, a three-day storm moved in beginning that Saturday evening, dumping more than two inches of rain before the system finished.

While son and warmth may be preferable over rain and wind, both Department of Natural Resources deer program biologist Ashley Autenrieth and Les Hardy, who oversees the Boyne Co-Op True Value's Buck Pole Contest, said neither conditions made for good hunting.

"The numbers for Charlevoix and Emmet counties do appear to be a bit lower at this time this year than we were at last year," said Autenrieth.

Charlevoix County reported 44 bucks and does taken as of the first week of firearm season, 22 of which were bucks, 17 does and five fawns.

Autenrieth and Hardy both suspected weather was a player in the numbers, though the region's new antler point restrictions — in which no bucks with fewer than three points on one side can be killed — could have played a part in keeping buck number downs.

"Deer aren't moving as much when it's raining. It's harder to have good visuals on things," said Autenrieth.

Too, she pointed out that in warm weather, hunters have to get their killed deer refrigerated. Typically, a hunter would be able to hang his or her deer for days in cold weather.

"Warm weather doesn't make for those ideal hanging conditions — especially those camp conditions," said Autenrieth.

Hardy said just as many people registered in advance for the third annual buck pole competition as previous years, even if fewer bucks came in than usual. About 80 people signed up for the buck pole and submitted 11 bucks. Last year, there were 27.

"I think the weather had something to do with it, definitely," said Hardy. "Some of it was because they changed the rulings so that the deer had to have at least three points on one side, but it wasn't terrible because I don't get very many smaller deer over here. It's mostly the bigger ones."

Even so, people visited the buck pole to celebrate.

"It was a really good here. There were lots of people, they ate lots of food and we had good prizes for them," said Hardy.

Hardy said 25 percent of the money from the $20 registration fees will purchase about $1,000 of Christmas presents, which will be donated to and distributed through the Boyne Valley Food Pantry.

Emmet County reported lower numbers than Charlevoix County: 19 deer compared to 96 in 2012.

But the decline can largely be traced to the removal of the deer check station at Petoskey State Park.

"They're really having to go to Gaylord to have their deer checked," said Autenrieth. "That's why we're thinking the numbers have dropped so much."

The check station was removed from Petoskey State Park because bovine tuberculosis is no longer a concern in the area. The Petoskey deer check station was instated in the state park after two cow farms tested positive for bovine tuberculosis in the Emmet County.

"Basically that entire area is totally tuberculosis free," said Autenrieth. "We didn't need the check station anymore."

Autenrieth said the successful hunters who talked to the DNR were upbeat — though probably upbeat because they had already gotten their deer.

"We did hear from a couple that they did have to pass, but at the same time, they were able to harvest one that did meet the qualification," she said. "Most were pretty upbeat for next year. It may not be great this year, but we do think it will be much better next year."

Boyne Co-Op, Boyne City

The buck pole at the Boyne Co-Op True Value took in 11 deer from the 78 hunters that had registered. Five dollars from each registration will go to a children's Christmas fund to buy presents for less-fortunate local kids.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS AND ELECTORS OF THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX AND TO USERS OF THE CITY'S SEWER SYSTEM OF INTENT TO ISSUE REVENUE BONDS AND THE RIGHT OF REFERENDUM RELATING THERETO

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the City Council of the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, intends to issue and sell revenue bonds pursuant to Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended, in one or more series in a total amount not to exceed Twelve Million Dollars ($12,000,000), for the purpose of paying all or part of the cost to acquire, construct, furnish and equip improvements to the City's Sewage Disposal System (the "System"), including improvements to the Charlevoix Wastewater Treatment Plant, together with all related appurtenances and attachments.

SOURCE OF PAYMENT OF REVENUE BONDS

THE PRINCIPAL OF AND INTEREST ON THE REVENUE BONDS SHALL BE PAYABLE from the revenues received by the City from the operations of the Water and Sewer system except as provided below in the case of bonds sold to the Michigan Finance Authority in connection with the State of Michigan's State Revolving Fund program. The revenues will consist of rates and charges billed to the users of the system, a schedule of which is presently on file in the office of the City Clerk. The rates and charges may from time to time be revised to provide sufficient revenues to provide for the expenses of operating and maintaining the system, to pay the principal of and interest on the bonds and to pay other obligations of the system.

BOND DETAILS

THE REVENUE BONDS will be payable in annual installments not to exceed twenty (20) in number and will bear interest at the rate or rates to be determined at public or private sale but in no event to exceed such rates as may be permitted by law on the unpaid balance from time to time remaining outstanding on said bonds.

ADDITIONAL SOURCES OF PAYMENTS FOR BONDS SOLD TO MICHIGAN FINANCE AUTHORITY

IN THE EVENT THAT THE REVENUE BONDS ARE SOLD TO THE MICHIGAN FINANCE AUTHORITY, THE CITY MAY PLEDGE FOR THE PAYMENT OF THE BONDS MONEY RECEIVED OR TO BE RECEIVED BY THE CITY DERIVED FROM IMPOSITION OF TAXES BY THE STATE AND RETURNED OR TO BE RETURNED TO THE CITY AS PROVIDED BY LAW, except for money the use of which is prohibited for such purposes by the State Constitution. The City may enter into an agreement providing for the payment of taxes, which taxes are collected by the State and returned to the City as provided by law, to the Michigan Finance Authority or a trustee, and such funds may be pledged for the payment of the revenue bonds.

IN THE EVENT THAT THE REVENUE BONDS ARE SOLD TO THE MICHIGAN FINANCE AUTHORITY, THE CITY MAY PLEDGE ITS LIMITED TAX FULL FAITH AND CREDIT AS SECURITY FOR THE REVENUE BONDS, IN WHICH EVENT DEBT SERVICE ON THE BONDS SHALL BE PAYABLE EITHER FROM REVENUES OF THE SYSTEM OR FROM AD VALOREM TAXES THAT MAY BE LEVIED ON ALL TAXABLE PROPERTY IN THE CITY, SUBJECT HOWEVER, TO CONSTITUTIONAL, STATUTORY AND CHARTER TAX RATE LIMITATIONS.

RIGHT OF REFERENDUM

THE REVENUE BONDS WILL BE ISSUED WITHOUT A VOTE OF THE ELECTORS UNLESS A PETITION REQUESTING SUCH A VOTE SIGNED BY NOT LESS THAN 10% OF THE REGISTERED ELECTORS OF THE CITY IS FILED WITH THE CITY CLERK WITHIN FORTY-FIVE (45) DAYS AFTER PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE. IF SUCH PETITION IS FILED, THE BONDS MAY NOT BE ISSUED WITHOUT AN APPROVING VOTE OF A MAJORITY OF THE QUALIFIED ELECTORS OF THE CITY VOTING THEREON.

THIS NOTICE is given pursuant to the requirements of Section 33, Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended.

Last call for toys

SHERI MCWHIRTER O'DONNELL
Courier editor

Donated toys for children from less privileged families will begin to be gathered at the distribution point this weekend, but there still is time to both make donations to the annual Toys for Tots campaign or sign up for help, if needed.

"We can always use more donations," said Ross Bolt, campaign coordinator for Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan counties. "We don't have that many (donated toys) counted yet, though we still have some pick ups to do."

Bolt said the need seems greater this year, as an ever-increasing financial drain on local pocketbooks lingers with a continued sluggish economy.

Even though, some Charlevoix businesses managed to collect impressive piles of toys for the effort, including Charlevoix Area Hospital, Fox Motors and the chiropractic office of Kristen Ricks McClure.

"We have extremely generous patients," Ricks McClure said.

The Charlevoix chiropractor said she offered free specials for new and current patients, all in exchange for a toy donation for the cause.

"I love Christmas, honestly. It is my favorite time of year and I cannot imagine a child without a toy on Christmas," Ricks McClure said.

Bolt said the locally donated toys will be delivered to Charlevoix's Bethany Lutheran Church on Sunday, Dec. 15. Throughout the week, volunteers

Boyne City-Charlevoix trail project gets $300,000 grant from state

FILE PHOTO

The second phase of the Boyne City-Charlevoix non-motorized recreational trail will follow along the highway to connect to the Little Traverse Wheelway in Charlevoix Township.

The Boyne City-Charlevoix non-motorized recreational trail project gained hundreds of thousands of dollars this week.

Michigan's Natural Resources Trust Fund board of trustees on Monday recommended 76 recreation development projects and land acquisitions totaling nearly $27.7 million for 2014. The proposals will be reviewed by legislators before going to Gov. Rick Snyder for approval.

Among the millions in state grants, $300,000 is expected to come to Charlevoix County for the trail project along the eastern side of Lake Charlevoix.

"It's great news," said Ross Maxwell, county parks and recreation director. "This is for phase two of the trail and it connects to the Little Traverse Wheelway in Charlevoix Township at Waller Road."

The money from this latest state grant to pay for clearing, earthwork, drainage improvements, segmented retaining walls, timber boardwalks, asphalt path, signage, landscaping and slope restoration — is part of the total $1.15 million for the second phase of the 10-foot-wide trail that stretches for 3.2 miles. The first, $954,500 phase connects Boyne City to Young State Park and beyond to the Bay Township line. Collectively, that's about 6.3 miles of non-motorized recreational trail for about $2.1 million, split among opposite ends of the full project.

"All funding has been committed for phases one and two," Maxwell said.

Construction on the first phase is set to begin in the spring, said Pat Harmon, manager of the Charlevoix County Road Commission.

Seasonal homeless shelter set to open soon

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

If everything goes according to plans, by mid-January homeless men in the Charlevoix area will have a warm, dry, safe place to spend the night during the coldest months of the year.

On Monday the Charlevoix Planning Commission cleared any government red tape out of the way when it found that the proposed seasonal nightly shelter by the Safe Haven Ministry based at the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church falls within a customary use of a church.

City planning director Mike Spencer noted that although the city's zoning ordinance does not specifically address shelters, the R-1 district in which the church property at 101 Oak St. is located does allow for churches and customary church uses.

The shelter is an outgrowth of the Safe Haven group that has been serving breakfasts for community members in need on Tuesdays and Fridays since May of 2012.

Jan Boss, director of spiritual formation and one of the founders of the Safe Haven group said tentative plans call for the shelter to operate from 8 10 p.m.-8 a.m. seven days per week from Nov. 15 to March 15.

Boss said the group will use the church's community room to house up to 10 male guests.

"Realistically, it would be more like a maximum of seven, but if there is a need we can make room for up to 10," Boss said.

Boss said guests will receive a plastic tub for personal effects, a mat to sleep on, a blanket and some basic toiletries.

Rules submitted to the planning commission indicate the shelter's doors will be locked from 10 p.m.-6 a.m. During that time, (except for outside supervised smoking breaks) if a guest leaves during that time he will not be allowed to re-enter that night.

The shelter will be staffed by at least two male volunteers each night.

Boss said organizers are hoping to open the shelter on Jan. 15.

Between now and then, she said, the biggest hurdle the group has to clear is recruiting enough volunteers to staff the shelter on a nightly basis. Group leaders figure they need about 28 men on the roster to make it workable.

Traveling Smithsonian exhibit coming to Charlevoix for more than a month

SHERI MCWHIRTER O'DONNELL
Courier editor

The Charlevoix Public Library received a special Michigan Humanities Council grant to host the Smithsonian's Museum on Main Street: Journey Stories exhibit.

The library at 220 W. Clinton St. will host the special exhibit from Feb. 3 through March 21, 2014.

"We are excited to provide this high quality exhibit to Northern Michigan," said Val Meyerson, library director. "It's certainly something we don't see very often."

Journey Stories tells the tale of how our ancestors came to America and the variety of different types of transportation they used. History is filled with stories of people leaving behind everything to reach a new life in another state, or across an ocean. The 700-square-foot exhibit includes six stand-alone kiosks all with audio, video and interactive pieces. There also will be an oral history piece in which 90-second personal stories can be recorded and then uploaded to the Smithsonian's Stories on Main Street website to be listened to by future generations.

It's an exhibit from which viewers can expect to come away with a changed perspective, Meyerson said.

"I think they will come away with a better understanding of all the things that impacted why people traveled and where they settled," she said.

This covers the gamut from European arrival in North American through westward expansion, the Trail of Tears, railroad construction and much more.

"It comes right up to transportation with automobiles into the 1960s and '70s," Meyerson said.

The library director said the Charlevoix Public Library strives to meet its mission by providing educational resources for the community through unique opportunities such as this traveling Smithsonian exhibit.

In partnership with the library, the Charlevoix Historical Society created its own local journey story exhibit titled Journeying to Charlevoix: Why they Came and How they Traveled. The local exhibit will be on display at the Charlevoix Railroad Depot and remain open for visitors each Saturday during the exhibit time frame.

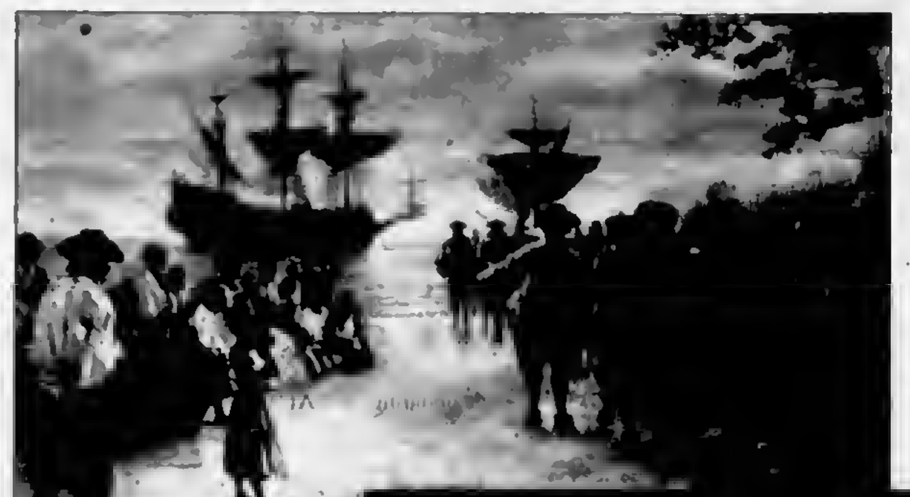
"We are very much looking forward to this event in partnership with the library which will allow us to showcase the Railroad Depot and many local historic photos and artifacts to hundreds of students from the area," said Denise Fate, historical society president.

The Charlevoix Historical Society has been active since the late 1800s. Its main mission is to protect and preserve the iconic structures of Charlevoix, such as the South Pier Lighthouse, the Harsha House and Museum, and the Railroad Depot. The society also provides community enrichment with programs and events to celebrate Charlevoix's storied history. Major milestones of the organization include restoration of the Charlevoix South Pier Lighthouse and Railroad Depot and digitization and safeguarding of more than 10,000 historic photos.

Exhibit guides will be available from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. at both the library and the depot every Saturday of the exhibit. Guides will also be available for special group bookings. To book a group tour, call (231) 237-7360.

For more details about the Journey Stories exhibit, visit www.museumonmainstreet.org/journeystories/ online.

Additionally, Journey Stories is possible through support by the Michigan Humanities Council. Journey Stories is part of Museum on Main Street, a collaboration between the Smithsonian Institution and State Humanities Councils nationwide. Funding for Museum on Main Street is provided by the U.S. government.



The coming Smithsonian exhibit will feature stories about how ancestors came to America and how subsequent generations traveled around the country.

Teen musicians host benefit concert for fellow student

SHERI MCWHIRTER O'DONNELL
Courier editor

A benefit concert for a local seventh-grade student will be hosted this weekend by her fellow students.

Senior Emily Chapdelaine, 17, is the leader of the Charlevoix High School's music club. She led the club's efforts to plan and present a benefit concert in honor of seventh-grader Kiara Darling, 12, who is undergoing treatment for bone cancer that includes a planned hospital stay during the Christmas holiday.

"We heard about Kiara and her story about a month ago and that's when we knew we had to do this as a benefit for her. And just about a week ago I finally got to talk with her for the first time," Emily said. "She is the sweetest and most positive person I've ever met. She's going through so much but not only does she keep a positive attitude, she is still always putting others first in her life. She is truly an inspiration and I just hope we can make her proud with our show."

The benefit concert will begin at 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 14, at Charlevoix High School Auditorium. Suggested donation is $5, though any amount will be accepted.

Kiara Darling

Cherie Helm, the school principal's secretary, confirmed the school conducted several small benefit events for Kiara and her family, not only to help with medical bills but also the travel expenses for her regular treatments in Ann Arbor. This event, though, is entirely produced by the school's music club.

"The kids have pulled it together quickly — the music club. Emily Chapdelaine is spearheading this and doing a great job. I really commend her," Helm said.

Emily said the music club wanted to host a benefit concert and this is the perfect cause.

"We started planning the concert a few months ago knowing we wanted it to be a benefit of some sort. Our music club isn't funded by the school, and doesn't really need funds since we can mostly provide for ourselves. So since we love to perform, why not do what we love and be able to do something to help someone or some cause?" she said.

Call the school at (231) 547-3222 for questions about the event, parking or directions.

Charlevoix County receives 9-1-1 upgrading update

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners heard an update from representatives Charlevoix-Cheboygan-Emmet County Central Dispatch Authority.

The authority was tasked in 2003 to upgrade the 9-1-1 services across the three county area. The 9-1-1 network hadn't been updated since 1996. Then, a mandate from the Federal Communications Commission required all public safety land mobile radio systems to switch to "narrowbanding" — a 12.5 kHz technology rather than the previous 25 kHz technology.

According to the authority, this resulted in a 20 percent reduction in coverage for very high and ultra high frequency radio users.

"Everybody in the state is having a lot of the same coverage issues we have," said Bob Bradley, director of the Charlevoix-Cheboygan-Emmet County Central Dispatch Authority. "We're putting together a good plan for what we can do somewhat quickly with existing infrastructure."

Currently, the authority considers coverage in the city of Charlevoix, the town of Norwood and the U.S. 131 corridor inadequate. It also calls coverage in Boyne City "spotty."

Bradley said the authority is in talks with St. Marys Cement to install towers on silos at the plant, which could help coverage in the city of Charlevoix.

"In populations centers like Charlevoix, Boyne City or East Jordan, the cities and villages were constructed at water level. That goes back the last couple hundred years, when land was settled here. The water allowed access to trade routes," said Bradley. "But water is always at the lowest point. We're trying to get from a tower in one valley to a tower in another valley."

In addition to system upgrades, the three-county network hopes to eventually own its own system of towers. It currently uses 17 towers across the three counties, and rents space on some of those towers rather than owning them outright. To help coverage in Charlevoix County, the authority hopes to add a tower on Krause Road and develop sites in Marion Township and Boyne City.

The authority received a $300,000 grant from the Federal COPS program in phone upgrades in October 2012 and a $788,600 grant for updating radio communications equipment from the Federal Emergency Management Agency in February 2012.

Commissioner Chris Christensen was concerned with the cost of the continual upgrades.

"I don't think anyone's questioning where the money goes, it's more, where does it end?" asked Christensen.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider pointed out the federal mandate to switch to narrowband radio.

"What we struggle with, Chris, in this respect, is we had a federally-mandated act telling us we had to go to narrowband," Schneider said. "As with any other new system, CCE is trying to make the system work. To CCE's credit, they were thrown in the pot and they're trying to make it work. It's a constant effort and it'll never change."

At the meeting, the only new business acted upon was to cancel the Wednesday, Dec. 25, meeting. The commissioners will next meet Wednesday, Jan. 8.

Few changes planned for DDA

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority has only a few minor changes planned for its programming for next year.

At its rescheduled regular monthly meeting Monday, the authority's board approved its 2014-15 operating budget. The budget will now go to the city council for its consideration when it considers all of the city's other budgets for the coming fiscal year in early 2014.

One seemingly big milestone, pay off the bond on the renovation work done on Bridge Park 20 years ago, changes the numbers in the budget significantly, but won't have any net effect on the authority's operation.

That's because although the $294,975 Bridge Park payment goes away, so does the property tax capture that paid for it. City treasurer Rick Brandi explained that the Bridge Park project happened just as Proposal A passed. Under Proposal A, authorities such as the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority were no longer allowed to "capture" property tax money from school taxes. However, because the project was already "in the pipeline" when Proposal A passed, the school tax capture was allowed to continue. Now that the project debt is gone, so is the revenue stream.

After removing the Bridge Park debt from the books, the budget calls for the authority to spend $494,700 and take in $510,400.

The biggest line item on the expense side of the budget is the payment for the authority's other remaining large debt — $325,000 on the marina renovation debt.

After that, the largest budget items are $50,000 for salaries and benefits, $27,000 for operational supplies, and $22,000 for marketing and promotions.

One new line item for the coming year is the farmers market. Earlier this year the authority agreed to the market over from the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. The budget projects the market will cost about $28,000, but will bring in about $35,000.

City of Charlevoix Economic Development Director Bethany Pearson said the authority plans to keep all of its current programming

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

December is a month that clips along at break neck speed after getting its jump start pre-Thanksgiving. Then it swirls into the New Year like an Arctic blast.

With gifts in mind it's hard to not overdo when friends start talking about their shopping sprees; but keeping up with others is not important. Studies have shown that couples and families that value how many items they own have less stable marriages and begin to create a need that doesn't satisfy their children. Those individuals who value quality time and fewer gifts have been noted to have better communication skills and happier lives. When children have fewer and more creative toys their imagination kicks in. I am not trying to bah humbug Christmas shopping but continuous commercials and listening to someone inform you where they purchased their most recent deal leaves me a bit sad. Seriously, small children still prefer the large cardboard box something came in rather than the toy. Sledding, swimming, snow forts, hide and seek and board games will create memories of time spent together which in the end is what sustains us.

The gift of your time spent with family and friends is the most precious gift of all. You only begin to realize this as you get older and wiser. It's much more important than the latest gadget and must have splashed across the television screen.

During the holidays some of us feel overwhelmed with time commitments and participation in family, friend and work commitments. It's important to learn to live a balanced life and not blame others for their taking up your time. You have the choice to be a martyr or say, "That just won't work into my schedule, but thank you so much for asking." Time is not only precious but so is your energy. Just as it's important to increase your physical and mental strength, energy is a muscle that needs nurturing, as well. Often times completing one task you set out to do can give you more energy to face another task. Setting aside a block of time if possible without interruption to complete that much-needed project will leave you feeling relieved; then reward yourself by doing something you enjoy. For me it's reading a magazine in the comfort of a recliner with our dog and my husband nearby.

Even though there are 24 spaces in your cupcake tin it doesn't mean you need to take all of them to your next outing, you can leave half behind and freeze for the next bake sale or generously give them to your neighbor. If you are feeling a bit overwhelmed by commitments and your bank statement is siphoning off as quickly as a blood drive donation it may be time to reframe or as I like to call it freeze frame. Holidays can bring added stress to relationships. Sometimes it's just a matter of reframing your thinking to help you feel less stressed. Even though genetics plays a major role in how we respond to something — the fly off the handle-type or take it in stride persona — we can teach ourselves to change how we react. The behavior of learning to step back, take a breath and think for a minute, "Does this really matter five years from now?" Can help you get through the tough spots. Then you can go on to make the best of a bad situation.

We all get upset, feel disappointed and overwhelmed but it's how we handle it that creates a healthy body and builds better/relationships. So this holiday give yourself the gift of time to enjoy family and friends and not let life's hiccups bring you down. And don't forget to limit your spending; your family and your bank account will thank you.

Don't flush your expired pills

Editor:

As a newly-appointed school nurse, I'm careful to monitor the medications I keep on hand. But when I discovered we were storing at least 30 different types of medications that had already expired, I realized I didn't know the proper way to dispose of them. Flushing them down the toilet didn't seem like a good idea.

That's when I called the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, and learned about the Prescription and Over-the-Counter Drug (POD) disposal sites, located throughout this region. POD boxes are open to the public are used to dispose of expired, unwanted or unused prescription and OTC drugs. You can also use them for the disposal of medicated ointments, sunscreen, pet medications, nutritional supplements, vitamins, liquid medications and drops. These potentially harmful substances are then destroyed properly by qualified personnel.

Moreover, the POD boxes help to keep kids and teens safe by offering a way to remove unwanted medications from people's homes, where they might otherwise be abused or accidentally end up in the hands of children. And when these items are thrown in the trash or flushed down the toilet, they can contaminate surface, ground and drinking water.

I would encourage everyone to make use of these POD boxes, like the one here at the Boyne City Hall. They are located across several Northwest Michigan counties, including Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Emmet, and are available to the public whenever the building is open. To see a list of POD boxes in our region, go to www.watershedcouncil.org/ and navigate to the "Pharmaceuticals in Our Waters" tab.

Thanks, public health services

Editor:

During this time of Thanksgiving, one thing I am thankful for is the public health department locating offices in Charlevoix.

I recently needed their services. They are an outstanding group. They are warm, friendly, very professional and very knowledgeable — a terrific group of people.

We are fortunate to have them in this area, and I thank them.

LOOKING BACK…

The Lewis Grand Opera House was built in 1883 beside the channel at the southwest corner of the bridge by Dr. Levi Lewis, Charlevoix's first physician who had arrived in 1869, and served the community for four decades. It was constructed at the insistence of his culturally minded and strong-willed wife Edith who felt the town, so isolated when she first arrived, was, at best, a cultural backwater. The 800-seat theater was managed by members of the whole Lewis family, and offered tearjerker melodramas of the era. Thirty-five cents was the top ticket price. The interior seen here at one time displayed thick maroon velvet curtains and gilded chairs in the boxes, the auditorium a gilt decor. High school graduations were held at the opera house, plus lectures, musical recitals, town meetings, and, with the chairs removed, dances and Charlevoix's first organized basketball game in 1910. After the cinema began to nose out stage presentations, it became a nickelodeon theater. Remenyi, the world's most famous gypsy violinist and a touring partner with pianist/composer Johannes Brahms in Europe, also a friend of Franz Liszt, performed here. In 1923 the opera house was converted into the Hotel Alhambra, which lasted until 1947 when, its waterside foundations weakened after all those years, the old opera house that had hosted so much had to come out to make way for today's bridge. Only the sloping lawn across from the Weathervane remains of those glorious days.

Pounding Hooves 4-H club donates to nonprofit

Members of the Pounding Hooves 4-H Club donated handcrafted toy stick horses to the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan. The stick horses were part of club members' exhibits at the Emmet-Charlevoix County Fair which represent their Achievement Day projects.

After completing their projects, each club member was interviewed about how they created the project and what they learned in the process. The club's leader, Becky Swiger, said they decided to donate this year's projects as a community service. She said a significant aspect of 4-H is helping people in the community and creating a sense of service beyond self.

The stick horses, created from woolen socks, yarn and buttons are being donated to the center's Safe Home to be shared with the children of domestic abuse survivors utilizing Safe Home services. Women's Resource Center Executive Director Jan Mancinelli explained to members of the club that the Safe Home typically provides shelter for more than 100 survivors and their children every year and that some of the donated toys will be given to children at Christmas, others will be given as birthday presents. She emphasized that their generous donation will help bring joy to another child who is experiencing a difficult time in their lives.

The Pounding Hooves 4-H Club is composed of 21 members ranging in age from 5 to 17 years who share a love and appreciation for horses and ponies. Nonprofit 4-H is the largest youth development organization in Michigan, with nearly 200,000 youth between the ages of 5 and 19 years participating. Because Michigan 4-H is part of Michigan State University Extension, the activities kids participate in are all backed by and based on child development research.

Grant supports survivors of domestic abuse

The Oleson Foundation contributed $1,000 to the Safe Home project with the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan. The check represents a match for funds raised during the store's recent Dollar Drive: which will help offset the domestic abuse shelter's annual food and supply costs which exceed $25,000, annually.

The Safe Home is operated 24/7 by the resource center and provided safe refuge to 119 women and children during the past fiscal year, averaging nine individuals per day and more than 10,000 meals provided. The center provides domestic abuse services to survivors at no cost and may be reached at (231) 347-0067. The 24-hour crisis and information line is (231) 347-0082.

The Oleson Foundation, initiated in 1962 by Gerald and Frances Oleson, is designed to continually perform good works in Northwestern Lower Michigan. For more information about the Oleson Foundation, visit www.olesonfoundation.org online.

The Youth Advisory Committee of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation distributed $21,923 in grants to eight local nonprofit agencies to fund programs that benefit young people. Their efforts leveraged additional support from other funds, bringing the grant total to more than $28,000.

Started in 1992, the YAC was organized to engage local high school students in philanthropy, while also giving them important skills in leadership. Sixteen students comprise the group, representing Beaver Island, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Charlevoix, East Jordan and Northwest Academy high schools.

"With YAC I feel like I can make a real change in my community. This is important to me because these programs do so much for youth that it's nice to be able to support them. As a YAC member I have the opportunity to donate my time, talent and treasure," said Erin Yafen Boyle, senior YAC member from Beaver Island School. Boyle also is the president of the YAC executive committee.

During each grant cycle, the YAC conducts formal interviews with the organizations submitting proposals to learn more about the proposed projects.

"My favorite part about being in YAC is definitely seeing the projects we funded really helping people. Without YAC's support, some of these projects may not have even happened," said Jill Solomon of Boyne City High School, a senior YAC member and the secretary of the YAC executive committee. The following agencies received YAC support this spring:

B.A.S.E.S. Teen Center ($2,413) for computerized babies for their teen pregnancy prevention program.

Challenge Mountain of Walloon Hills, Inc. ($4,200) to purchase a Mobility Mat for the ski slope and beach.

Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation ($5,000) for the Fit-4-Life-Kids healthy living program.

Inland Seas Education Association ($3,000) for scholarships for family science sails.

Junior Achievement of Michigan Great Lakes ($2,500) to provide financial and economic literacy programs in grades K-12.

Northern Community Mediation ($1,788) for a laptop and printer for school-based mediation sessions to address truancy.

OBITUARY

Frances H. Pletz, 93

Frances H. Pletz, 93, of Charlevoix, passed away peacefully Dec. 3, 2013, at her home.

Born to the late Harry and Alice Hillier, May 24, 1920, in Chicago, Ill., Fran married Harold Pletz on Jan. 3, 1942. After living on numerous military posts for two years she returned home to East Lansing while her husband was overseas in the European Campaign. Following World War II, they lived in East Lansing until they retired in 1982, and moved to East Jordan. After Harold passed away in 2003, Fran moved to Charlevoix.

Fran graduated with her daughter from Michigan State University in 1981, where they both received a BA in communication arts and science.

In addition to raising a family, Fran worked with her husband at his business in East Lansing and Williamston. She was president of the Williamston Chamber of Commerce and helped the city receive an award for the historical buildings painted in the community. She was vice chair of the Ingham County Republican Party. Fran was executive director of the Michigan Library Association from 1968-1982. She was instrumental with foundation work for the State Library of Michigan and Museum's current location, and served as a board member of the State Library at the pleasure of three governors. She was past president of Zonta International in Lansing.

Upon moving to East Jordan, Fran became one of the founders of the Jordan River Art Council, and was the South Arm Township zoning administrator for eight years. She was a board member of the McCune Arts Center. Fran was an active member of the First Congregational Church — United Church of Christ in Charlevoix.

Fran is survived by five children, Harold (Carol) Pletz of Elk Grove Village, Ill., Steven (Susan) Pletz of Algonquin, Ill., James (Sandra) Pletz of Novi, Frederick (Cheryl) Pletz of Virginia Beach, Va., Alice Pletz-Miller (Michael) of East Jordan; 12 grandchildren; 17 great-grandchildren; sister, Harriett H. Burchill, of Frederick, Md.

Fran was also preceded in death by her brother, William Hillier, and sister, Emily Moke.

A memorial service will be 1 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 14, at the First Congregational Church — United Church of Christ in Charlevoix.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be given to the Charlevoix Public Library, 200 Clinton St., Charlevoix, MI 49720; or to the First Congregational Church — United Church of Christ, 101 State St., Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Ski academy season soon to start

Northern Michigan Ski Academy race training sessions start Wednesday, Jan. 8, at Boyne Mountain in Boyne Falls and Thursday, Jan. 9, at Boyne Highlands in Harbor Springs. Training sessions take place from 6:30-8:30 p.m. Wednesdays at Boyne Mountain and Thursdays at Boyne Highlands. A meeting for parents will take place at both locations during the first sessions.

This year the Northern Michigan Ski Academy is celebrating its 35th anniversary. The academy is a nonprofit organization run by a volunteer board of directors and coaches. The program is designed to teach area youth the fundamentals of ski racing.

Training sessions are planned for nine weeks beginning in January. During the Wednesday and Thursday night sessions, skiers ski in small groups with an academy coach. Skiers practice the fundamentals of ski racing with racers of their own age and capability. Friday nights are open gate nights only at Boyne Mountain and Boyne Highlands with courses set that the skiers can run as they wish. Coaches are available at the top and bottom of the courses to provide feedback to the skiers.

Club races happen 2-4:30 p.m. each Sunday. All of the Sunday club races bring together the Highlands and Mountain skiers for combined racing. Throughout the season, club races are scheduled at Boyne Highlands and Boyne Mountain.

This year two all day races will be at Boyne Highlands. Racers are ranked for participation in the academy racing team that participates in the Wellborn Cup, which brings together skiers from across Northern Michigan. The Wellborn Cup will be on Sunday, March 2, at Boyne Highlands.

For registration forms, pricing and additional information about the Northern Michigan Ski Academy, visit www.nmsazone.org online.

in place while it puts its toe in the water on a few new endeavors.

Pearson said the authority's popular summer concert and movie series in East Park will continue, at a combined cost of about $10,000. The authority will also participate with the chamber and Charlevoix Convention and Visitor's Bureau in the creation of an economic development video series at a cost of $2,000 per entity. The authority also plans $2,000 contribution to support the continuation of the convention and visitor bureau's Pure Michigan advertising campaign, which is headed into its third year and to contribute $1,000 toward the 2014 Charlevoix Bridge Drop New Year's Eve event, and to pay about $4,000 for the design and production of a downtown shop directory kiosk.

Pearson noted that the authority's contractual services budget has dropped from $6,300 to $3,700. That's because after this year's major upgrade to the downtown tree light display the budget for that expense has been reduced to about $1,000 for maintenance. However, $3,500 was added to that budget line for the authority's share of a joint study with the chamber about the feasibility of setting up a wireless Internet service for people to use for free when they are in the downtown.

One item that continues to be absent from the budget is a $30,000 payment promised to the Charlevoix Public Library.

Brandi explained that when the library project took place in 2004 voters passed a debt millage to renovate the former Charlevoix Middle School building into its current facility, the authority made a not-legally-binding promise to pay $30,000 per year to slightly reduce the millage rate taxpayers in the district pay for the library debt. However, tight budgets in recent years have prevented the authority from making the payment, Brandi said.

He said the same budget concerns continue into next fiscal year, especially in light of the fact that the possible elimination of the personal property tax could impact the authority's budget.

The good news, Brandi said, is that his long-term projections, which include upcoming improvement projects in the authority's district such as a townhouse project planned for Pine River Lane, show the financial picture improving in 2015. That means the authority could be on track to make the payment to the library in the 2015-16 fiscal year.

Shop local campaign picks up

SHERI MCWHIRTER O'DONNELL
Courier editor

Charlevoix's 2013 holiday shop local campaign continues and participants are taking advantage of the special offers.

"It is going really well. We have a lot of pledges," said Brooke Gawlinski, receptionist at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

Participants can simply write "I pledge to shop local" on the Facebook pages for sponsoring organizations, the chamber and the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority, and be entered into drawings for weekly prizes from local merchants. Those pages are at www.facebook.com/cvxchamber and www.facebook.com/downtowncharlevox, respectively.

Also, holiday shoppers can save their receipts from local stores — whether downtown or not — and for every $100 spent, be entered into a drawing for $500. There is no limit to the number of receipts that can be submitted to the chamber office at 109 Mason St. downtown.

"We have a whole box full of receipts people are bringing in for the $500," Gawlinski said.

Smaller receipts can be added up to total $100, according to the rules. The campaign began Nov. 15 and continues through Monday, Dec. 23.

Local merchants are noticing their customers are participating in the program.

"They want to make sure they get their receipts to turn in," said Jacq Dipert, owner of The Clothing Company downtown on Bridge Street.

Dipert also said she heard folks talking about the shop local campaign during last weekend's open house downtown, which is a wonderful reinforcement to local merchants' loyal customers.

The idea of the program is to promote spending budgeted Christmas dollars within the immediate community, which helps drive the local economy and create a sense of place among neighbors and area residents.

Have tacos, will travel: Food truck sets up shop

BOYNE CITY — With their new business venture, Drue Wright and Drake Nagel of Boyne City are trucking an eclectic mix of tacos to customers.

The business partners opened truck-based Happy's Taco Shop this fall. They plan to serve customers regularly at Boyne Mountain Resort in Boyne Falls this ski season, and will also offer tacos at local events such as the Charlevoix Bridge Drop on New Year's Eve.

Wright said the idea for the mobile taco shop emerged while he and Nagel were students at Northern Michigan University. Wright studied entrepreneurship, with Nagel

Castle Farms is among the most popular tourist attractions in Charlevoix, as well as a popular wedding and event location.

Castle Farms announces year-long donations

The spirit of giving lives on at Castle Farms throughout the year. In fulfillment of its mission statement that centers on a call to action to be of service to the community, the business made significant donations to area charities during 2013.

Beginning in March 2013 with its "One Sweet Cookie" workshop, monthly seminars hosted by the Castle raised funds to benefit the Manna Food Project. This nonprofit corporation hosts a food bank which distributes to food pantries in Emmet, Charlevoix and Antrim counties. Each month, the Castle opened its doors to the general public for various classes focusing on specific topics. Professional photographers shared how to take the perfect picture; a crafter created treasures from simple household items; a local quilting expert held a hands-on quilting class. A nationally renowned horticulturalist spoke on the topic of eco-friendly gardening, area writers presented a writing workshop, and a marketing seminar was offered to retail merchants. As of Dec. 1, workshop admission fees and donations of canned goods from people attending the seminars resulted in a total of 129 pounds of food and $515 being donated to the Manna Food Project. Monthly workshops will continue in 2014.

Since its beginning in 1918, Castle Farms played a vital role as a community center. That spirit of altruism continues to present day. Seven local nonprofit charities and community organizations — including the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra, Charlevoix Area Garden Club Symposium and Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce — received the benefit of free space at the Castle to host their events. Additionally, 10 local nonprofit charities — including the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, Third Day Fellowship and Outreach, Women's Resource Center and Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation — received discounted room prices. All told, Castle Farms discounts and free rooms to various local charities and nonprofit organizations tallied $34,290. The Castle Gift Shop also participated by donating various items to numerous worthy causes and area organizations, totaling nearly $1,500.

Additionally, Castle Farms employees decided to have fun by getting involved, too. With Mondays officially designated "Blue Jeans Monday," the staff made independent donations in exchange for the privilege of working in comfortable blue jeans. A total of $145 was raised to benefit three separate local charities: $50 for the Charlevoix Humane Society, $35 to the Bergmann Center and $60 to Circle of Strength.

More information about Castle Farms is available at www.castlefarms.com online.

SHELTER

"We want to be able to sustain what we've started," Boss said.

She said the shelter set-up was modeled after the Safe Harbor shelter that has operated in the Traverse City area for many years. Representatives from the Safe Harbor shelter will be on hand on Jan. 9 to assist in a training session for volunteers with the new Charlevoix shelter.

Boss explained that the idea for Safe Haven grew out of a class some people with the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church took a few years ago, and although most of its activities take place at the church, the group's list of volunteers and organizers stretches beyond the church's membership.

"We really believed there was the need for (a shelter) a couple years ago, but we didn't think we could sustain the effort. So, we started with the meals," Boss said.

But through conversations with people who come to the group's twice-weekly breakfasts and conversations with other churches in the community the need for the shelter became even more clear, she said.

"Father Matthew (Wigton, at St. Mary Church) had a couple knocks on the door last year from people looking for help. He gave out some blankets and some food, but that made it clear that there are people looking for places. That pushed us ahead.

She added, "It just breaks my heart. We hear stories of people who sleep in car wash bays to get out of the wind."

Boss said organizers expect it will take some time before they see much use of the shelter.

"You have to earn people's trust," she said. "You've got to stick with it for a while."

Boss said Safe Haven group members had the same experience with the breakfasts they offer.

"We had no one show up for our first meal," she said. "Now we average about 60 people for each meal and we've had as many as 88."

Any men interested in volunteering to help supervise the shelter should contact Boss at (231) 547-9482, ext. 204 for an application.

In the meantime, Boss said, Safe Haven organizers will be visiting with people who live near the church to let them know about the shelter being established at the church and to address any questions or concerns neighbors might have.

focusing on graphic design. Both graduated from Northern in 2012.

The business partners sought to bring a unique offering to the area where they grew up — Wright is from Boyne City, and Nagel from Ellsworth. They acquired a used step van and performed some modifications for food-service use.

"I've always wanted to start a restaurant," said Nagel. "I've been interested in food my whole life."

Nagel began working in the restaurant field as a teenager. One previous employer is Tapawingo, an acclaimed fine-dining spot that formerly operated in Ellsworth.

The truck's taco selection evolves regularly. Fried avocado and smoked pork are examples of the choices recently offered.

"We try to keep it unique, and we're trying to use as many local ingredients as possible," Nagel said.

Along with tacos, Happy's offers a daily special, which can range from Asian food to soups to sandwiches.

Happy's Tacos operates 10:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Wednesday and Sunday at Boyne Mountain, and serves customers 10:30 a.m.-9 p.m. Thursday through Saturday at the resort.

Once the warmer months of 2014 arrive, the Happy's Taco operators expect to serve food at Boyne City's farmers market and at other area events and festivals. The partners said they aim to peaceably coexist with local restaurant operators, and not to intrude on their customer traffic.

Michael Cain, Boyne City's city manager, said the community currently doesn't have any policies in place relating specifically to food trucks' operation. But with more and more operators emerging in Northern Michigan and elsewhere, he said the city commission has directed staff to explore the topic in the next few months and find out whether any new policies should be developed.

As part of the process, Cain said officials likely will consider approaches taken by other communities to food truck operation, and provide opportunities for public input.

said the first phase's design will be submitted to the Michigan Department of Transportation for review by month's end. What's taken time in this process is the road commission's request that trail proponents gather acknowledgement of the right-of-way within which the trail will be built from property owners along the route, Porath said.

"We're not talking about additional easements. It's just a communication effort, mainly," he said.

Then phase two is set to be constructed in spring 2015, Maxwell added.

Planned phases 3-5 are expected to connect the whole pathway for nearly 14 miles of designated trail, including a trailhead at Camp Sea-Gull with a parking lot and bathrooms. All told, Maxwell said the entire trail from Boyne City to Charlevoix is expected to cost upwards of $6 million and may include bridges and boardwalks along the route, depending on required engineering.

So far, Bay Township agreed to spend $33,000 toward the third phase of the trail through Horton Bay, Maxwell said. Fundraising continues for the remainder of the project.

"It's all coming together," he said. "As far as we're concerned, it's full steam ahead."

Grant applications for phase three will be prepared next year for the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund, which is funded by oil and gas across the state and is used for developing parks and recreational areas, as well as to acquire land for such purposes.

will be sorting toys and making preparations for the distribution day on Friday, Dec. 20.

And for those who noticed in these last days before Christmas that they don't have the budget for gifts they thought they would, there is still time to sign up for help from Toys for Tots. Bolt said those who wish to sign up for the program's distribution day can call the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry at (231) 237-9490.

Bolt said there are some remaining donation spot opportunities, too.

Toy donations can be dropped off until 4 p.m. today, Friday, Dec. 13, at Ricks McClure's chiropractic office at 1422 S. Bridge St. by McDonald's. Also, there will be a Toys for Tots collection from 5-7 p.m. today, Friday, Dec. 13, at Ace Hardware in Charlevoix.

Anyone wishing to make a toy donation after that, or who is unsure where to drop it off can call Bolt at (231) 547-4855.

The growth of the fund and the financial support that has been poured back into the community emphasize the power of endowment and the good work that endowed funds make possible.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a charitable organization made up of various funds, all of them established by local donors. Some funds are earmarked for specific causes, and others are open-ended to meet changing needs. The funds are held in permanent endowment, so they can continue to grow and generate income to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix County, now and for generations to come.

G. RANDALL GOSS/NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

The Charlevoix High School boys' basketball team opened the season on Monday with a non-league loss to St. Ignace. Team members are front (from left) manager Ben Lentz, Noah Jeakle, Nick Snabes, Ryan Joy, Will Teigenhof, Jackson Buday, manager Luke Stuck; middle, assistant coach Joe Salomon, assistant coach Doug Waha, Shane Sutherland, Austin Putman, Justin Pearl, Nate Moon, Kenen Borths, Dr. James Geis; back, assistant coach Andrew Potter, coach Bret Erskine, Adam Michaud, Matt MacKenzie, Zachary Hankins, Nick Plude, CJ Rice and assistant coach John Pearl.

New coach, same expectations

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix heads into a 2013-14 season of change that will be evident from the get-go.

Bret Erskine takes over the head coaching duties for the Rayders, taking the place of former coach Adam Wood.

The Rayders will also need to replace nine seniors from last year's team, including three starters.

Erskine, however, feels confident about stepping in and about the group that will be on the floor.

"If everybody stays healthy, no matter what the wins and losses are, I think we're going to be successful," said Erskine. "A great group of kids. It feels more like a family type of atmosphere this year. It was like that last year. I just think this senior class is real close."

That senior class will include seven members, to go along with seven juniors and a sophomore.

Big man Zach Hankins, a 6-foot-8 senior committed to Ferris State to play basketball, and 6-foot-5 senior Matt Mackenzie return to the lineup for Erskine, who will shift the offense from a perimeter shooting team from a year ago, to an inside-out team this season.

"With Zach being a lot better player than he was last year and along with Matt, being a lot better inside player, we're going to be more of an inside-outside team," said Erskine. "We're going to look to get it into Zach and the big men as much as we can, but also going to have some pretty good perimeter shooters."

Also returning to the Rayders will be senior guards Justin Pearl and Shane Sutherland, along with senior forward CJ Rice. Juniors Ryan Joy, Nick Plude, Nate Moon and sophomore Austin Putman will all be contributors for Erskine in their first year of varsity as well.

Coming off a 12-6 regular season record a year ago, the Rayders will look to improve upon that mark with a hard work attitude, that begins in practice.

"Our practices are tough. That's one thing that we've been doing," said Erskine. "If you want to play, then you've got to get in there in play. That's been one thing I've really been telling the guys."

Charlevoix opened the season with a 67-60 loss to St. Ignace on Monday and on Tuesday dropped a 56-45 decision to Gaylord. The Rayders will face Leland in a Northwest Conference/Lake Michigan Conference Challenge contest at 2:45 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 14, at Kingsley High School.

Rayder girls off to 2-1 start to open season

Madeline Boss led the Rayders with her second double-double of the season, finishing with 29 points and 16 rebounds during a non-league loss to Gaylord, 50-42, on Tuesday.

"The girls showed a lot of character tonight," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "It was our third game in four nights and with our legs tired we were able to make a comeback late in the game."

Gaylord led at each quarter break which included at halftime, 26-21, and at the end of the third quarter, 42-28. For Gaylord, Maddie Hamilla scored 13 points.

Also for Charlevoix, Boss added three steals and Gabby Gray scored seven points and had three steals.

Charlevoix, 2-1 overall, hosts Elk Rapids on Tuesday, Dec. 17, in a league contest.

On Monday in Bellaire, Boss led all scorers with 17 points, 12 rebounds, and seven steals as the Radyers won a non-league game over the Eagles, 54-34.

"Tonight, we distributed the ball well," Shaw said. "We learned from our first half mistakes, and controlled the game in the second half with our press."

The Rayders led at each quarter break which included 27-13 at halftime and 42-26 at the end of the third.

"I was proud of the girl's effort and determination," Shaw added.

For Bellaire, Leighton Knepke scored 12 points.

Charlevoix lost the JV game, 38-25, to Bellaire.

Brandy O'Neil led the Eagles with 29 points, while Hannah Zipp scored 11 points and Nicole Swadling added seven for the Rayders.

On Saturday in Kalkaska, Kelsey Engstrom finished with 13 points and Boss added 12 points, eight rebounds, three blocks and three steals as Charlevoix topped Maple City Glen Lake, 44-35, Saturday in a game played in the Northwest Conference/Lake Michigan Conference Challenge to open their season.

Also for the Rayders, Gray had six points and five assists, while Ellie Way had five points and Kourtney Putman added four points and seven rebounds.

Charlevoix, which held a two point lead early in the fourth quarter before pulling away down the stretch, collected 14 steals and had 12 assists as a team.

For Glen Lake, Jordan Peplinski had 18 points, while Maddy Brown added five.

Rayder boys fall to St. Ignace in season opener

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

Just not in the plans.

A new era of Charlevoix boys' basketball, led by first year coach Bret Erskine, wouldn't open as planned for the Rayders, as they fell in a non-conference opener to St. Ignace 67-60 in the Charlevoix High School gym on Monday night.

Fouls, turnovers and late miscues would push the Rayders to an 0-1 start for Erskine's team.

"Just very much not like the way we had hoped it would start," Erskine said. "I didn't think our intensity was where it should be at the start of the game. We were hacking, we were fouling, traveling, turning it over. It was just not what we expected."

The Rayders, playing without senior center Zach Hankins who was out with a foot injury on the night, led 9-7 at the close of the first quarter, after opening the game on a 9-1 run, which included a pair of early 3-pointers from junior guard Nate Moon.

Poor shot selection by the Rayders in the second quarter and the Saints' ability to get to the free throw line would make it a 22-22 game at the half, however.

Overall on the night the Saints finished 27-for-40 in attempts at the line, while the Rayders attempted 19 shots from the charity stripe, making 13.

St. Ignace coach Doug Ingalls was impressed with his team's opening night performance, while not knowing what to expect against the Rayders.

"It'd be tough for us I figured. Pretty happy and excited with it," Ingalls said. "We have a lot of guys that didn't play very many minutes last year so we're pretty happy with a good start."

Charlevoix would come out strong to open the third, but would be unable to hold the Saints from taking the lead to end the third at 46-39, thanks much in part to St. Ignace sophomore Gage Kreski, who finished the night with 28 points, while going 15-of-20 from the line.

"He's just a great player. He made shots, made his foul shots, he just did a great job running the team," added Erskine. "Doug's done a great job with those boys up there. Those kids are in great shape, very smart, they didn't get into foul trouble."

The foul trouble for the Rayders was evident throughout the night, as they finished with 30 personal fouls, something that Erskine knows can be fixed defensively

"I think it was just our defensive intensity," he said. "I thought the last three minutes of the game was great. We've got to get to playing defense the whole game and that's what we've been preaching to them. But today it just wasn't there."

Charlevoix chipped away at the Saints' fourth quarter lead, knocking the deficit down to two points in a 53-51 game.

A three pointer for the Saints and a pair of free throws to follow would however extend the Saints' game and eventually give them the win.

Moon finished the night with 18 points for the Rayders, hitting three 3-pointers in the game. Shane Sutherland added 10 points, while Nick Plude scored nine and Justin Pearl seven.

Also for St. Ignace, Tyler Snyder finished with 11 points.

The Rayders, 0-1, next game was against Gaylord on the road Tuesday.

"We're just going to not worry about this one too much and get ready to play the next one," said Erskine.

Charlevoix won the JV game 60-55 over St. Ignace.

Rayder boys drop first two games of young season

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

GAYLORD — Justin Pearl scored 10 points as the Charlevoix High School boys' basketball team fell to Gaylord, 56-45, in a non-league contest Tuesday.

With the loss, the Rayders fall to 0-2 on the season and will face Leland in a Northwest Conference/Lake Michigan Conference Challenge contest at 2:45 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 14, in Kingsley.

"We started slow tonight in the first quarter," Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine said. "But we played better toward the end of the half."

Gaylord held the lead, 17-12, at the end of the first quarter.

Charlevoix would bounce back and end the first half tied with Gaylord, 28-28.

The Blue Devils scored 14 points in each of the final two quarters, while holding the Rayders defensively to single digits.

For Gaylord, Collin Waters had a game-high 14 points, while Marcus O'Rourke added 11 points and Zachary Pasternak had 10 points.

Also for Charlevoix, Shane Sutherland finished with nine points.

"Overall we played better tonight," Erskine said. "We are trying to remove some of the early roadblocks."

Council to look further into incompatible offices issue

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix City Council wants its attorneys to look further into the legal implications it could face if its soon-to-be city clerk is also a county commissioner when he takes office in January.

At its regular semi-monthly meeting Monday, the council voted 5-1 to authorize city attorney Bryan Graham to look further into the incompatible offices issue involving city resident Larry Sullivan who was elected to the office of Charlevoix City Clerk in November. He is set to take office on Jan. 6, however the city's and county's attorneys have opined that Sullivan, who also is a Charlevoix County Commissioner, is barred by the state's Incompatible Offices Act from holding both offices at the same time.

Generally, the act prohibits people from holding two public offices at the same time where a possible conflict of interest could arise between the two offices.

Sullivan

Graham and fellow attorney Jim Young, cite a relationship between the city clerk and county clerk offices for elections as one possible area where a conflict of interest could arise for Sullivan.

Sullivan has repeatedly said he checked with more than one attorney prior to filing to run for city clerk about the incompatibility issue and none of them said they found any problem.

In a Dec. 6 letter to city manager Rob Straebel, Sullivan said he plans to assume the city clerk's office come January while retaining his seat on the county board of commissioners. He said the relationships between the two clerks offices are simply matters of convenience that could easily be altered and thus eliminate the potential conflict cited in Graham's and Young's opinion.

Sullivan said Monday he has asked the Michigan Attorney General's office to weigh in on the matter, but that he's been told he doesn't have the standing to make such a request — that it must come from a legislator or a prosecuting attorney.

"Jim (Young) and I agree, that those (situations) could be modified, but Mr. Sullivan does not have the authority to make those changes. They would need to be made by the county clerk," Graham said. "It's important to understand while it is theoretically possible to change those relationships, it hasn't happened yet. It's also important to understand that while making those changes is possible, it puts the county clerk in a difficult position."

Response from council members varied from criticism of Young and Graham to asking Sullivan to choose one office or the other.

Council member Jeff Porter questioned how the fact that Young and Graham's firm, Young, Graham

St. Marys Cement proposes land swap at Fisherman's Island State Park

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

If all goes to St. Marys Cement Plant's wishes, the plant will swap a section of state land, part of Fisherman's Island State Park, for a section of land it owns in Norwood Township.

The section of land St. Marys would like to obtain is the northern tip of Fisherman's Island State Park — about 190 acres — in Charlevoix Township. The section of land it would like to exchange is about 220 acres, along the southern section of the park. The swap would not impact Fisherman's Island's shoreline, but it would move the entrance to Fisherman's Island State Park about four and a half miles south.

> "We have made it very, very clear that this would not cost the state anything."
> — Dirk Cox, operations manager, St. Marys Cement

Currently, users access the park along Bells Bay Road, just south of Charlevoix. The swap would move the access road to Norwood Township, along Witmere Road.

St. Marys officials say they want the land swap in order to consolidate their plant's footprint.

"It's a real simple long term strategic view of what we need here at the plant," said operations manager Dirk Cox.

Currently, the plant has about 100 years' worth of limestone reserves. The swap would give them approximately the same amount of reserves, but it would consolidate the plant's land.

"One of the big factors for us is not many people want to have a large mining operation or any heavy industry right next door to them," said Cox. "We would have no neighbors (if the land swap goes forward), and no neighbors

One of Nancy Fowler's favorite Santas is perched on an end table in the living room. The coat's fur and telltale beard are made using scraps of bath towels and wallpaper paste, giving them a textured look.

A 'Clausy' collection

Charlevoix couple play host to Santas by the hundreds

BY EMILY WHITE
Courier contributor

What appears to be a charming home positioned on a corner lot on Charlevoix's north side is actually bursting at the seams with anything and everything Santa Claus.

For Nancy and David Fowler, Christmastime means displaying more than 300 Santa Claus trinkets, dolls, paintings and cross-stitched patterns around their house.

"I've always loved Christmas and Santa, but I never planned on having a Santa collection," Nancy said.

The couple stores their "clausy" collection in boxes in their third story attic for the majority of the year, and around Christmas, Santas of all sizes make their way down two flights of stairs where they are pulled from their packaging. This process takes nearly a week to complete, and no Santa is ever left behind. Fowler finds a place to display every piece of her collection.

Nearly every square inch of fireplace mantel in the living room is occupied with various shapes and sizes of the jolly little fellow. Some Nancy received as gifts, others she made herself. As her collection grew, she began marking each Santa with the year in which she received it.

"Looking around, I could probably tell you who gave me each one of these Santas," she added.

Every year, Nancy and two of her closest friends, Nomie Mol and Judy Willey, both of Charlevoix, get together to decide on a pattern for a Santa that each of them will create and give to their children as Christmas gifts. In total, Nancy makes five — one for each of her four children and one for herself.

In 1999, when the three ladies turned their hobby of crafting into a tradition, they named themselves The Dumpster Dollies, and each handmade Santa is now accompanied with a business card sized tag that reads "The Dumpster Dollies." Many of the Santas they create are made from scraps of used material, such as a skirt that no longer fits or an old bath towel.

"I try to use wool or materials that are warm because Santa lives where it's always cold; he needs to stay warm too," Nancy said.

A hometown Christmas tree for Troy

SHERI MCWHIRTER O'DONNELL
Courier editor

A Charlevoix County Christmas tree is in Texas with Troy Drebenstedt, a Charlevoix soldier recovering from his wounds sustained in the war in Afghanistan.

The tree is a gift from the Charlevoix Lions Club, the nonprofit that annually sells trees in downtown's East Park.

"I think it's amazing that people in Charlevoix are still thinking about me and my family," Drebenstedt said.

Drebenstedt

Drebenstedt in August 2012 as a Michigan Army National Guard staff sergeant received severe wounds in a bomb explosion in Afghanistan that also wounded three others and killed a fourth soldier. His parents are Bob and Marlys Drebenstedt, of Charlevoix.

Since arriving back stateside, Drebenstedt spent his time at military hospitals in Texas, receiving surgeries and going through physical therapy.

"It's a long recovery, but from where I was to where I am now is incredible," Drebenstedt said.

Drebenstedt and his newlywed wife, Lindsey, married in July this year and are living in Texas, where he continues to undergo treatment.

"I just finished some surgeries around Thanksgiving," Troy said. "I have another surgery for my eye in January."

But until then, Drebenstedt said he and his wife are going to enjoy their Charlevoix County-grown Christmas tree that came to them from his hometown.

Steve Michael, Lions Club tree sales chairman, said he hopes this is the start of an annual tradition.

"This is the first time and I think it's such a neat idea that we'll do it every year," Michael said.

The Lions started selling trees and wreaths more than 30 years ago. Michael said a woman recently mentioned to him how a tree from the Charlevoix Lions sale made it all the way to Fort Riley in Kansas, growing emotional as she relayed the story.

"It was really touching," Michael said, so the club decided to choose a local veteran who is away from home and send him or her a tree.

Meanwhile, the Charlevoix Lions Club tree sale in East Park is nearly sold out and is now on a serve yourself by donation basis.

Program champions fitness at school and home

ANNE KELLY

Liz Shaw puts them through their paces.

She coordinates an incentive program for family fitness titled "Fun, Fit and Go," at Charlevoix Elementary School. Physical education teacher Liz (Grunch) Shaw adapted the program for the elementary-aged students she teaches. Her physical education classes begin with fitness and body-strengthening activities for at least 20 minutes of every 55-minute session with the children. Step aerobics, yoga planks, downward dog poses, and sit-ups are part of the drills, she said, with the remainder of the class spent learning a variety of sports skills, including floor hockey, basketball and even juggling and yo-yoing.

Ensuring her students have fun while getting physically fit is Shaw's main objective in class, she said, but the program goes one step beyond the gym.

"Students compete for points accrued — one point for every 30 minutes of exercise they do outside of school with their families," Shaw said. "Then the classes compete against one another for prizes. We have an incentive prize every month. So far we have awarded a trip to the farmers market at the library to a younger class, and an hour swim at the pool for a fourth grade."

Individual prizes may be awarded to students earning high points for a trip to the water park at Avalanche Bay. This month's incentive is to have a special visitor come for a classroom visit before Christmas break. An added bonus involves teaching the children to "pay it forward" by participating in the school's food drive.

Shaw, who is teaching elementary school students for the second year, is a long-time presence in the physical education program within Charlevoix Public Schools. A former Charlevoix High School graduate and multi-sport All-State athlete, she graduated from Grand Valley State University which "has the top physical education program in Michigan," Shaw said.

Shaw coached both varsity and junior varsity softball, volleyball and basketball for 20 seasons and taught physical education for four years at the high school and seven years at the middle school before joining the elementary staff.

To supplement her program, Shaw recently applied for and was awarded a grant through the Charlevoix School Foundation, a subsidiary of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. As a result, students have "steps" for their step aerobics set to music.

"I'm all about giving the kids the skills they need in order to have them take them home and get their families to exercise together" she said. "There is a renewed excitement among the kids for phys. ed.," said principal Doug Drenth. "In an age, where many districts are cutting special programs in order to save money, we have been able to maintain ours in art, music, library science and phys. ed. This is a tribute to the Charlevoix School District. Programs like Liz's are essential if we are to educate the whole child. Liz is a wonderful example for all our students."

City sewer rates to take a 71 percent jump

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

City of Charlevoix residents can expect a huge hit in their sewer rates over the next five years, but the city council is trying to strike a balance between easing the impact to its residents and keeping the city's debt service covered.

At its regular semi-monthly meeting Monday the Charlevoix City Council heard from consultants about the status of an upcoming state-mandated major overhaul of the city's wastewater treatment plant and how much it will cost customers to pay for the work.

The nearly $11 million in improvements are needed for two reasons.

The plant was constructed in 1972 and some of its equipment must be modernized and upgraded to meet design and safety standards, but the biggest issue driving the project is regulation changes from the Department of Environmental Quality on what the city can discharge from the plant.

Under the new regulations, the city will have to limit the amount of ammonia it releases beginning Oct. 1, 2014. Even more restrictive limits will be in place by December 2015.

Further complicating the matter is the Northern Michigan climate.

The plant uses water from Lake Michigan to treat wastewater. During the winter, the water is too cold for the biological mechanisms that break down ammonia to work.

High ammonia levels can be harmful to aquatic plants and animals.

The city already received two grants totalling $876,000 that covered about 90 percent of the engineering costs to date, but the big bill will be for the project itself.

Given the project's price tag, the city will have to borrow money to pay for it. During a meeting earlier this year, city manager Rob Straebel announced that the city will be able to use a State Revolving Fund Loan for wastewater improvements with interest rates in the 2.5-percent range.

Even with the low interest rate, Dawn Lund, vice president of Utility Financial Consultants told the council Monday that it will need to raise its sewer rates 71 percent during the next five years to cover the cost of the work.

Lund presented the council with four options on how to implement the rate increases ranging from all 71 percent at one time to spreading the increase out over all five years.

But Lund explained that one of the strings attached to using a State Revolving Fund bond is a requirement that the sewer fund be able to cover its debts by at least a factor of 125 percent within three years. However, to be safe, Lund recommends the fund being at 140 percent by that time.

Medical marijuana dispensary regulation bill passes state House

CHRIS ENGLE
Northern Michigan Review

LANSING — A bill to allow municipalities to regulate medical marijuana dispensaries was passed in the state House Thursday by a landslide 95-14 vote.

The bill defines a "provisioning center" as an entity "that acquires, possesses, manufactures, delivers, transfers, or transports medical marihuana and sells, supplies, or provides medical marihuana to registered qualifying patients, directly or through the patients' registered primary caregivers."

Provisioning centers include any commercial property where medical marijuana is sold to registered qualifying patients and registered primary caregivers.

It also defines "safety compliance facilities" as operations where usable marijuana is tested for quality control.

Similar rules apply for both kinds of facilities.

Rep. Greg MacMaster, R-Kewadin, is one of the bill's 28 co-sponsors. The bill still requires a Senate vote.

Under the bill, municipalities may enact ordinances to allow and regulate, or ban, provisioning centers and safety compliance facilities within their boundaries. They may enact ordinances or further regulations and can charge a license fee.

"It's great to see such overwhelming bipartisan support from the state Legislature," said Andrew Driver, vice chairman of the National Patients Rights Association and former owner of Choice Collective in Gaylord. "This vote proves that the Legislature is serious about providing safe and clean access to patients that need it most."

At the state level, such facilities cannot employ felons or share space with a physician and must have a security system enabled. Unless explicitly allowed in an ordinance, facilities may not be located within 1,000 feet of a school.

The bill was introduced in February on the heels of a Feb. 8 opinion by the Michigan Supreme Court which ruled existing law does not allow facilities where marijuana is sold or transferred. Following that ruling, Attorney General Bill Schuette notified the state's 83 county prosecutors that such facilities can be shut down as public nuisances.

At one point, Gaylord had six dispensaries within its limits.

Neither Gaylord or Otsego County have enacted any kind of ordinance, while the village of Vanderbilt enacted a zoning ordinance in 2012 that could permit one more dispensary within its limits.

City attorney Steve Dubois and Otsego County Prosecutor Mike Rola both said Monday that they will take a wait-and-see approach and make recommendations to their respective boards if a final bill is passed.

The bill is a revised version of House Bill 5580, dubbed the "Safe Access bill," which was presented last year but never moved forward.

A related bill, House Bill 5104, also passed Thursday and defined edible marijuana products, or "medibles," as being made with marijuana extracts. That bill passed 100-9.

Snyder announces judgeship campaign

BRANDON HUBBARD
Northern Michigan Review

The first candidate for the 33rd Circuit Court judgeship in 2014 has announced her intent to run and it is a familiar name in the county seat.

Valerie K. Snyder, attorney and Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education member serving her second term, recently announced she will be running to replace retiring 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas. The veteran judge sat on the bench representing Charlevoix County since taking office in 1985.

Snyder, 44, says she is running for office because it combines her backgrounds in public and private work.

Snyder

"I have a legal career and public service part of my life, and I think elected officials are always supposed to be public servants — something I think we lose sight of sometimes," Snyder said.

Snyder has a general practice firm in Charlevoix and notes her experience in real estate, family law, estate planning and administration, as well as civil litigation in her 17-year law career. She also plans to run on her experience representing clients in trial and appellate courts.

"Running for judge is certainly something I have thought about my entire legal career," Snyder said.

She also previously served on the Charlevoix Planning Commission and Charlevoix City Council, as well as being elected twice for the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

"I am excited about this opportunity and look forward to meeting many Charlevoix County residents during the campaign. I have the ability to make tough decisions based on the facts and the law, and not let my feelings or emotions sway an outcome. At the same time, I respect the need to listen to both sides of a story. Whether before the school board or in the court room, citizens deserve to be heard by a fair and impartial decision-maker. I believe I have both the experience and the temperament to be an effective judge for our county."

Snyder launched a website for her campaign at www.snyderforjudge.com.

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

The seemingly endless persistent snow of the Northern Michigan winter may seem an inconvenience or even troublesome to us, but for many of the long-term inhabitants like the animals and birds, it is genuinely a lifesaver.

Forty years ago I taught a course in winter ecology for 20 college students at Itasca Park in northern Minnesota. It was January and the temperature was below zero or even colder. Our job was to find out what was living outdoors in that cold, and to understand how they did it. We found a remarkable number of birds, small mammals and even insects that managed something like normal life in extreme cold.

We used live traps baited with peanut butter and oatmeal to capture small mammals. We discovered that the animals entered the traps in good shape, but would freeze to death within an hour if we did not rescue them. We set out temperature recording devices to see where they might be living most of the time. While air temperatures in the traps were deadly to these small creatures, the temperature at ground level below two feet of snow was barely freezing. That is where these little animals were spending their time. We later read reports of grass growing slowly at ground level under similar snow cover, so it was comfortable down there.

Snow, it turns out is a magnificent insulator. A winter without snow would be deadly to most field mice, voles and shrews, but under two feet of insulating snow, they thrive. We call it a blanket of snow, and are speaking a truth we may not understand. Air moves through snow easily, so breathing under snow is no problem.

A number of insects live under that blanket, as well. On sunny days, they venture out onto the surface of the snow to hunt for food. In below-zero weather, seeing a half-dozen kinds of insects crawling around on the snow surface increases respect for the vitality of life. The insects were uniformly black in color, to capture as much of the sun's heat as possible, and they all had long legs to elevate them above the icy surface. If it became cloudy, they disappeared immediately back under the snow.

Larger animals used the insulating quality of the snow, as well. At sunset, the grouse which had been eating tree buds would fly a short distance and then dive directly into the snow. The fluffy snow puffed up and then settled back, leaving no sign that a grouse was buried there. With the coming or morning, you could see only a small depression with a pair of wing-feather prints on either side to mark the place a grouse had emerged after spending the night cozy, warm and safe from nighttime predators under the snow.

Snowshoe hares will do something similar, by burrowing into the snow to spend the cold nights.

Female polar bears in the Arctic spend months in a snow cave, giving birth and nurturing their cubs. And of course, long ago, the native Inuit people built snow igloos, where they could be warm with only the heat from a seal oil lamp. They probably learned that from polar bears.

How different the world would be with only cold and no snow.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds a master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

LOOKING BACK…

"City of Charlevoix" Bomber

During World War II, the Federal Government devised a plan to raise funds for the construction of badly needed bombers for the war effort. Civic pride was the catalyst, and towns across the country were encouraged to try to find the money for what they believed would be their very own named airplane. Charlevoix was fortunate in that there was quite a bit of summertime wealth here to be tapped. In the summer of 1943, a two-story tall thermometer was painted on the side of the Central Drug Store's Clinton Street wall flanked by two signs: "Help Charlevoix Buy A Bomber, Buy Bonds & More Bonds," and "Hitler is Next—Buy War Bonds." The thermometer was marked off in $50,000 increments and its indicator painted upward in as funds flowed in. Beginning in late July, little Charlevoix, population 2500 and still feeling the effects of the Great Depression on top of wartime austerity, raised $300,000 in four weeks for its Boeing B17G Flying Fortress. Oreste Gatti, restaurant manager of the Colonial Club gambling establishment on Meech Street, bought the first $1000 bond. Two days later, City Council chipped in $5000. Two days after that the pot was up to $75,000. Three weeks into the campaign $202,000 was at hand. Two days before the drive was scheduled to end a final $10,000 sent the effort over the top. The Army Air Force "City of Charlevoix" took to the skies, combat destination unknown, wartime or post-war fate likewise unknown. It was later said that rarely had the people of Charlevoix, residents and resorters alike, experienced a prouder moment than the day the thermometer indicator went through the $300,000 mark.

Flu activity on the rise, vaccines remain available

STAFF REPORT

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan received reports of increased flu activity and reminds families throughout Northern Michigan to schedule an appointment to receive this year's flu vaccine.

Anyone older than 6 months of age should receive the flu shot, according to Suzette Daly, family and community health supervisor for the health department. Daly said the clinic staff also can work with the whole family to provide other essential vaccinations during a visit. The cost for seasonal flu vaccination is $25, payable by check or cash. Private insurance, Medicare and Medicaid also are accepted.

"Vaccination is the best way to protect against the flu," Daly said. "It can prevent serious illness and save lives, especially among kids and the elderly. And it's not too late to get yours for the 2013-2014 season."

Flu vaccinations offer protection throughout the entire flu season, which can begin as early as October and last as late as May. There are two types of flu vaccines: the flu shot, approved for use in people 6 months of age and older, including healthy people, people with chronic medical conditions and pregnant women; and the nasal-spray flu vaccine, approved for use in healthy people from 2-49 years of age who are not pregnant.

The health department has vaccine in stock and appointments are available for flu shots and other vaccines at its offices in Bellaire, Mancelona, Charlevoix, Petoskey/Harbor Springs and Gaylord, as well as its youth health clinics — the Hornet Health Center in Pellston, and the Ironmen Health Center in Mancelona. Call the health department at (800) 432-4121 to schedule an appointment. You also can visit www.nwhealth.org or www.facebook.com/nwhealthdepartment online for details about the flu vaccine and other important vaccines.

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan is mandated by the Michigan Public Health Code to promote wellness, prevent disease, provide quality health care, address health problems of vulnerable populations, and protect the environment for the residents and visitors of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties.

Bethany Lutheran Church welcomes new pastor

Fulmer

Bethany Lutheran Church of Charlevoix installed a new pastor on Dec. 8. The Rev. Dan Fulmer and his wife, Marsha, moved from Bradenton, Fla., to serve Bethany Lutheran Church and the Charlevoix community.

"We love this area of the country and look forward to becoming a part of the Charlevoix community," he said.

Fulmer invites all from around the area to join the congregation at Bethany for worship at 10:30 a.m. Sundays.

"God's message of love is the most awesome gift I can share with everyone. We are happy to call Charlevoix home," he said.

Bethany Lutheran Church is on U.S. 31 North, across from the Charlevoix Area Community Pool.

City water awarded

The Michigan Department of Community Health announced that the city of Charlevoix received a Water Fluoridation Quality Award from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Fluoridation is the adjustment of fluoride in the water to a level that is optimal for preventing tooth decay. The award recognizes those communities that maintained a consistent level of optimally fluoridated water throughout 2012. There are 1,791 water systems in 34 states that received these awards, including 63 in Michigan.

"Michigan consistently exceeds the CDC recommendations for community water supplies by having 90-percent of our population on community water systems accessing fluoridated water. These awards demonstrate the commitment to quality by these community water systems. Water fluoridation benefits all residents of a community and it has demonstrated its effectiveness in preventing tooth decay throughout one's lifetime," said Christine Farrell, Michigan's oral health program director.

The CDC recognized community water fluoridation as one of 10 great public health achievements of the 20th century. Approximately three-quarters of people served by community water systems have access to optimally fluoridated tap water, officials said, adding that every $1 invested in fluoridation saves at least $38 in costs for dental treatment.

"Community water fluoridation is one of the most effective ways that communities can use to prevent tooth decay in children and adults," said Dr. Katherine Weno, director of the CDC division of oral health. "Our current research shows that people living in fluoridated communities have about 25-percent fewer cavities over their lifetime."

Foundation grants $6000 to park pathway

SHERI MCWHIRTER O'DONNELL

Charlevoix County Community Foundation awarded a $6,000 grant to Charlevoix Township to pay for a hard surface pathway at the park adjacent to township hall.

"I give them credit for having a vision for the property," said Maureen Radke, program officer for the foundation. "They just fell short by a little bit."

The township will use the $6,000 foundation grant to build a hard surface pathway to connect various elements of the overhauled park. The project is expected to be completed by June 1 next year, and the foundation's financial support is part of an approximately $160,000 park facelift.

"It's just one piece of the whole puzzle that helps us connect our ball field to the restrooms, concessions, playground, pavilion and picnic pods," said Chuck Center, township supervisor. "It's a small piece, but an important piece."

Center said township officials appreciate the foundation grant and especially help from Radke in preparing the grant request.

The paved pathway will make movement around the park easier for those with physical disabilities or those who use wheelchairs at the multi-use park, Radke said.

The park is adjacent to Charlevoix Township Hall at 12491 Waller Road.

Auxiliary donates to host of local organizations

Charlevoix's American Legion Auxiliary, Post 226, hosted its annual Christmas dinner with members from the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars and their spouses in attendance. Rather than an exchange of gifts, each person contributed canned goods to be given to Charlevoix Community Food Pantry.

Following the dinner, the auxiliary conducted its regular monthly business meeting, with president Birdie Whitley presiding. Plans for the Christmas Bazaar were concluded with proceeds planned to assist local veterans and their families. The auxiliary adopted the theme "Help Us to Help Them," and also voted to make contributions to Grandvue Medical Facility, Char-Em Department of Human Services, the Chapel of Four Chaplains, the Veterans Administration and the Veterans Hospital at Grand Rapids.

The auxiliary continues to sell U.S. flags and will be selling the well-known line of RADA knives, dips and kitchen implements. OBITUARIES

Harper Lee Camp, 98

Harper Lee Camp, 98, of Midland, died Thursday, Dec. 5, 2013, at the Toni and Trish House.

He was born Oct. 24, 1915, in Midland, son of the late G. Lee and Hazel (Harper) Camp. Harper was a lifelong resident of Midland. He attended grade school at the Post Street School and summer school at the Culver Academy. While in junior high, Harper became a member of the band, beginning his love of music. He earned two letters in basketball and three in football, graduating from Midland High School in 1933. Harper entered Michigan State University, joined the Michigan State Marching Band (which was a military marching band at that time), and graduated in 1939 with his bachelor's in chemical engineering.

Harper's love of music led him to organize his own bands, and play in various other bands, where he played the flute, piccolo, saxophone and clarinet. Throughout his working career, Harper continued his love of playing first sax in his band and in the Bob Spencer band which was broadcast on radio and made into 78 records. He also played in the band and orchestra for several Midland Music Society productions.

On June 23, 1939, he married his high school sweetheart, Ann Agatha Hardy, at the First Presbyterian Church in Midland. She preceded him in death April 4, 1978.

He later married H. Elaine (Engel) Kortge on Dec. 16, 1978, at the Memorial Presbyterian Church. She preceded him in death July 2, 2013.

Harper was a member of the Memorial Presbyterian Church, an avid supporter of Michigan State University, the MSU Marching Band, and was a founding member of the John A. Hannah Society at Michigan State University. He enjoyed reading, specifically books on Civil War history.

Harper was very close to his brothers, and loved his family. He will be missed by his children, Herbert L. Camp M.D. of Midland, and Mary Lee (John) Campbell of Charlevoix; grandchildren, Jeffrey (Cristi) Camp of Troy, Susan (Sean) Camp-Smith of Lexington, S.C., Patricia Camp of Ann Arbor, Dr. Katherine H. He was preceded in death by his brothers, Lester E. Camp and Robert D. Camp; and by a daughter-in-law, Jacqueline Anne Camp.

A memorial service celebrating the life of Harper Lee Camp will take place at 11 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 1, at the Memorial Presbyterian Church, 1310 Ashman St., Midland. The Rev. Wallace H. Mayton III will officiate, with graveside inurnment rites to follow in Midland Cemetery. Family will receive friends at the church from 10 a.m. until the time of service.

Arrangements have been entrusted to the care of the Ware-Smith-Woolever Funeral Directors, 1200 West Wheeler St., Midland, MI 48640.

A scholarship has been established at Michigan State University for a deserving student from Midland who is a member of the MSU marching band. Gifts may be made payable to Michigan State University, and mailed to: Michigan State University Gifts, Harper L. Camp, AE060816, 535 Chestnut Road, Room 300, East Lansing, MI 48824.

Condolences to the family may be made online at www.waresmithwoolever.com.

In 1978 Harper wrote a book titled "Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow," he writes, "Yesterday is made up of memories. However one cannot live on Yesterday alone — there must be a Today and a Tomorrow — Tomorrow is the hope of the future."

Alexander David Heffling, 27

Alexander David Heffling, 27, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., passed away peacefully and surrounded by family on Thursday, Dec. 5, 2013, after a short battle with cancer. Alex was born in West Palm Beach, Fla., on Aug. 13, 1986, and moved to Charlevoix in 2002. He graduated with honors from Charlevoix High School and attended Michigan State University.

Alex was a one-of-a-kind soul with a tender heart who brought light and laughter to everyone who met him. Though his time with us was short, it was sweet as he was full of life and love. He will be dearly missed each and every day.

He is survived by a large and loving family including: his parents, Karyn Sell (Donald) Mallory of Charlevoix; John (Kathleen) Heffling of Lighthouse Point, Fla.; sister, Emily Heffling of Charlevoix; grandparents, Dorothy Jane Sell of Charlevoix and John and Shirley Heffling of West Palm Beach, Fla. Alexander is also survived by several step-siblings, aunts, uncles and cousins. His grandfather, Robert M. Sell, preceded him in death.

A celebration of life gathering for friends and family will be 2-4 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 28, at Scovies Gourmet in Charlevoix.

Memorial contributions can be made to Lake Charlevoix Mariners 4-H Youth Sailing School in memory of Alexander D. Heffling. The family hopes to bring the same passion and serenity that Alex found as a youth on the waters of Lake Charlevoix to other area children.

Charlevoix is setting for new award-winning novel

Charlevoix in December is the setting for "Substitute Angel," a new novel by Michigan native Timothy Best, which was published by TouchPoint Press last month.

Set in the present day, it's the story of paramedic Wyatt "Doc" Reynolds, who works for the city. One night, while driving home in a snowstorm, he hits a deer. At least, Doc thinks it's a deer. It actually turns out to be a newly arrived angel on earth who was traveling anonymously as an animal. The angel's name is Clair, and although she'll recover from her injuries, she won't recover in time to do what she was sent to do, which is prevent the murder of a young woman named Farren Malone. She therefore asks Doc to befriend Farren and try to protect her. But Doc has issues with concepts like God and angels, and as he becomes involved in Farren's life, he learns that things aren't always what they seem.

"At its core, 'Substitute Angel' is a wonderful love story," said TouchPoint publisher Sheri Williams. "But it's also irreverently funny. It's a great read, particularly around the holidays. Anyone who enjoys a good romance with some unexpected twists and turns will love this book. It has the heart of a 'City of Angels' with a dose of 'Bruce Almighty' humor."

"The town is as much a central character as any other character in the book," said author Timothy Best. "Locals will notice that several Charlevoix landmarks are featured in the novel; from the Weathervane Restaurant, to the hospital, to Van Pelt Alley, to the fire hall and city offices on State Street. My heroine even lives in one of Earl Young's mushroom houses. There are also some fictional settings, too, that were necessary to facilitate the story. But if the people of Charlevoix conclude, 'Yeah, he was true to the spirit of the town,' then I'll be happy."

Within days of its release, "Substitute Angel" earned a Platinum Award for its eBook cover design. The distinction came from the Marcom Awards, based in Dallas, Texas. The national and international competition honors creative excellence in a number of marketing categories, and this year had more than 6,500 entries. The Platinum Award is the competition's highest honor. "I'm thrilled about the award," Best said. "But it's what's behind the cover that I hope people will really enjoy."

These days, Best lives in Birmingham, Ala., but has been a frequent visitor to Charlevoix and has several family members in Jackson and Grand Rapids. He did research for "Substitute Angel" by spending several days in town during a summer vacation.

"I filmed for days so I'd have visual reference when I returned home, as well as interviewed several people: shop owners, realtors, waitresses, people at the harbor master's office, people at the chamber of commerce — all sorts of folks. Some wanted to know why I was asking so many questions and were very supportive about the idea for the book. Others probably thought I was just being a nosy tourist, but everyone was very nice."

Two generations team up at new practice

MEGAN WILSON
Staff Writer

BOYNE CITY — A father and daughter with 65 years of combined dentistry experience recently launched a new dental practice in Boyne City.

Dr. James Straley, and his daughter, Dr. Jennifer Larson, provide services at Park View Family Dentistry.

The dentists operate from a newly remodeled office at 202 N. Lake St. The practice offers digital X-rays in standard and panoramic views.

"Our office services patients of all ages," said Straley. "We want to help patients keep their teeth for the rest of their lives. I've had a patient that was 100 years old.

"We examine children — the American Dental Association recommends that children have exams as young as 1 year old."

Park View Family Dentistry accepts most insurances, including the Northern Dental Plan.

"The Northern Dental Plan is a type of payment option that fits for most people that don't qualify for Medicaid, it is income based so people do have to provide a proof of income," said Larson.

"There's just such a need as more and more companies take away insurance, it's just a nice way of increasing access to care for folks without insurance. We don't accept Medicaid right now," said Straley.

Being new in town gives the practice an opportunity to build a new client base.

"There are some patients that have followed us from when I worked at the East Jordan Dental, but others don't know that I've left, so the schedule is pretty open right now," said Larson.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN REVIEW

Dr. Jennifer Larson (from left) and her father, Dr. James Straley, operate Park View Family Dentistry.

Park View Family Dentistry is located across from Boyne City's Veterans Park, in an office where Dr. Bruce Stewart previously practiced dentistry.

Originally from Flushing, the dentists at Park View decided to come to Boyne City because of personal experiences.

"My family would vacation up in this area, and my dad retired here, and I've always loved it up here," said Larson. "I was a physical therapist for many years, and I decided to go to dental school, it all fits together, it's really great, being able to work with my dad is wonderful."

Park View Family Dentistry takes a special approach to help its patients with their stress levels, asking their patients how they can alleviate stress induced by exam fear.

"I think that by me being a therapist, I am very in tune with patient's bodies and can help them relax better," said Larson.

She added, "We offer nitrous oxide if needed, and we approach our patients and see what their needs are, we explain to them how procedures are done."

Both dentists graduated from the University of Michigan dental school, Straley in 1959, and Larson in 2006. Both are accredited by the American Dental Association.

"I think that another thing that makes patients feel better when they come here is that I am an adjunct faculty at the University of Michigan dental school," said Larson.

To Straley, "it is a source of great pride that both my son and my daughter have gone into dentistry," he said. "My son is taking over the practice in Flushing."

Park View Family Dentistry can be reached by phone at (231) 582-4480, and has a website at www.boynecitydentalcare.com

St. Marys Cement receives DNR partnership award

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources awarded St. Marys Cement and several of its own Charlevoix Fisheries Research Station employees awards recently during an event at Boyne Mountain in Boyne Falls.

St. Marys Cement was awarded an "Outstanding Partnership Award" for its work in helping the DNR plant and maintain salmon fingerlings at Medusa Creek.

Medusa Creek is a small, man-made creek that's actually an outflow of water from the quarry at St. Marys Cement.

"We make sure that during critical periods, we communicate really well with Jeff (Stevens, trades helper at Charlevoix Fisheries Research Station) and a lot of people in the plant to make sure the water flow is correct," said Cortney Schmidt, environmental manager at St. Marys Cement. "They're putting 200, 300, half a million fish fry in there in the spring. We're ensuring they have the water."

Dave Clapp with the research station says he, Jeff Stevens and fisheries research biology specialist Randy Claramunt nominated the plant because the company also helps operate the weir and helps the DNR harvest salmon when they return during the fall run.

"They help facilitate the amount of water coming out of the stream, they've had their heavy equipment down to help with dredging of the creek in the past, and, several years back, they helped rebuild the weir structure," said Clapp. "Just a range of things they have helped to facilitate those two main salmon operations."

Jeff Stevens (left), trades helper with the Department of Natural Resource's Charlevoix Fisheries Research Station, hands an award recognizing "outstanding partnership" to Cortney Schmidt, environmental manager with St. Marys Cement in Charlevoix.

Medusa's salmon return rate is the highest of all the stocking locations in Michigan, according to the DNR. Now, close to 175,000 salmon return to the small creek each fall.

Charlevoix fisheries station staff receiving recognition were Claramunt with the "Chief's Lighthouse" award for undertaking new managerial duties; Stevens, fisheries biologist Patrick Hanchin and the steelhead crew of Jerry Ranville, Eric Crissman, Nate Skop and Bryce Kucharek for dedication to excellence; and special recognition went to fisheries technician specialist Donna Wesander.

Ferry crossings canceled for ice, gale force winds

SHERI MCWHIRTER O'DONNELL
Courier editor

Beaver Island Boat Company canceled the last two planned crossings between Charlevoix and Beaver Island this week after ice buildup and challenging winter weather conditions increased the risks for the Lake Michigan ferry service.

"The harbor over there completely iced over with 6-8 inches of ice. We had to be broken out by a tugboat to get out Monday," said Margo Marks, company president. "We made our run and decided due to the ice and weather conditions that it would be the last one."

Officials canceled crossings planned for Wednesday and today, Friday, Dec. 20, because of the risky ice and weather conditions, she said.

"Ice packs into the slip, making it very difficult to maneuver," Marks said. "Also, gale force winds out on the lake create freezing spray and other challenges while crossing."

That freezing spray creates ice-covered decks that are challenging for customers to walk across, she said, adding that loading and unloading freight at iced-over docks presents its risks, too.

The company called around when the decision to cancel the last crossings was made, Marks said, in an effort to get all the needed supplies to the island that can't be flown the distance.

"We tried to get everything we knew we needed to get over there that we had been waiting to go," she said.

The ferry service company operates two boats — The Emerald Isle and The Beaver Islander — that from spring until late fall make regular trips between Charlevoix's Round Lake harbor and the harbor at St. James on Beaver Island, about 32 miles northwest into Lake Michigan. The ferries are moored at Beaver Island throughout the winter, locked into place by ice in the harbor.

Details about next year's season will be posted online at www.bibco.com when available.

Task force to set event dates

Members of the Breezeway Task Force did strategic planning during their annual retreat session on Wednesday, Nov. 27, at the Ellsworth Farmers Exchange conference room.

At the half-day work session, the group reviewed the year's events, projects and promotions for the Breezeway, a rural highway route that connects Atwood, Ellsworth, East Jordan and Boyne Falls. They also looked at new marketing and promotional areas and received a legislative update from state Rep. Greg MacMaster, R-Kewadin. The Breezeway Task Force also finalized plans for a visit to Lansing to promote the Breezeway to members of the House of Representatives as MacMaster's guests.

The task force will resume its monthly meetings in January and 2014 event dates will be announced at that time. More information about the Breezeway is available from the East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce at (231) 536-7351 or via email sent to info@ejchamber.org.

Snowmobiling campaign planned for this winter

A group of business owners, volunteers and community leaders met on Monday, Nov. 25, at the EMS/Fire Building in East Jordan to discuss improving signage and wayfinding signs into and in East Jordan for snowmobile guests and local enthusiasts. A work plan and goals were put into place to help make the 2014 snowmobile season successful.

The following individuals agreed to various tasks to improve the snowmobile economy in the East Jordan and Ellsworth area: Bill Tisron of Michigan Snowmobile Magazine, Bill Werner of The Zone/Gemini Lanes, Bill Pardee of B&B Auto, Dale Miller of East Jordan True Value, Gerry Argetsinger and Don Massey of East Jordan Sno-Mobilers and volunteer groomers, Laurie Hodgson of Murray's, Dale Boehm, East Jordan police chief, Mark Penzien, city commissioner, Mary Faculak, executive director of the chamber of commerce.

Anyone interested in getting involved in the snowmobile campaign can contact Faculak at the chamber office at (231) 536-7351.

Elsenheimer, & Wendling, representing both the city and the county at the same time is any different than the conflict of interest concerns they raise in their opinion on the Sullivan matter. Porter was also critical of their work pointing to an earlier opinion on the Sullivan matter in which they found no conflict of interest issue.

Graham responded that both the city and the county passed resolutions acknowledging the fact that attorneys from the same firm represent both bodies. He also explained that the earlier opinion was written before they learned of the city's election relationships with the county.

"This whole thing is a tempest in a teapot," Porter, who cast the sole dissenting vote on the motion to approve the further research, said. "He should take office and we should make changes in city charter."

Porter was referring to another question in the Sullivan matter relating to a provision in the city charter that reads, "Except where authorized by this charter, no elected official shall hold any other office or city employment during the term for which elected."

Young and Graham have noted that it's unclear if the language refers to a city office or any public office.

Graham estimated that the additional legal work might take five to six hours at a cost of about $750.

Both council members Shirley Gibson and Greg Stevens said Sullivan should chose one or the other.

"I don't know for sure, but I think there was an implication that this could be rectified very easily if Mr. Sullivan would choose one or the other, Gibson said. "Take the city clerk's job. It pays more."

Stevens added, "I think it's a waste of money. I don't know why Mr. Sullivan is trying to bully the city and the county. He needs to chose one or the other and be done."

Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. added, "It doesn't seem to be a whole lot of money to find out something. I think we owe it to the city to follow through."

Straebel, the city manager, also weighed in on the matter saying the debate has nothing to do with Sullivan personally, but that he has concerns about making the changes he proposes in the relationship between the two clerks offices and about the underlying ethics of the situation.

"The state is very much pushing for collaboration among entities. To propose that we dissolve these collaborations ... will cost the city more money to do it (the election matters) ourselves."

He added: "There is also the perception in the community. In reading his letter I was confused as to whom he was representing in his proposal. I think its smart for city council to look at this. We want to foster transparency in government."

makes no complaints."

Right now, there are no residential areas that abut St. Marys holdings in Norwood Township, but the land is zoned residential. The land in Charlevoix Township that St. Marys is eyeing abuts just state land and St. Marys' own property.

The land swap would also move operations closer to the plant's operations site. The plant estimates this would save about 180,000 gallons of fuel per year in trucking limestone from the Norwood Township land to the Charlevoix plant, when that land would be mined.

The potential land swap would change Fisherman's Island State Park. Currently, state park users enter the park through the northern Bells Bay entrance. The swap would require the southern access road off Witmere to be constructed, as well as a rangers' cabin at that access road. Six campsites would be lost in the swap. But St. Marys would take on the cost of all the reconstruction, including the access road, a new rangers' cabin (with the old cabin remaining, if the state desires) as well as six new campsites.

"We have made it very, very clear that this would not cost the state anything, nor would it detract from the value of Fisherman's Island State Park," said Cox.

St. Marys first began proposing the swap in early summer, and tested the Charlevoix Township land for limestone reserves in October.

This is the view of Lake Michigan from a camp site at Fishermen's Island State Park.

Now, the plant is debating the pros and cons of the swap with the state of Michigan and Charlevoix and Norwood townships. Then, it will complete economic, hydrologic, geologic, archaeological and wetlands impact studies. It will next put forward an application, called a "Michigan Real Estate Division Application" to the state of Michigan to exchange the land. If all goes according to plan, the application for the land swap could take as little as six months, said Cox.

Even so, Cox said the plant doesn't plan to mine for between 10-20 years.

Charlevoix Township supervisor Chuck Center supports the plan.

"My thoughts are I will do what I can to preserve the jobs at St. Marys Cement. I'd be in favor of what they're trying to do," said Center. "They've been good neighbors since they've been here. They have resolved many of the problems that the neighbors had with them from the prior owners."

Cox said the plant welcomes feedback to its plan at (231) 547-9971.

SEWER

She explained that when using the state fund, even if the city is making its bond payments on time, but its debt coverage ratio drops below the 125-percent level, the city would technically be considered to be in default on the loan. The effect of such a default could mean the city's bond rating is lowered and thus make it more difficult to secure financing for future borrowing needs.

The examples Lund provided to the council broke down the added cost for a residential customer who uses 6,000 gallons of water per month and showed the differences between increasing the rate all at once, over two years, over three years or over five years.

Currently the monthly charge for someone using 6,000 gallons of water per month would be $39.08. If all 71 percent of the rate increase were instituted in one year, that customer's monthly charge would increase by $27.75 to $66.83.

On the low end of the spectrum, spreading the increase out at 14.5 percent per year for five years would increase that same customer's monthly cost by $5.57 to $44.75 in the first year.

Straebel asked the council for direction on which option it favored to provide guidance for city staff as it works on the 2014-15 budget in the coming weeks. The consensus among the council was the option that would break the increase up into 24.5 percent chunks over three years. In the example above, that would increase the monthly cost by $9.57 to $48.65.

Council members favored the option because it balanced a slightly cushioned impact on residents with a need to make sure enough debt service funds are on hand by the deadline — something spreading the increase over the five years won't do.

If all goes according to plan, the city could break ground on the project in late August.

To take community input on the proposed rate changes, the council has set a public hearing for 7 p.m. Monday, Jan. 20, at its second regular meeting in January.

In other business, Straebel reported the city has tentative approval to receive a grant of $429,000 in state transportation funds for a project to overhaul a section of State Street from Clinton to Hurlbut streets. The project will include a re-alignment of the State and Antrim streets intersection that currently is offset by about 20 feet along the State Street axis. Based on an engineer's estimate of the project's cost, the city's portion of the project would be about $355,000.

Straebel said the local rural task force group approved the grant, but it now must be approved by the regional body. If approved, the work is expected to take place starting in early fall 2014.

The council also approved a series of rate changes for the city's recreation department. Some of the rates increased while others decreased. Also, some rate items were eliminated and some were added.

Among the notable changes was an increase for registration fees for the Camp McSauba summer day camp from $85 for both city residents and non-residents to $95 for residents and $110 for non-residents. The new rates also will include a premium for weekend and holiday picnic pavilion rentals and simplifies rates for snowshoe, snowboard and ski rentals at Mount McSauba. A few rates were lowered, including the weeknight daily ski pass by $3, to new rates at $10 and $15 for residents and non-residents, respectively. Also, day care rates for before and after Camp McSauba were lowered in two of three categories.

The council also conducted its annual organizational meeting in which it chose not to change its regular meeting times and days from 7 p.m. the first and third Tuesdays of the month. The council also voted to keep Lyle Gennett as its deputy mayor.

Dumpster Dollies holiday tradition is creating a one-of-a-kind Santa to be auctioned off at Charlevoix Area Hospital's annual fundraiser, Holly Daze at Castle Farms.

"We are always looking for inspiration for our Santas; we've already picked out the pattern that we'll follow for next year," Nancy said.

Fowler also displays a number of Santa stones on end tables and bookshelves around her home, many of which are hand-painted.

"You could spend hours out at the lake finding Petoskey stones, but you'll never come across one of these," said David as he held a stone in the palm of his hand.

"It's a lot of fun to be able to share my Santa collection with so many people," Nancy said.

Rayders earn sweep in league match

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix High School varsity wrestling team earned a pair of Lake Michigan Conference wins Monday.

The Rayders defeated Traverse City St. Francis, 54-[illegible] and Boyne City, 54-17, to move to 8-1 in dual competition this season.

For the Rayders, senior Jake Novotny and junior Sam Hovie earned two wins to move their respective records to 13-0, while also picking up two wins were junior Lucas VonLau, sophomores Mick Hinkle and Sam Fusee and freshman Camden Alden.

Finishing with 1-1 records for the Rayders were Austin Cesaro, Andrew Mitchell, Devin Largent, Malcolm Williams and Tyler McCallum.

Boyne City gained a split at the meet as the Rayders defeated St. Francis, 36-30, and fell to Charlevoix, 54-17.

For the Ramblers, senior Jordan Wilmot picked up a pair of wins as he pinned St. Francis' Brian Will in 22 seconds and then pinned Charlevoix's Malcolm Williams in 1 minute, 21 seconds.

"Jordan Wilmot is wrestling at 145 pounds and had two nice pins tonight," Boyne City coach Dan Nobel said. "He (Wilmot) has worked hard since returning to the sport for his senior year."

Also for Boyne, Will Calo at 215 pounds added two pins as he topped St. Francis' Jake Klingelsmith in 2:44, and pinned Devin Largent of Charlevoix in 1:18.

Parker Stolt at 119 pounds recorded one pin win in 1:22 over St. Francis' Bailey Olstrom, while R.J. LaDere earned a major 15-0 decision in his 140 pound match over Charlevoix's Stormi McDonald.

Also, the Charlevoix Rayders traveled to Rudyard on Friday for the Bridge Brawl tournament and captured the Lower Peninsula championship by defeating Rudyard, Manistique, Newberry and Munising.

The Rayders' lone loss came to Sault Ste. Marie, a Division II program.

ELK RAPIDS — Cole Walker finished with 13 points and 14 rebounds, while Nikola Dimitrov added 12 points and Shae Somers finished with 11 points to lead Elk Rapids over the Charlevoix High School boys basketball team, 63-32, on Tuesday.

For Charlevoix, Nick Plude scored nine points.

"They just jumped out to a quick lead early in the first quarter on us," Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine said. "We played catch up for the rest of the game."

Elk Rapids scored 23 points in the first quarter and added 16 in the second to take a 39-13 lead into halftime.

Charlevoix would work the score back in the third by outscoring Elk Rapids, 11-3, but wouldn't get any closer the rest of the way.

Also for the Elks, 3-0 overall, 1-0 league, Adam Trautman added 10 points and 10 rebounds.

Last Saturday in Kingsley, first-year head coach Erskine picked up his first win as head coach of the Rayders as Charlevoix topped Leland, 60-40, as Nate Moon led the way with 11 points as a strong opening quarter and half for the Rayders led to a 20 point win in the Lake Michigan-Northwest Crossover on Saturday.

"I was more happy for the boys, happy for them to get their first win," Erskine said.

By the end of the first the Rayders had build a 22-7 lead, followed by a 37-15 halftime lead. Leland would out score the Rayders in the second half 25-23, but the strong first half for Charlevoix would make the difference in the end.

"The first half we played really well. We moved the ball around, we hit our open shots, had four 3-pointers in the first," Erskine added. "The second half we didn't come out with the same intensity. We didn't seem to be moving the ball around as much."

Shane Sutherland added 10 points for the Rayders, while Ryan Joy and Austin Putman scored eight and seven points respectively.

Tyler Leveque scored 10 points for Leland.

Charlevoix, 1-3, 0-1, will host Petoskey on Friday, Dec. 20, in a non-league contest.

ELK RAPIDS — Kelsey Engstrom scored 18 points and had four steals while Alexis Tribfelner added 12 points and five rebounds for the Charlevoix High School girls basketball team in a 66-49 loss to Elk Rapids Tuesday.

"The girls played great tonight despite facing some adversity," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "They played with a lot of heart and determination throughout the game."

Elk Rapids jumped out to a 15-9 lead in the first quarter, and a 32-18 lead at halftime.

"We were able to make some adjustments at the half," Shaw added. "And Hannah Zipp, a JV call up, was able to play some great minutes for us."

Charlevoix was not able to close the gap in the second half, being outscored 34-21.

For Elk Rapids, Paige Granger scored 25 points and had 15 rebounds, Rachel Hintz added 18 points and 11 rebounds and Bridget Hintz scored 15 points and 12 rebounds.

Charlevoix is 2-2 overall, 0-1 in league.

Charlevoix is off until a Tuesday, Jan. 7, Lake Michigan Conference contest against Harbor Springs at Harbor Springs High School.

Stingrays season going swimmingly, 12 qualify for state meet

COURTESY PHOTO

Stingray swimmers this season include Mason Malpass, 9, Ian Clapp, 9, Jack Gaffney, 10, and Jacob Claflin, 9.

The Charlevoix/East Jordan Stingray swim team has had a busy fall, competing in six events between Oct. 18 and Dec. 7, with meets as far south as Battle Creek and as far north as Sault Ste. Marie.

Twelve swimmers already qualified this season for the Michigan Team Swim League state meet. They are: Christina, 12, and Elizabeth Barutt, 14, Jacob, 9, and Nate Claflin, 8, Ian Clapp, 9, McKenna Ebert, 14, Jack Gaffney, 10, Mason, 9, Madeline, 12, and Ryder Malpass, 6, Sophie Snyder, 8, Sophia Thompson, 12, and Ivy Wells, 16.

In four of these six meets, the Stingrays had at least one first place swim and as many as 15 first place finishes. But it is not just qualifying races and first place wins that create success and excitement. It's also those six swimmers who competed in their first meets, three of whom are just 5 and 6 years old: Joe Gaffney, 5, Mary Lentz, 6, and Lily Snyder, 5.

Coach Betsy Granstra said she is especially proud of times earned by her swimmers at the Sault Ste. Marie Lions Invitational on Nov. 2, the Dale Gooding Invitational on Nov. 16, Saginaw and Gaylord Quad Meet on Nov. 23, and the Gaylord Invitational Dec. 7. At each of these meets, many Stingrays dropped time from each and every event in which they competed. Some of these swimmers included Haylah Buell, 12, Ben Lentz, 12, Ella Gaffney, 11, Caroline Jarema, 12, Calley, 14, and Macy McPherson, 12, and Gabby Snyder, 12.

The Stingrays Swim Team's primary goal and philosophy are to develop and improve each athlete's swimming technique and competitive ability, to promote teamwork, spirit and unity among all team members, and to deliver a positive and enjoyable athletic experience. Any swimmer who is able to swim the length of the pool is encouraged to join at any time. Call (231) 547-0982, or send email to betsy@charlevoixpool.org to get more information.

Where will you be on December 31
at midnight?

3..2..1.. Happy New Year

The Christmas holidays are often a very busy time of year, filled with enjoyable gatherings of family and friends. One of the liveliest evenings is without doubt the one which starts on December 31st and ends in the wee hours of New Year's Day.

Celebrating the New Year is a very old tradition. Family members make the most of this occasion by getting together to talk, eat good food, exchange presents, dance to the sound of all sorts of music and have great fun playing games. Of course, the highlight of the evening is the countdown to midnight with all the laughter, cheering, kissing, hugging and exchanging of best wishes for the New Year: health, prosperity, love and anything else you can think of. It's the time to say goodbye to the old year and to welcome in another with hope and optimism...and lots of celebrating!

Many people get together with their families but others like to take part in one of the numerous evenings organized in bars, discotheques, reception halls, restaurants, hotels, etc. Depending on the place, there will be entertaining disc jockeys, terrific bands, champagne for the inevitable countdown and a sumptuous buffet fit for a king. Some municipalities join in the party by organizing firework displays or other activities likely to draw the crowds. There are evenings for every price and every taste but what's certain is that, wherever you happen to be, the atmosphere will be electrifying! Happy New Year!

Bridge Drop fun to begin Tuesday

BY CAROLYN SHERK
Courier contributor

The second Charlevoix New Year's Eve Bridge Drop will be a family-friendly event in downtown Charlevoix that will include food, fun and fireworks. Events will begin during the day and carry into the evening.

The Charlevoix's Area Chamber of Commerce, Downtown Development Authority and Convention and Visitors' Bureau are collectively hosting the event during which 2,000 spectators are expected to participate.

"We are very excited about the second annual bridge drop. This is an exciting addition to our winter season event calendar for Charlevoix. It creates a celebratory atmosphere for my personal favorite time of year to be in Northern Michigan," said Amanda Wilkin, executive director of the convention and visitors' bureau.

The fun begins at noon on Tuesday, Dec. 31, at Bridge Park with a free petting zoo with llamas, alpacas, donkeys and sheep. Weather permitting, camel rides will be offered for $5 per ride.

Charlevoix Public Library will host a snowman making contest at the park. Snowman kits will be available for free at the library. The contest begins at noon and runs until 4 p.m. Judges from the library will award prizes for the best snowman creations.

Burn barrels will be set up in the park to help revelers stay warm, and hot cocoa and s'mores will be served.

Council to consider measure barring Sullivan from post

STEVE ZUCKER
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix City Council is poised to consider passing a resolution that would bar city clerk-elect Larry Sullivan from taking office because of a conflict with the city's charter.

The council has scheduled a special meeting for 5 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 2 to consider the measure that was drawn up recently by city attorney Bryan Graham.

The proposed resolution cites a section of the city's charter reads, "Except where authorized by this charter, no elected official shall hold any other office or city employment during the term for which elected."

Sullivan, who easily defeated write-in candidate and former city clerk Carol Ochs in the November election, also serves as an elected member of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

Recycling committee suspended

MORGAN SHERBURNE

The Charlevoix County recycling committee will be suspended while the program is being restructured, voted the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners during its rescheduled meeting Monday.

Commissioners George Lasater and Larry Sullivan voted against suspending the committee while commissioners Ron Reinhardt, Joel Evans, Chris Christensen and Rich Gillespie voted in support of suspending the committee.

"People resist change, but that's one thing everybody can count on, every one of us, is change," said Reinhardt. "We've had some problems, and I think change is good."

Both Lasater and Sullivan argued in favor of having the larger, seven-person committee, which includes a representative from each township and city in Charlevoix County.

"The county saved in excess of $7,000 last year based on the research of one committee member," said Sullivan, referencing a latex paint recycling switch.

Previously, Charlevoix County had been paying a company that was collecting latex paint through the county's household and hazardous waste collection program $7,000 more than another company charged, said Sullivan. Recycling committee member Diane Gustin discovered the cheaper company.

"Might those ideas come forth in another venue? Sure. You might hear locals talking about an idea at a coffee shop, but they don't have a way to get that in the system," said Sullivan, later adding, "This is just one example of a committee member coming up with an idea that saved the county money."

Kevin Shephard, human resources coordinator for Charlevoix County, said that the committee would not be discarded. Rather, the suspension will allow Charlevoix County and Charlevoix County Conservation District to get a program set up.

"It's still going to be there and will still need volunteers," said Shephard.

"This is a suspension, not an elimination," said Gillespie. "We will be able to reset the deck and come back and revisit this, and put it back in place."

Committee member Michelle Rick-Biddick spoke in favor of the 13-year-old committee during the public comment period.

"Every year, we have expanded the program and I think we've been extremely successful at a very minimal cost," she said. "We had complete representation throughout the county, which is one nice thing about the committee as it stood."

County forms building and grounds subcommittee

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

A new subcommittee will help decide how a road commission building on Beaver Island will be built, voted the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners during its rescheduled meeting Monday.

"I think it's a good idea, moving forward," said Commissioner Ron Reinhardt. "We've already agreed to build that building. Now, this will just be to get all our ducks in a row."

Commissioner Larry Sullivan questioned the formation of a subcommittee under a committee formed to consider building and grounds manners for the county.

"There are existing committees in place to deal with this, and we certainly have the ability to bring in folks from the road commission and Charlevoix County transit," he said.

The subcommittee would con-

Snowshoe the Jordan Valley Trail

Free winter activity is beautiful and athletic

BY ANNE KELLY
Courier contributor

COURTESY PHOTO/ANNE ZUKOWSKI
This is a view of the Jordan River during the winter.

The Jordan River Pathway — an 18-mile trail — can be a rigorous undertaking, and next to impossible for cross-country skiing or even hiking at this time of the year when the woods and fields lay deep with snow. But snowshoes are just right.

Snowmobiles are only allowed along the roadways in the Jordan River Valley, so the path should be clear for soaking in the solitude of the forest walkway.

An access point to the Jordan Valley Trail is Deadman's Hill near Elmira. Travel about 3 miles south past the M-32 intersection along U.S. 131 South and turn westward onto Deadman's Hill Road. The last quarter-mile of that road isn't plowed in winter, so snowshoers may start the trek early, depending on snow depths.

The trail begins near the unplowed parking lot and far above the 300-foot drop to the valley below. The nearby scenic lookout is worth reaching just for the view, even if you don't tackle the hike. Hiking maps are available, but veterans know the trail is well-marked with blue blazes painted on trees along the way. The trail winds its way through rolling hills and valleys, crossing state-managed forests and private lands.

John and Ann Teasdale, a Charlevoix couple, are members of the Friends of the Jordan River Watershed organization, which maintains a constant interest in the valley.

"One of our favorite trips on the Jordan Valley Trail is hiking down to Pinney Bridge Campground which is about the half-way mark, spending the night there and then hiking the other half back," John said.

But not everyone is up for winter camping. Good, then, that there also is a three-mile route for day trippers.

Another Charlevoix resident, Peg Meyers, is an avid hiker and snowshoer on the trail.

"I woke up this morning with the moon shining on the snow and thought what a perfect time to go snowshoeing."

She is a 13-year member of the Jordan Valley Chapter of the North Country Trail Association, the volunteer group that, builds, maintains, nurtures and promotes the North Country Trail section between Starvation Lake Road near Mancelona, and Kipp Road near Harbor Springs. The official name for the larger trail is North Country National Scenic Trail, the hiking and backpacking trail that starts in New York by Lake Champlain and goes through Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and ends up in North Dakota.

Of the seven states, Michigan maintains the most length of trail — 1,150 miles. The segment of trail through Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet counties is just a small 78-mile section of the 4,600 mile whole. The National Trail crosses the 45th parallel just once, in the Jordan Valley, yet another distinction.

Norwood resident Duane Lawton is the trail association chapter president.

"Right now there is one area near the Beaver Ponds where a bridge collapse has been declared hazardous by the (Michigan Department of Natural Resources) and has prompted a detour," Lawton said.

Other than that, it is a snowshoe-friendly route.

Tom Copenhaver is the state liaison for the trail and can be reached at (231) 582-7523.

"We are getting more and more inquiries about the trail all the time," he said. "Anyone interested in learning more about the trail can contact this office."

Charlevoix Area Community Pool's second annual end-of-year beach bash style party will be 1-4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 29, at the facility at 11905 U.S. 31 North in Charlevoix.

Participants can grab a towel and head over to the pool where they can celebrate in summer fun style, despite the depths of winter. The family-friendly event will feature a tiki bar serving smoothies and snacks, along with plenty of fun activities. Snorkeling, waterhoops basketball games and volley beach ball games will be organized in the warm, 84-degree pool. Others can relax and enjoy a soak in the 101-degree hot tub.

The party decor will include palm trees, grass skirts, leis and beach music to add to the ambience of the celebration.

"It's cold outside but it's hot on the deck play in the pool and relax in the hot tub. It's a great place to be in the winter," said Jean Musilek, the pool's water fitness instructor and spokeswoman.

The 86,000-gallon pool's capacity is 99 swimmers that can splash up some fun. The cost of the event is $5 per person or $20 per family

"We want to offer our community fun recreational activities for families that are affordable and a place for families to play together," Musilek said

The proceeds of the event go toward pool operations, which also is supported by funding from the local community. The pool's mission is to be a safe and friendly environment for kids of all ages and to provide exercise and recreational activities that are a vital link to community health.

More than 100 bathers are expected to attend the beach bash to celebrate the end of the year.

Crisman takes plea bargain

JORDAN SPENCE
Northern Michigan Review

Crisman

Floyd Crisman, [illegible]0, pleaded no contest to two charges of criminal sexual conduct of the first degree last week in 33rd Circuit Court in Charlevoix County.

The charges involve two victims younger than 13 years old, according to prosecutor Allen Telgenhof.

Crisman originally faced a single charge for criminal sexual conduct in 1993, but failed to appear for trial at that time. He instead fled to Arizona, where authorities arrested him this December.

Crisman is scheduled to be sentenced at 9 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 11, in the Charlevoix County courthouse.

Crisman's court appointed attorney Kraag Lieberman indicated how Crisman pled no contest because his memory of the incidents was negatively impacted by his own alcohol abuse, mini-strokes suffered and the passage of more than 20 years since the offenses occurred, the prosecutor's statement said.

A no contest plea is treated the same as a guilty plea for sentencing purposes.

As part of a plea agreement, other criminal sexual conduct charges involving one of the same victims and a misdemeanor child abuse charge were dismissed.

Charlevoix woman accused of embezzling $141,000 from former job

BRANDON HUBBARD
Northern Michigan Review

A Charlevoix woman is expected to appear in circuit court next month on charges she wrote illegal checks to herself from her employer.

Heather Marie Webb, 33, is charged one count of embezzling more than $100,000 while an employee at NuCore North Inc. The felony carries a maximum 20 years in prison and/or $50,000 fine or three times the amount embezzled.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department arrested Webb on Nov. 13, after she put in her resignation to NuCore Inc., Sept. 30 to be effective Nov. 1.

One of the owners of NuCore Inc., Gary Grove, reported to police he found an unauthorized check for $2,100 made out to Webb with the signing name Robert Grove — Gary's brother and a co-owner — according the court records.

Webb confessed forging the checks to the owners, according to the arresting affidavit.

Upon investigation, Det. Mike Wheat with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office found alleged unauthorized checks dating back to 2006 and totaling $141,858. The amounts varied annually between $3,586 during 2006 to $31,186 in 2013. Webb later admitted to the detective she had been taking funds throughout her nine-year employment with the company.

Webb posted a $20,000 personal recognizance bond Nov. 14. She is set for a preliminary examination at 2:30 p.m. Jan. 7, 2014 in the 90th District Court in Charlevoix County.

Ironton Ferry: one more shot

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

FILE PHOTO
Ironton Ferry

The Ironton ferry will receive one last cash infusion before it can open again in the spring after a late season start and repairs that were more expensive than expected.

The ferry is mostly operated by the cost of its tolls, but missed its traditional Memorial Day opening weekend during the spring and opened mid June. In October, the Charlevoix County Transportation Authority received $10,000 from the county's general contingency fund and $10,000 from the road commission.

During that October meeting, the Charlevoix County board of commissioners wondered whether more money would need to be transferred to the ferry. Turns out, its expectations were right.

The Charlevoix County Transportation Authority expects a budget deficit of $15,000 through May 2014.

"The last time we did this, we thought there may be another one," said commissioner Chris Christensen.

He wondered again if the transportation authority would need more money to open in April.

"They should have enough cash flow to run again through April and May before the money starts coming in," said county clerk Cherie Browe.

The Charlevoix County general fund will contribute $7,500 while the remaining $7,500 will be billed to the Charlevoix County Road Commission.

The resolution to transfer the money to the Charlevoix County Transportation Authority was unanimously supported.

Shephard named county HR director, coordinator

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

For Christmas, Kevin Shephard, human resources coordinator for Charlevoix County, received a new title.

During its rescheduled board meeting Monday, the board of commissioners voted to give Shephard the position of not only human resources director, but Charlevoix County coordinator.

Shephard has already been undertaking some of the duties that a coordinator would, said commission chair Joel Evans, going beyond his job description as a human resources coordinator.

As a county coordinator, Shephard would continue to attend the board of commissioners meetings and help administer county policies for department heads and the board. In this position, Shephard would also act as a liaison between the county and local, regional, state and federal agencies, according to the job description, among other duties.

The coordinator position differs from a county controller position in the level of power it has in the county. A controller has board authority, which means a controller can make decisions for the county without the board's consent. Shephard's position will not allow him to do that.

The commissioners voted 5-1 in favor of changing Shephard's job title. Commissioner Larry Sullivan voted against the recommendation.

"This doesn't reflect on Kevin and his performance. However, I have talked to a number of people, city managers, county managers and administrators in other counties. Usually, what is done is they hire a person and create a position for that person, or create a position and fill it with the best person available," said Sullivan. "I campaigned on creating a county manager position. I think we need one ... I don't think we're going about it in the most expeditious or thoughtful matter."

Whether the new position would come with a bump in pay depends on the discussion of Shephard's contract in May, said commissioner Chris Christensen. Shephard currently makes $59,160 before insurance and benefits.

"This is more meant to cover bases with Kevin's job duties," said Christensen. "In May, we will look at rehashing this contract and pay at that time."

Happy Kwanzaa

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

In my childhood, the days leading up to Christmas meant more fires in our brick fireplace, which I would pretend was a campfire. Occasionally I got into trouble for roasting a marshmallow or two, which I would still do all over again if given the chance. Always fascinated by fire and lit candles, I could be mesmerized for hours watching flames as they licked the apple wood. It was only the pop and snap of dry wood that brought me out of long gaze. Fires in our old hearth meant Christmas was nearing and an Advent Calendar and candles were soon to follow. I grew up in a traditional Roman Catholic family; we would set up a manger, a calendar complete with hidden doors and then carefully lay out a wreath which held tapers in hues of purple and pink.

On one occasion when my creativity went into overdrive, I cut and glued scraps of materials I found in my mom's sewing kit and created very festive looking outfits for members of the creche. Now that I think back on that event, the wise men looked more like crack dealers, but mom always encouraged my endeavors; this actually kept me out of trouble with dad. The Advent Calendar was usually placed on the fireplace mantle with hopes I couldn't reach it. In my impulsive youthful days, I couldn't resist opening up a few of its hidden doors before intended. Christmas is here and all the Advent calendars have been opened and tapers lit on the Advent wreath with or without the help of a young curious child.

Years have flown by since childhood and I have been able to add another holiday which begins the day after Christmas and continues for seven days.

When I worked at our local elementary school, our thoughtful and inspiring staff taught us about this holiday whose cultural roots I had so much to learn about. Our fourth graders learned about Kwanzaa — a thought-provoking holiday celebrated in many African-American homes. It was created by Maulana Karenga in 1966 as an alternative to Christmas, giving black people an opportunity to celebrate their culture and history. As time passed this holiday is now celebrated along with Christmas in many homes, not just those of African descent.

Each of the seven days following Christmas holds a specific principle to be followed that Kwanzaa participants feel will help our ever-changing world. Day one focuses on the importance of unity in the family and in the community. Day two encourages us to speak up for ourselves. On day three, the focus is to work together with others to solve problems and to build a better community. Day four's focus is to work cooperatively with other businesses to help them to survive. Day five is to be spent developing a purpose or mission statement to help your community grow. Day six to creatively do as much as you can to leave your community beautiful and beneficial for those that come after us. Day seven focuses on faith in the good works of parents, teachers and community leaders.

When I review what this holiday is all about it really is much more than a cultural lesson. They are lessons that help all of us after Christmas and think positively about the future.

Although the staff members I worked with who taught me about Kwanzaa are retired, their lessons were not forgotten as witnessed by former students now grown and teaching their own children about alternative views during the holidays. This seven-day holiday is filled with lessons all communities — including ours — could follow and benefit from. And isn't this a great way to lead up to the New Year?

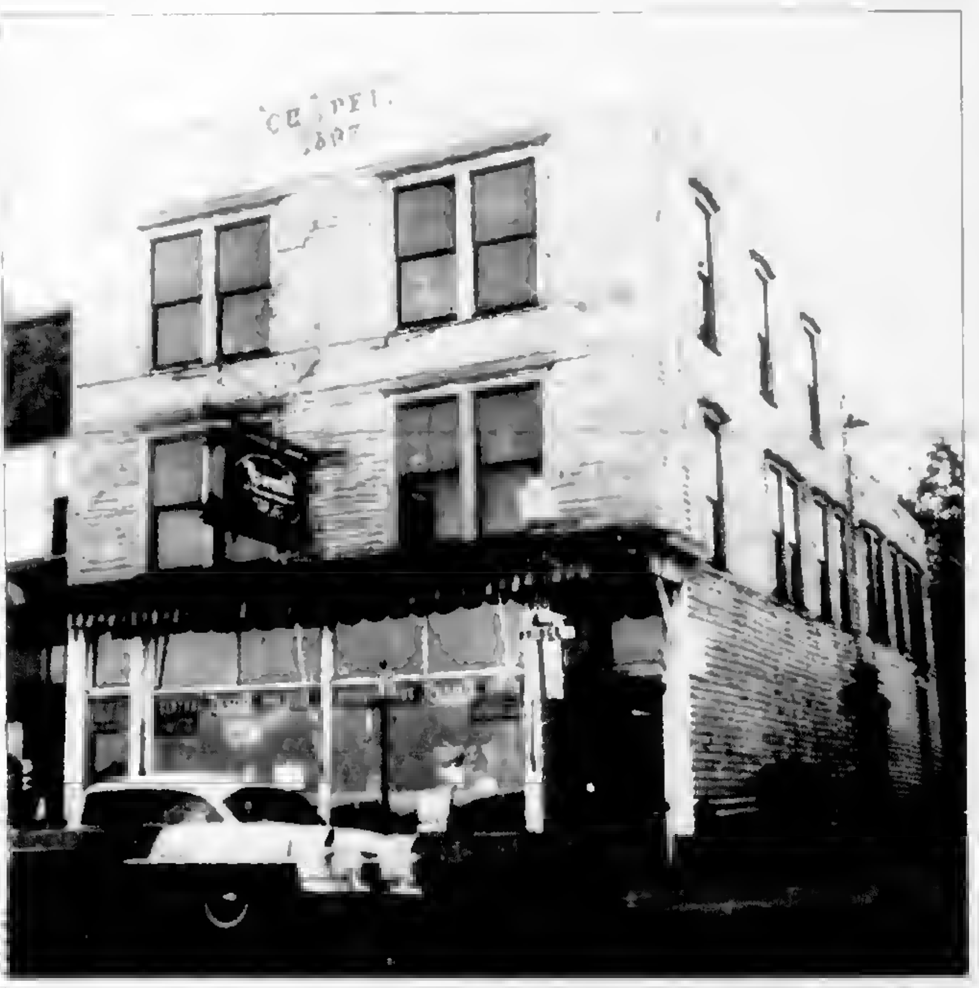
LOOKING BACK...



COURTESY PHOTO/CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

In 1878, the Noble Hotel was erected on the southwest corner of Bridge and Clinton Streets. It lasted until the mid 1890s when a fire caused serious damage to the building. E. N. Chapel purchased the remains and rebuilt the structure even higher in 1897 as a drug store with offices above. He later sold the business and building to B. A Herman, who named it the Central Drug Store. Pharmacist Harley Ochs, from Roscommon, went to work for Herman in 1914. He purchased everything in 1929. Ochs' son Frank began working here as a 13-year-old in 1932, got his pharmacy education, and became a full partner in 1954, then full owner in 1966 after the elder Ochs passed away. Frank's son John in turn had begun working as a teenager in 1955, and became full owner in 1982, which position he holds today. Thus a pharmacy has occupied that Clinton Street corner for 116 years, and has been in the hands of the same family for 84 of those years, the oldest family-owned business in Charlevoix.

Guest column

Is what you feel the holiday blues, or something more?

BY ALEXIS KACZYNSKI,

DIRECTOR, NORTH COUNTRY COMMUNITY MENTAL HEALTH

While the holidays are supposed to be a time filled with 'comfort and joy,' 90 percent of Americans actually report feelings of stress, anxiety, loneliness and depression.

Sadness or depression varies from person to person, but during the holidays they both can be reactions to the stresses and demands of the season. For many, it can be due to fatigue, unrealistic expectations, financial frustration, over commercialization, or not having the opportunity to spend time with family and friends. Others may feel depressed around the winter time due to a condition known as seasonal affective disorder (SAD), which occurs as the days grow shorter in the fall and winter.

Although many believe suicides occur more frequently during the holiday season, it is actually a perpetuated myth. In fact, the Centers for Disease Control's National Center for Health Statistics reports that the month of December marks the lowest suicide rate, with rates actually highest in the spring and fall. In reality, this unfortunate holiday myth supports misinformation about suicide that can sometimes hinder prevention efforts.

But one fact remains - depression continues to be the biggest risk factor associated with suicide. Individuals experiencing depression become more discouraged the deeper depression gets and the longer it goes on. Whether one's depression is associated with the holiday season or not, suicide and suicidal thinking are more widespread than typically believed. Each year in the U.S. alone, more than 36,000 people take their own lives, and nearly 400,000 people attempt suicides. Unfortunately, it can be hard to identify suicidal thinking in a loved one, but the following warning signs may help to identify those who are at risk.

— Talk about suicide: If someone you know talks about self-harm or not wanting to live, take it seriously. Don't leave this person alone and let them know you're going to get help.

— Bipolar disorder: The symptoms of bipolar disorder — a condition in which bouts of depression are interspersed with periods of mania — often drive people to consider suicide.

— Alcohol or drug use: Drug use and excessive alcohol use are often warning signs for suicide. In addition, alcoholism is a major contributor to suicide, with 1 in 3 suicides attributed to alcoholism.

— Anxiety: About half of those who are depressed have "agitated depression" with anxiety being a main symptom. Those who are agitated are more at risk for suicide because anxiety is typically uncomfortable.

— Health problems: According to the National Institute of Mental Health, individuals 65 and older are at the highest risk for depression and suicide. While depression isn't a normal part of aging, problems with vision or hearing, chronic health conditions, and a loss of independence can increase the risk.

Though many myths about depression and suicide exist, one fact is for sure — treatment helps to decrease the risk of suicide. Successful treatment of an underlying psychiatric disorder is important and can help to reduce suicidal thoughts, especially among older adults. When depression is successfully treated, thoughts of suicide usually decline. In addition, family members and friends can play a significant role in helping prevent suicide, as social support is linked to helping lower the risk of suicide. Counseling and support groups are another way to relieve some of the burdens of stress or sadness that come along with the holiday season.

If you are in a crisis or know of an individual in need of help, call the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline at 1-800-273-TALK. The confidential service is available to anyone, 24 hours a day, seven days a week. You can also call Third Level Crisis Intervention Center at 800-442-7315 if you need to talk to someone in the northern Michigan area.

LETTER to the editor

Thank you for alternate gift fair success

Dear Editor:

We would like to extend a big thank you to the Charlevoix community for making the third annual Charlevoix Gifts with a Purpose Alternative Giving Event such a success. The 18 local nonprofit organizations that participated received total donations of more than $8,200 in alternative "gifts," which will be given throughout the holidays. A special thanks to the Charlevoix Public Library for the use of its facility, Charlevoix State Bank for its assistance with credit card processing, and the Bergmann Center Aktion Club for providing refreshments. If anyone missed the event, and would still like to make a donation as a Christmas gift, all 18 organizations continue to accept donations. Thanks again to everyone who made this day such a success.

Modern day masquerade ball at Castle Farms

BY SHERI MCWHIRTER-O'DONNELL

Masquerade masks are encouraged at the new Castle Farms event on New Year's Eve.

An old, medieval tradition with a lot of pomp and showy display will help ring out the old year and celebrate the new year at a modern day masquerade ball at Northern Michigan's castle.

Castle Farms will host the event that begins at 9 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 31. The merriment will continue past midnight until 1 a.m., when the party will wrap for the night. Tickets are $40 per person in advance or $50 at the door.

"Castle Farms was looking to do something for the Charlevoix community on New Year's Eve. Since we'd already been tossing around an idea for a masquerade party, we thought it would be the perfect time to combine the two," said Johanna Alexander, event coordinator. "We're hoping the event proves lots of fun for everyone, so we can continue it for years to come. We encourage everyone to buy their tickets in advance."

Participants are encouraged to dress up for a traditional masquerade ball — such as ball gowns and tuxedos — but those who don't own a mask need not worry, either. Masks will be available in limited quantities at the event. The event's official unmasking moment will be at midnight, when the new year will begin with a booming fireworks display above the castle.

Tickets are available at the Castle Farms welcome center, at www.castlefarms.com online, by calling Alexander at (231) 237-0884, ext. 225, or sending email to johanna@castlefarms.com.

Additionally, those attending the ball can book a room at the Charlevoix Inn and Suites for a discount on their New Year's stay.

Boyne's Rail Jam coming up Sunday

BY BREANNE KRAGER
Courier contributor

The Holiday Rail Jam competitions presented by The North Face will take place Sunday, Dec. 29 at Boyne Highlands Resort in Harbor Springs, and then on Monday, Dec. 30 at Boyne Mountain Resort in Boyne Falls.

For those eager to break out the skis or snowboard and show off whatever talents you learned last year, this may be just the opportunity. Dan Turcott, Boyne events professional, said Boyne's Rail Jams include one to three features, which are boxes and rails placed within the competition area.

"Those who sign up get a set amount of time to show the judges their tricks on the features we set up. We then narrow it down, run those still in the competition through again, and then figure out our placement," Turcott said.

As in the past, there will be some great prizes to win this year. Top finishers will receive Boyne gift cards and a prize from The North Face.

The number of participants battling it out for these prizes ranges between 25-40 skiers and snowboarders, so there is guaranteed to be some competition.

In order to distribute the wealth and ensure that everyone receives a fair chance at obtaining a prize, Boyne creates divisions within the competition for boys, girls, skiers and snowboarders.

"Our message is simple — as long as you can grind a rail or slide down a box, we want you to come out and show us what you got so that you can win some excellent prizes," Turcott said.

The Boyne Highlands competition will have a registration area set up near the entrance to the cafeteria from noon-1:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 29. The Rail Jam will then kick off at 2 p.m. near the bottom of the Heather Slope.

Registration for the Boyne Mountain competition will take place 2-3:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 30, in the West Civic Center Lobby. The location of the main event has yet to be determined, but it is scheduled to begin at 4 p.m.

The entry fee for both competitions is $5 and helmets must be worn.

More information about Boyne's Rail Jam competitions is at www.boyne.com online, or via email to Turcott at dturcott@boyne.com.

COMMUNITY Highlights

Financial Peace University program offered by Habitat

Northwest Michigan Habitat for Humanity is offering scholarships for families to attend Financial Peace University, a nationally recognized Dave Ramsey financial planning course that helps families learn household money management and financial planning skills.

The weekly course will be from 6:30-8 p.m. for nine consecutive Wednesdays beginning Jan. 8, at Walloon Lake Community Church, 04320 M-75 North, Walloon Lake. This program is open to all area families and made possible through a grant from the Hestia Women's Giving Circle of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

Limited grant-based scholarships are reserved for lower-income families and reduce the regularly priced $95 course to a net cost of $25 per family on a first-come, first-served basis. One entrance fee per family or couple is required. The fee includes the evening courses plus all materials, including a lifetime family membership to the online Financial Planning University, the class textbook "Dave Ramsey: Financial Peace Revisited," the class workbook, a set of 13 CDs, the cash envelope system wallet and more.

The grant award allows a limited number of scholarships be made available and families not experiencing financial difficulty are requested to pay the full course price of $95 per family. Early registration is encouraged by contacting Habitat at (231) 348-6926.

Financial Peace University, which has changed the lives of more than 500,000 families nationwide, will teach financial accountability to singles or couples in a lively, often entertaining environment covering a broad spectrum of financial planning topics relevant to today's economic conditions which challenge family finances. Lectures will be presented in a video format by Don Rhudy of Walloon Lake Community Church. Each presentation is followed by intensive topic discussion on subjects such as super saving, budgeting, cash flow planning, getting out of debt, avoiding credit pitfalls, better buying habits, investing, tuition and real estate financing, understanding mortgages and housing expenses, and how to understand and relate to money.

The Financial Peace University Program, a small group learning experience, helps families work toward financial freedom, as well as learn how to eliminate debt and plan for a sound financial future. The program was developed by Dave Ramsey, originally a radio based personal financial planning guru. Ramsey states that, "more than 70 percent of Americans live paycheck to paycheck, 33 percent of Christian marriages end in divorce and money problems are the number one cause."

Anyone who wants to work toward debt freedom, economic hope and financial peace are encouraged to attend this course, an outreach program of Northwest Michigan Habitat for Humanity and the Hestia Women's Giving Circle. Registration forms are available at www.northwestmihabitat.org online.

Incomes erode: Child abuse, neglect rises

More Charlevoix County kids are growing up in families struggling to make ends meet, according to the 2013 Kids Count in Michigan report, which offers clear steps to a brighter future for those children.

Statewide, the most dramatic change in the report was a 53 percent increase in the rate of young children who qualified for federal food assistance between 2005 and 2012. More than one in every three qualified for nutritional help because their families were living on incomes under 130 percent of poverty — about $31,000 a year or less for a two-parent, two-child family.

Charlevoix County ranked No. 30 of 83 counties — No. 1 has the best, or lowest rate — with 33.3 percent of young children (ages 0-5 years) eligible for food assistance, compared with 37 percent statewide.

"Though the recession officially ended years ago, the toll on children is still apparent with the persistently high number of children living in need. It's especially troubling that young children are growing up in poverty because research shows a deeper lifelong impact of deprivation during early childhood," said Jane Zehnder-Merrell, Kids Count in Michigan director at the Michigan League for Public Policy.

There were 19.1 percent of children living in poverty in Charlevoix County in 2011, a jump of 16 percent since 2005. Statewide, the child poverty rate increased 34 percent in that time period. Nearly 560,000 children, about one in every four in Michigan, lived in poverty in 2011.

The Kids Count report also found a big statewide increase — 41 percent — in the number of children living in families investigated for abuse and neglect between 2005 and 2012. A total of nearly 207,000 children — the highest number in 22 years — were living in investigated families in 2012.

Charlevoix County ranked No. 32 with 103.2 children per 1,000 living in homes investigated for abuse or neglect compared with the statewide average of 90 children per 1,000.

The report, which ranks counties on 15 areas of child well-being, found five dramatically worsening trends all tied to eroding family economic security. Six areas showed improvements, while three remained about the same. One indicator could not be tracked over time.

Livingston County ranked best on five of the trend indicators and Lake County ranked last on eight of the 15 indicators. Even well-to-do Livingston County, however, experienced a big rise in child poverty.

To improve conditions for children, the report recommends Michigan policymakers:

— Reinstate the Earned Income Tax Credit to 20 percent. The credit helps low-income working families afford transportation to stay on the job. It was cut to 6 percent starting in tax year 2012.

— Increase the child care subsidy amount and eligibility level so low-income working families have the ability to use licensed child care while parents work or search for jobs.

— Support the successful implementation of the Affordable Care Act

— Expand Healthy Kids Dental into the five remaining counties.

— Invest in early childhood, paying attention to the important birth to age 3 time period.

— Raise the minimum wage.

"Together, these recommendations have the power to make a positive difference in the lives of low-income families in our state by encouraging work and making kids and families healthier," said Gilda Z. Jacobs, president and CEO of the Michigan League for Public Policy.

The biggest improvement statewide was a 33 percent drop in children living in out-of-home care. There were almost 17,000 Michigan children living outside their homes in 2005, compared with just 10,300 in 2012. The drop likely reflects improvements resulting from a court-approved settlement in a lawsuit filed against the state.

Also improving were the report's education indicators. Fourth-grade reading scores improved 20 percent, while eighth-grade math scores improved slightly at 1 percent between 2008 and 2012. Charlevoix County saw a 24 percent improvement in fourth-grade reading and a 5 percent worsening in eighth-grade math.

ty's attorneys authored a legal opinion in which they contend Sullivan may not hold both offices at the same time, because such a circumstance is barred by the state's Incompatible Offices Act. In general, the act prohibits a person from simultaneously holding two public offices that could potentially present a conflict of interest. In the same opinion, the attorneys wrote the Sullivan may also be barred from holding both offices simultaneously because of the charter provision. They noted in the document, however, that the wording of the charter provision is open to interpretation as far as whether the charter means any elected office or another city office that a person may not simultaneously hold.

In a letter to the city earlier this month, Sullivan indicated he believes the incompatibility issue can be easily solved by making some small changes in the relationship between the city and county clerk's offices for elections and the charter should be read to mean it prohibits simultaneously holding two city offices. Based on those assertions, he indicated he plans to continue to be a county commission and assume the city clerk's office on Jan. 6.

During its Dec. 16 meeting the council directed the Graham to do some further research on the implications of Sullivan's situation. City manager Rob Straebel said the proposed resolution grew out of that additional research.

The proposed resolution cites section 3.1 of the city charter which reads, in part, "Except as otherwise herein provided, the qualifications, duties and compensation of city officers shall be determined by the city council."

One of the "whereas" statements in the proposed resolution's preamble reads,"Whereas, the council has an obligation to uphold the intent of the City Charter and, thereby, promote public confidence in government and avoid even an appearance of impropriety."

Language of the proposed resolution finds that a person serving as both a county commissioner and the city clerk would violate the city charter and reads in part, "Based on the findings stated above and pursuant to section 3.1 of the Charter, the City Council determines that Mr. Sullivan is not qualified to assume or hold the office of City Clerk and shall neither be given the oath of office nor assume the office of City Clerk for the City of Charlevoix."

The language of the proposed resolution also specifically spells out that the resolution is not address the incompatible offices issue.

Contacted by the News-Review Tuesday, Sullivan said he's not sure yet what his next steps will be based on the proposed resolution.

He pointed to his earlier contention that a liberal reading of the charter language would prohibit someone who holds any office — such as a bank president — from serving on city council or as city clerk.

"That section of the charter is poorly written," Sullivan said. "I've worked in planning and zoning all my professional life and when you have language that could be interpreted in multiple ways, you should change the language."

He added: "I'm getting pulled in three different ways. Some say I should not take the city clerk's position, some say I should resign from the county commission, and a significant number say I should do both."

Charlevoix boys fall to Northmen

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix lost to Petoskey in last week's boys' basketball game.

The Northmen shot 8-of-12 (66.7 percent) from beyond the 3-point line and finished 28-of-52 (53.8 percent) from the floor en route to topping Charlevoix, 67-50, Friday in a non-league contest in Charlevoix.

"We've had good offensive balance throughout the year so far and tonight was really good," Petoskey veteran coach Dennis Starkey said. "You always want to have contributions from different guys and guys were able to hit shots that were key for us.

"We definitely had more good possessions of offensive basketball than we have had all year."

The Northmen used a strong start to the second quarter to open up their biggest lead of the game, 32-14, behind a 12-2 run which included a putback from Joe Crittenden and Aron Lee, a Lee transition lay up off a steal, a 3-pointer from Nick Mesnard and a 3-point play from sophomore forward Jason Bur.

"We played well in spurts and in spurts we played our best basketball of the year," Starkey said. "At times our ball movement was good, we played unselfish and moved the ball well. But there were also some stretches where we didn't play well, but it's a step in the right direction."

The Rayders closed the gap to 35-21 at halftime behind a 3-point play from junior Will Telgenhof, who at the end of the second quarter converted a dribble drive lay up, drew a foul and sunk a free throw to cut the gap to 14.

The Rayders then closed to within 10 points, 35-25, early in the third quarter as Nick Plude hit a jumper and Nate Moon converted a lay up.

Then the Northmen responded behind a strong shooting exhibition. Shea Whitmore scored on a pair of inside baskets, Monley connected on back-to-back 3-pointers before Evan Whitmore drained two straight triples to put the Northmen comfortably in command, 53-36, entering the fourth quarter.

"I thought in the first half, our rebounding hurt us and Petoskey over the years have always been a great rebounding team," Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine said. "In the second half, we played a little bit better and we came out and contested the three, but they (Petoskey) were knocking them down. I can't fault our kids effort because we were right in their face and they were still knocking them down.

"When they're hot like that, there's nothing you can really do other than hope they miss a few and you get the rebound."

Again, the Rayders closed the deficit down to 10 points, 55-45, early in the fourth as they went on a quick 9-2 run to start the fourth, but again the Northmen answered as Mesnard hit his second triple of the game to expand the lead back to 58-45 before Joe LeBlanc added a free throw and Evan Whitmore sunk an offensive putback to make it 61-45.

The Northmen outscored the Rayders, 14-12, in the fourth quarter as both Mesnard and LeBlanc had five points apiece.

"Everything is easier at home and we know we're going to get tested a lot on the road and this was a good test," Starkey said. "Charlevoix played very hard and created some situations where we had some problems."

The Northmen finished with 26 total rebounds to FALL

Charlevnix's 20, while Petoskey also had 16 turnovers, while Charlevoix finished with 19 turnovers.

The Rayders were 3-of-11 from 3-point range (27.3 percent), and finished 21-of-44 (47,7 percent) from the flnor.

"I just thought our effort was better in the second half," Erskine said. "We got it down to 10, but then we'd have a little mistake or miss a lay up, little things that if we can correct things will be great."

For the Rayders, 1-4, Shane Sutherland finished with a game-high 13 points — of which nine came in the fourth quarter, while Moon and Austin Putman each added 10 points.

The Rayders were playing without 6-foot-7 center Zach Hankins, a Ferris State University signee who is battling a foot injury, along with senior Matt MacKenzie (illness), Nick Snabes and Kenen Borths. Nick Plude and Austin Putman were battling injury and illness, respectively.

"I thought the chemistry as a group got better as the game went on and we trusted each other more," Erskine said. "That was a big improvement from the other night against Elk Rapids. Just our communication was much better. I thought Shane Sutherland stepped up and played hard as a senior leaders and Nick Plude did a good job at the point.

"I'm proud of the effort and if you get beat by a team like Petoskey that shoots as well as they did, rebounds well and hits putbacks, you can live with that."

The Rayders will play host to Harbor Springs in a Lake Michigan Conference contest on Tuesday, Jan. 7.

Petoskey also won the JV game, 63-39. For the Northmen, Peter Crittenden had a game-high 13 points and three assists, while Parker Goodrich had 11 points and four assists and Brandon Carson added 10 points and six rebounds. Nathaniel Reed added eight points and three steals, while Philip Schaub had seven rebounds.

For Charlevoix, Walker Drost and J.J. Wachler each had eight points.

Where will you be on December 31 at midnight?

3..2..1.. Happy New Year

The Christmas holidays are often a very busy time of year, filled with enjoyable gatherings of family and friends. One of the liveliest evenings is without doubt the one which starts on December 31st and ends in the wee hours of New Year's Day.

Celebrating the New Year is a very old tradition. Family members make the most of this occasion by getting together to talk, eat good food, exchange presents, dance to the sound of all sorts of music and have great fun playing games. Of course, the highlight of the evening is the countdown to midnight with all the laughter, cheering, kissing, hugging and exchanging of best wishes for the New Year: health, prosperity, love and anything else you can think of. It's the time to say goodbye to the old year and to welcome in another with hope and optimism...and lots of celebrating!

Many people get together with their families but others like to take part in one of the numerous evenings organized in bars, discotheques, reception halls, restaurants, hotels, etc. Depending on the place, there will be entertaining disc jockeys, terrific bands, champagne for the inevitable countdown and a sumptuous buffet fit for a king. Some municipalities join in the party by organizing firework displays or other activities likely to draw the crowds. There are evenings for every price and every taste but what's certain is that, wherever you happen to be, the atmosphere will be electrifying! Happy New Year!
